Reversal of Turks' Fighting Form Beat Allies in Balkans

Diplomacy of London, Paris and Petrograd Failed in Face of Victories Over Entente Armies by Forces Little Kingdoms Whipped Easily Three Years Ago.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.
(Copyright, 1915.)

GIVEN the German fondness for the historical parallel it is odd that they have not insisted on the striking resemblance of the great British adventure at the Dardanelles to that great and wholly fatal Athenian expedition to Syracuse which, in the end, was the cause of the downfall of a sea power at grips with Sparta yet risking all in a campaign far away from the main field of operations. Like all parallels the Syracusan falls down when pushed too far, for while Sir Ian Hamilton makes a fair Micias, Winston Churchill hardly will do for Alcibiades, but there must be mournful likenesses for every Briton.

In reviewing the progress of this great overseas campaign of the British it is necessary to examine it from three separate standpoints—from that of higher politics, imperial and international; from that of the local political situation in the Near East; finally from that of the actual operations on Gallipoli Peninsula. Only thus is it possible to estimate the plus and minus of this tremendous venture.

> NEVER in history has the Turk done better than at Gallipoli. Nothing has been more marvelous in the military records than the Osmanli recovery between 1912 and 1915. Fighting on the very place through which he marched into Europe five centuries and a half ago, fighting with the devotion that made Plevna memorable in the last century, he has won the admiration of the whole world, of his British foes first.—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

In going to the Dardanelles, first with a fleet and then with an army, Great Britain served immediately her own imperial interests. When the first operation began a Turkish army, officered by Germans, had been lately repelled from the shores of Suez, but was still a threat to Egypt. The continued presence of a hostile army, which had penetrated the Egyptian frontier, but a relatively short distance from the Nile, contributed to unrest in Egypt, compelled the British to consider always the possibility of religious disturbances, of native risings, of the double danger incident to external attack and internal revolt.

Suez was, and remains, the cornerstone of the British Empire. Could the Turks close this avenue of British imperial power, India would, in turn, be partially isolated, British communication with the Australian colonies interrupted and delayed, the whole system of imperial relations disturbed. Turkish success in Egypt might light the flames of Moslem revolt in India as well; prestige which means so much all over the East, would be lost.

An attack at the Dardanelles, a thrust directly at Constantinople, would infallibly recall all Turkish troops from the Suez region; it would remove the battle line from the marches of Egypt and contribute to insuring the continuance of order and peace in Cairo and Alexandria. If it did no more, if only the field of strife were transferred, the profit was plain. In addition, an opportunity would come to the British at the foot of the Persian Gulf to begin operations there against Mesopotamia, which is the land gateway to India.

Plainly then, the British had immediate profits in view to themselves, in transferring the operations from the Sinai to the Gallipoli Peninsula. Always, however, there was the qualification that defeat, disaster at the straits, would destroy their prestige in the near East, but the same was true of the Suez operation.

Proving Up to Russia.

TURNING now to international considerations, it was necessary first of all in the situation last spring for Great Britain to give Russia an immediate evidence of loyalty and of moral and material support. No nation had made such sacrifices in men and resources to the allied cause as Russia, and the recent defeat at the Mazurian Lakes was a final evidence of Russian sacrifice. What were her allies doing while Russia was thus suffering and laboring?

According to the Germans, nothing. But the main object of Russian ambitions for centuries had been the possession of Constantinople, and for more than a century the main obstacle had been Britain. Across the continent after the Mazurian disaster Sazonoff and Sir Edward Grey exchanged words which meant nothing unless they meant that Britain at last conceded to Russia the right to sit in power in Pera and Galata and restore the cross in Santa Sophia.

Words, such words, needed the confirmation of acts; thus the fleets of the allied nations at the sea gate of Stamboul brought new enthusiasm to Russia, new devotion. In addition, in the immediate military situation, they relieved the Russian armies in the Caucasus of the strain incident to an invasion by several Turkish army corps; they opened the way to Russian victory, as Russian invasion of the Carpathians had paved the way for the Servian triumph at Vallevo.

Thus to her necessary ally British effort at the Dardanelles gave an assurance that was required and an aid that was instantly effective and continually successful. It was at once a promise for the future realization of the greatest of Slav aspirations and a contribution to immediate Russian needs. It was not less welcome as a promise of munitions, lack of which was soon to cause the great summer reversal.

The Italian Factor.

IN Rome, as in Petrograd, the Dardanelles expedition was meant to have an influence which it did in fact exert. Italian aspiration, too, turns toward the near East. At the outset of the present war Italy finally decided to renounce her rivalry with France in the Western Mediterranean and in the old Roman provinces of North Africa. To German promises of French African provinces Italy turned a deaf ear. But this left her bound to follow the course of Venice, since she has surrendered that of Rome. This path led straight to the Aegean.

Since the success of the Dardanelles expedition meant the downfall of Turkey and the fall of Turkey meant the partition of Turkish estate, Italy could only hope to realize her ambitions in the near East by becoming of right one of the heirs. To do this she had to enlist on the allied side. Failure to enlist meant that Russia, Great Britain and France would divide the Osmanli property, giving to Greece, the Italian rival, what they did not desire themselves and thus making Greece their soldier in the near East.

Finally, in taking Tripoli, Italy has acquired common interests and common perils with the allies. Turkish success in Egypt meant a prompt extension of Turkish activity to Lybia and the Cyrenacia. Already the Turkish holy war had borne fruit in the Tripolitan desert, if nowhere else, and the Senussi were astir.

More than all else, it was the Dardanelles expedition that persuaded Italy to cast her lot with the allies. She believed, wrongly, as it seems, that Turkish collapse would be sudden and prompt, the Dringolade of Luleburgas and the first Balkan War would be repeated. Failing quick rewards from Austria for continued neutrality, Italy made up her mind to take King George's shilling, as Cardinia had taken British service in the Crimean War. And the Austrian price was lacking.

Here, then, is a third solid gain: First, Egypt was temporarily, at

German Princess, Just Back From Berlin, Says Women of Fatherland Will Fight if Necessary

STYLE FORGOTTEN BY ALL AS THEY THINK OF LOFTIER THINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.

THREE women have just arrived in New York from different parts of the war zone with stories of great interest to tell. The Sunday Post-Dispatch herewith presents interviews with each of them.

"Rather than see the Fatherland vanquished or dishonored the women of Germany stand ready to go into the trenches and fight until they drop. But, thank God, that will never be necessary. While there is a single son of Germany left in the field, its women will be protected."

Thus said the Princess Elizabeth von Hatzfeldt-Trachenberg, wife of Prince Hermann von Hatzfeldt-Trachenberg, counselor of the German embassy, to a Post-Dispatch reporter. She has just arrived from Germany.

"You wish me to talk of the women of Germany?" asked the Princess, speaking perfect English. "It gives me much pleasure to tell about the brave part my countrywomen are playing in this terrible war.

"I was in Germany three months on my recent visit, and not once did I see any outward signs of sorrow or weakening among the women. They possess the indomitable spirit that has distinguished our men. Call it stubbornness if you like, but they are unconquerable. I spent only three days in Berlin because I wished to joint my son, whom I had not seen in over a year. I went at once to Heringsdorf-by-the-Sea, where my boy was.

"I found everything going on as usual. One could scarcely believe that a few hundred miles away a frightful war was being waged. All the hotels were open and while the people were not frivolous, all sorts of entertainments were being held.

"Berlin is no different now than before the war. We don't darken our capital at night, because we have no fear of aeroplane raiders. The Kaiserin and the Crown Princess go about a great deal. The Crown Princess has formed an organization which she calls the Cecilienhilfe; its object is to help mothers whose children are born while their fathers are at the front. Some call them 'war babies.'

"The Crown Princess visits the homes of these poor women and not only assists them financially, but cheers them by her presence. All the members of the royal family are doing Red Cross work, visiting the hospitals or attending bazars.

Marriage Is Made Easier, but Only Conventional Motherhood Is Desired

"IT is untrue that we are encouraging our women to become mothers to give the Fatherland more sons for the army. Where persons wish to marry the way has ben made more easy. Customs have been set aside, but the women are not being either coaxed or coerced into marrying or becoming mothers.

"Neither is it true that Germany is oft' times hungry. Everyone has plenty to eat. War bread is delicious. I think American hotels would do well to serve it to their patrons.

"Of course, there is little or no style among the richer classes. Every woman's mind is occupied with loftier things than dress just now. Each of the countries at war has produced brave, wonderful men and splendid women. Think what could have been accomplished if these sterling qualities could have co-operated instead of warring against each other. Of course, we all pray for peace, but only for peace with honor.

"Those pictures you see in newspapers of women at work in the fields give a wrong impression. German women have always worked in the fields. They are not doing it now because of the war."

Princess von Hatzfeldt told of her trip across the Baltic Sea to Denmark, where she boarded the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VII.

"We sighted several English torpedo boats," she said, "but we were not afraid when one of them stopped us. The English commanded was very courteous.

"The wives of several members of the German embassy rather envied me when I left Berlin. The Countess von Papen may come over a little later if she can arrange it."

The Princess von Hatzfeldt is very attractive. She has dark brown hair and large dark eyes. After a week's visit here she will go to her home in Washington.

How an American Woman Has Won Fame as Hospital Organizer

ONE day last fall, when London was just beginning to realize the fearful extent of the British losses in France, a woman called at the War Office.

"I want to see Lord Kitchener," she said to the flunkey who took her card.

In a few minutes he ushered her into a great room, where several men in khaki were sitting at desks.

"I want to see Lord Kitchener. Is he at home?" she asked one of them.

"Madame, he is in France," was the reply. "Perhaps we can do something for you."

"Who is the highest in authority here at present?" she demanded.

"There are several Generals," was the reply.

"But I wish to see whoever is highest in authority in this building," she said.

"That is the Adjutant-General. You can only see him by appointment."

"But I have no appointment, and I must see him immediately."

PRINCESS VON HATZFELD TRACHENBERG.

Throwing up his hands the Under Secretary, or aid-de-camp, or whatever he was, left the room. When he came back he said: "Please step this way," and the caller was ushered into the office of the Adjutant-General without further parley.

The woman was Mrs. Gardner Bartlet, an American by birth, but married to an Englishman, and a resident of London for many years. As "Sister Beatrice" she has since organized many hospitals in the field, together with many French institutions of the same kind, and she has come to make a tour of the United States in an effort to get together medical and other supplies, of which, she says, the need this winter will be far greater than last. At the Wolcott today Sister Beatrice told of how she accomplished her work. She is not a member of a sisterhood, but she wears a sister's uniform, with a purple robe over a white dress, and before she joined the French Service de Sante, which she now represents, she had a sort of roving commission, her capacity for organization being employed to set new hospitals going.

"The Adjutant-General wanted to know what he could do for me," said Sister Beatrice. "I told him inside of five minutes. The next morning I put a notice in the papers telling that I would engage to get supplies through to the wounded. I didn't know how I was going to do it, but the response was magnificent. In two days I left London with three carloads of supplies for Plymouth.

British Admiralty Soon Gave Her a Yacht to Carry Her Supplies

"THERE I went to the Admiral's office. He received me courteously. I told him I wanted a yacht."

"'By what authority?' he demanded.

"'I have no authority beyond that of the need of humanity,' I replied. After a few minutes' conversation he gave some orders. My supplies were immediately transferred to a yacht, and as soon as she was loaded, I boarded her with a unit of qualified nurses, and crossed to Caen.

"I went to Limoges. There I found 10,000 wounded and 40,000 refugees, and the need was so great that I tore up my own dress to make bandages. But when our supplies reached us we had enough to equip the hospital there with enough to last until last Christmas.

"I am the only woman who has been nursing over there who is not under Red Cross supervision. I have crossed the channel 52 times in the last year. We had no chloroform at the start, and when I reported this to the British Admiralty, the British Red Cross immediately sent a supply to the spot.

"Then I was called to Dieppe, where I found 1200 wounded and only two nurses, and was asked to equip a hospital. I took over a small hotel with 50 beds, and we had it going inside of a week. Then the French General commanding the third region of mobilization handed me over a big old seminary near Rouen, which had not had a single tenant except rats for about eight years, and asked me to turn it into a hospital. This I made into a hospital with 300 beds, and it now has one the best volunteer staffs I know.

"Next I entered the French Service de Sante, and since then my work had taken me to one hospital after another. I go in and see what is needed. Now I have come over here to seek supplies, for the need this winter is going to be simply colossal. We are not dealing with hundreds now, but with millions of men. When a wounded German is treated in a French hospital he does not seem to relish the idea of going back. And it's a peculiar thing the German wounded say when they are first brought in. They ask, 'Why did you begin it?' It seems as if the idea had been bred in them that some other nation than Germany started this war. Most of those I have seen do not want to go back to Germany.

Took Labor Chiefs to Front to Show Them War's Horrors

"FOR one who has not seen the horrors of this war it is difficult to appreciate the needs that are coming this winter. Why, last winter I had men brought to me from the trenches who had not had their clothes off in 130 days! Of course, the trenches are now much more sanitary. But last winter there were more operations from frost-bitten hands and feet than from wounds. The courage of these men is beyond description.

"In the early days Gen. Goran gave me his military automobile, with two outriders in uniform, for going about, and I tore around in that car day and night. For a time I never slept anywhere else.

"Of course, you have read of the strikes in England. I was speaking in the north of England in an effort to get supplies, when I was invited to talk in the streets at Elswick, where many factories are. I spoke four different times in the snow and the rain, and they told me I was the first persons who addressed the workmen who had not asked for money. They had objected to giving contributions because they said most of the sums so contributed went to pay salaries of officials, but offered to give me money. I did not want money, but medical and surgical supplies. I decided, in order to bring the suffering home to these people, to take one of their representatives over to France to see things for himself. I selected the secretary of their war relief and sat him in a hospital in France where 9000 legs had been cut off, and where the makeshift for an operating table was four card tables tied together. It did not take him long to feel that he had seen enough. The workmen of Elswick have since been among the strongest supporters of my work.

"But to go back to the need of supplies. Why, I have seen men whose legs had been cut off, without the use of chloroform, hold up the stump to have it bandaged. People I meet are fond of saying to me, 'Why, I thought everything had been prepared.' As if such a contingency could have been imagined, much less prepared for. Why, a pair of socks will last a soldier on the march only three days. If a man is in the trenches all the time his socks may last six weeks. In France the knitting has to stop because there is no wool in the country. The Little Sisters of the Poor are doing what they can for the poor, begging bread from door to door, but France has practically no industries going, and the breadwinners of families being at the front, the distress is becoming acute. I hope to cover this country pretty well before sailing back on Dec. 1."

Woman Tells of Escape From Belgium Disguised as a Peasant

MRS. MALCOLM CARTER, a British subject of Belgian birth, who arrived last night from Liverpool on the White Star liner Adriatic, told an interesting story of her escape from Belgium into Holland disguised as a peasant woman after her passport had been torn up by orders of Gen. von Bissing, the German Military Governor. She wore a decoration consisting of a gold crown with the initial "B" in diamonds and the Belgian colors which had been given to her by King Albert for her services to his army.

Mrs. Carter said that she is the assistant secretary to the Asiles des Soldats Invalades Belges, an institution recently established in England and Belgium to aid disabled soldiers.

Mrs. Carter said she went to Brussels early in the summer to see her father, who was suffering from cancer and was held by the Germans in that city. She got into Belgium with an American passport, obtained through the Embassy in London as a special messenger to the United States Legation in Brussels. When she visited her father there just before he was to undergo an operation, her passport was taken away and torn up.

"Because of my Belgian birth," Mrs. Carter went on to say, "and my being married to an Englishman, I was suspected of being a spy and was detained three months in Brussels by the German authorities. Through the influence of relatives I managed to obtain a passport to leave Belgium for Holland from Gen. von der Goltz, but that was declared to be of no use and was torn up like the first one.

"Finally I became nervous at being shadowed

Germany Strives Hard to Hold South American Trade Despite the War

Her Agents Are Ceaselessly Vigilant in Maintaining Connections Though They Have to Buy American Goods to Supply Customers—They Will Shut Our Shippers Out After War Unless We Build Up Our Own Trade.

By ALWYN HALLAM,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 29.

NORTH AMERICAN interests in South American trade was never greater than it is today, and nowhere has this interest been more noticable than in Argentina, the wealthiest and most advanced of the Southern Republics. Formerly Argentina's dealings with the United States were confined to a few imports, chiefly agricultural machinery, tools, and a little constructional steel work. It was a one-sided business, paid for principally through Europe, and not calculated to raise sanguine hopes for its future expansion. A few big firms in the United States made irregular profits; the small man, owing to the long credit asked and given, could not enter the trade, or, if he did try it, soon retired, hurt in pocket and temper.

Not until Argentina exports began to move northwards did the position show any signs of real improvement. Today, meat, maize and hides, wool and linseed are all shipped to the United States, there to find a ready market.

Ruin stared the majority of the Argentine sheep farmers in the face when the ruthless hand of war shut down the Belgian weaving mills, the only market in prebellum days for the coarse and somewhat dirty wools they had to offer. Then came the great demand for cloth of any and every kind and the United States bought practically all of the clip; at any rate all that they could get when the Bradford buyers realized that they also must be ready to accept coarser prime material.

In hides, too, over 80 per cent of the Argentine shipments of dried and salted skins between January and June, 1915, went to American tanneries, whilst a Minneapolis firm turning out linseed products admitted only a couple of months ago that the timely arrival of 150,000 bushels of Argentine seed saved the works from being hung up for a week, there being no other supplies in the market.

In the meat trade the names of Armour, Swift and Sulzberger are as familiar in Buenos Aires as in New York or Chicago, yet the business, viewed from an American standpoint, has only just begun.

Then the establishment of local branches of an American bank, the National City Bank of New York, has also helped trade along, and although it may be some time before this latter concern shows a direct profit on its Latin-American business, it facilitates exchange transactions and contributes to the success of American affairs in general.

Drawbacks to Be Overcome.

YET, after all this, commercial America is not entirely satisfied with the trade returns from Argentina, inasmuch as there are drawbacks which do not attract the attention of the optimists who look on South American trade as an oyster only waiting to be opened, but which are very evident to the practical man of business. That the figures representing Argentine-American trade have not moved much in so far as imports from the United States are concerned is not of itself important.

Argentine imports allaround have shown a heavy decrease during the past 18 months, a fact that makes the proportion for American goods better in reality than it appears on paper. Comparing the first six months of 1914 with those of the current year, it is seen that the sum total of Argentine imports fell by $70,800,000, or 41 per cent, the reduction of imports from the United States was but $1,759,000, or scarce 5 per cent, for the same period. Where the future danger lies is in the possibility of Germany regaining her lost ground in this market, ousting the nascent American trade by cheap prices.

The past five or six years have seen a very great expansion of Germany's shipments to Argentina. In 1908, Argentine imports from that country totaled $38,800,000, and the returns for 1913 have almost doubled, being $71,300,000. Admitting that Argentine imports as a whole have grown considerably during that period, Germany's progress is nevertheless phenomenal and during 1914 she held on tenaciously to the South American trade, shipping via Italy and the Scandinavian and Dutch ports.

The first six months of 1915 show, however, a sharp drop. German exports to Argentina fell to $4,500,000, which is $25,200,000 less than was shipped in the six months, January to June, 1914, while it is safe to say that the current half-year will see "nil" written under the caption, "Imports from Germany."

American manufacturers and traders ought not, however, to run away with the idea that Germany intends to sit down and see her market pass completely out of her hands. Whether she wins or loses the war, she manifestly means to stick to her trade in the Southern Hemisphere. Her local representatives are already bending all their energies to that end and, broadly speaking, the German community in Argentina is working today solely towards the maintenance of its trade in such a state as will enable it to leap ahead immediately peace is declared and the ports of Germany open for new shipments. To this end, as far as one can see, bankers, merchants and wholesale dealers and retailers are working in complete accord.

The two great German credit institutions, Banco Aleman Transatlantico and Banco Germanico, offshoots of the Deutsche Bank and the Dresdener Bank, respectively, have shed fully 50 per cent of their deposits, but the balance they retain as sure money, belonging almost entirely to members of the German community.

Far from remitting to Germany, these banks appear to have been authorized to retain all funds available, using the money to support the great wholesale houses, who, in their turn, bolster up the smaller distributors, and through them the retailers. Stocks were very heavy in most articles of trade when the war began, and as the German houses have been supplying each other with what they individually lacked, they have been able to fill all orders up to within a couple of months ago.

Maintaining Trade Connections.

JUST now German traders are beginning to find themselves short of cheap fancy goods, glass and earthenware, electrical material and drugs, but by buying in the United States and reselling to their own clientele, they keep their connections, even dealing at a manifest loss if necessary. Indeed, in certain quarters, it is affirmed that increase in United States exports to Argentina, particularly in the case of coal, is largely due to the German demand. Bulgaria's Attitude Towards Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is to be regretted that the Post-Dispatch has informed its readers that Bulgaria is in the same relation to Russia that Cuba bears to the United States. It would be fully as accurate to say that Belgium bears a debt of gratitude to Germany, because Russia guaranteed her neutrality in the 30's. It is true that Russia aided Bulgaria to throw off the Turkish yoke and establish an independent government. This was fully as selfish a purpose however as our own part in the creation of the Panama Republic. Russia has made no secret for many years past that her eyes are on Constantinople. By strengthening the hand of the small Slavic nation in the Balkans, she was weakening the hand of Turkey, and hastening the latter's downfall. To this end she spent money freely in Bulgaria, as she did in Servia and Montenegro. As soon as the Bulgarian nation however formed ambitions of its own, and was no longer content to be under Russian vassalage, coercion on the part of Russia commenced. Who was responsible for the dethronement of Alexander, beloved by his people? Who hired the assassains that did away with Stambuloff, Bulgarian patriot and most brilliant of Balkan statesmen?

But these are small matters. Bulgaria's real hatred of Russians dates from 1913. In the war against Turkey, Bulgaria had borne the brunt of the fighting, and had won the important victories. No one can dispute that statement. By a previous treaty Bulgaria was to secure Macedonia, in part as a reward for her efforts in the war, in part because the population of Macedonia is overwhelmingly Bulgarian. What happened? The rest of the Balkans, envious of the growth of Bulgaria refused to abide by their solemn agreement. It is well known that Russia not only backed Servia in this matter, but incited Rumania into entering a quarrel to which she was no party. Bulgaria, vastly outnumbered, was defeated, and today is witnessing the Bulgarian population of Macedonia forcibly being converted to the Servian church and being taught to be Servians. Russia's plans succeeded and Bulgaria was prevented from assuming first place in the Balkans. And where alone was a voice raised in protest? Austria-Hungary was Bulgaria's only friend, and attempted, but unsuccessfully, to have the humiliating treaty of Bucharest altered.

The Battleship Constellation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The writer was much pleased with your beautiful rotogravure of the old battleship Constellation, launched at Baltimore, December, 1797. It so happens that a good many years ago she was docked at the navy yard at Portsmouth, Va., for repairs. A naval officer, a relative of our family, had a cane made from the wood of the original keel and the head from a piece of the stem post. This cane was presented to my wife's father in the early fifties, which we now have in our keeping as a valued treasure. This old wooden vessel is still seaworthy and 118 years old, while many of our modern costly steel ships have gone to the junk heap.

"National" Schools Suggested.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There is today a prevailing opinion among many that there is something amiss with our school system, that the men elected or appointed to manage these schools have neglected to carefully study the needs of the child. Take the average boy who has gone through high school, what vocation is he fitted for, what has your corporation to offer such a boy, what has any great corporation to offer such as he, and at his age, 18 or 19, he should have a definite idea of what his vocation would be. If you employ such a boy you will have to test him to find out if he is fitted for the work you have for him, and very often you will have to cast him aside as unsuitable, and so the boy drifts from one place to another with no fixed idea and very often becomes a drifter, due in most cases to the neglect, to the insufficiency of this education to be had at our schools today.

And again, when we go into the rural districts with their miserable little schoolhouses and underpaid teachers, with a management totally unfit, is it not about time to call a halt to all this?

What is the solution? To us it seems the adoption of a national school system which would eliminate most if not all of the present-day evils. It would take the school out of unfit hands, it would pay at least a fair salary to the teachers, it would, through competent management, give the rural school better schoolhouses, but better than all, we believe that with their greater facilities they could in a short time be able to develop a system that would direct the boy or girl to their real vocation, and also to give at least a preliminary education in that trade or profession.

[illegible], Mo. THE CHILD'S FRIEND.

THINGS GOV. MAJOR MIGHT DISCUSS.

The Post-Dispatch has exposed Gov. Major's pettifogging defense of the school fund juggle. His defenses of the general conduct of his administration have been much in the same measure.

The Governor shows that, with more money to handle, including the State Capitol bonds, his administration has brought in greater interest returns.

The Governor finds that the best achievement of his administration consists of several excellent measures passed by the State Legislature. It is true that the Legislature passed a few imperative measures demanded by the people of the State and recommended by the Governor. But it had sins of omission and of commission which the Governor does not mention, and it should be borne in mind that Gov. Major washed his hands of the Legislature. He refused to use his influence as Governor to urge the Legislature to pass necessary bills, and to use his power to veto bad bills.

He speaks of the net returns of the administration, due in large measure to increased revenues, not to economies. We have had rather continual returns of governmental mismanagement, extravagance and petty graft.

Why does not the Governor discuss official nepotism?

Why does not the Governor discuss penitentiary mismanagement?

Why does not the Governor discuss the penitentiary management's artful dodging of the abolition of the contract system and the failure to inaugurate imperative reforms in the institution? Why not discuss the brutalities practiced there?

Why does not the Governor discuss the multiplication of clerkships and the extravagance of the Legislature?

Why does not the Governor discuss the petty graft which from time to time has been brought to light?

Has he no defense for the sins of his administration?

THE FEDERAL QUESTION INVOLVED.

Attorney-General Barker has taken to the United States courts his famous suit over excess railroad fares paid while the 2-cent-a-mile bill was in litigation. His right to appoint himself attorney of record for every person who paid more than 2 cents during that period is the pivotal point in that suit. The Federal question involved in the State courts' denial of that right is, of course, perfectly obvious.

Article 43, section IX of the United States Constitution guarantees to all Barkers the inalienable privilege of self-appointment to the custodianship of every man, woman and child's legal interest, whether or not every man, woman and child wants Barker custodianship.

A PAIR OF CHINESE MONARCHISTS.

The proposed change from a republic to a monarchy in China, recommended in the interest of "stable" government, has already given rise to serious disorders and more are threatened. Japan, itself a monarchy, urges China not to make a change because a rupture of the peace in Asia would add new complications to those caused by the war in Europe. Two other monarchial countries are also said to have joined Japan in these sensible representations.

In fact, if the opposition to the change continues to grow, old Yuan and Prof. F. J. Goodnow, late of Columbia and now of Johns Hopkins University, will soon be left as the only advocates of the monarchial reactionarism that would destroy the new hopes for China. As the beneficiary of the change, old Yuan has some excuse for his position.

But what excuse can be urged for the professor, who got his chance for a career under republican government and who must know from history that, even with Latin-America included, changes in presidential successions have never caused as much strife as changes in monarchical successions.

BIG SLUMP IN VILLA CURRENCY.

Villa paper money has had a further slump since Carranza's recognition. Bales of it are offered a St. Louis department store at discounts ranging from 99.5 per cent up.

Of course this value of the currency is based only on its merchantable quality as curiosities. The higher price demanded for 25-cent shinplasters in lots of 100 than for $100 bills in lots of 100 is strictly in accordance with the law of supply and demand, the shinplasters being scarcer than $100 bills.

An especially interesting article on Villa finance in Mexico was read before the San Francisco meeting of the American Institute of Banking by David Barrows, professor of political economy in California University. He found that about $177,000,000 of the obligations of Chihuahua, pledging in due form the faith and credit of that State to repayment, had been issued by Villa.

On the silver basis each dollar of the currency had a theoretical value of 50 cents, but the enormous amount emitted naturally caused a speedy decline to 28 cents, then to 10 cents, then to 5 cents last January and at the time of the professor's visit later this year to 3 cents.

The Villa government, to which the paper money was most helpful in carrying on military operations, neutralized the distress normally accompanying such a ruinous depreciation by an ingenious system of price-fixing as complete and well enforced as the war-time price-fixing of Germany. Persons with things to sell had to sell them at the established price or not sell them at all. The hardship on farmers compelled to dispose of crops for paper money representing only a few cents in gold was more apparent than real. The things he had to buy were obtainable at proportionate fixed prices in currency. The perfection of the price-fixing arrangement is shown by the fact that with $10 in gold Mr. Barrows bought enough paper pesos to pay all the expenses of a 1000-mile journey in Mexico lasting more than a month.

He found at Chihuahua a busy and efficient munitions factory, admirably conducted hospitals for thousands of men, plants in which wool was manufactured into cloth and then into uniforms, schools regularly operated "and packed to the doors, for the Villa men are strong on education." In short, he found the outward appearance of a bustling, well ordered city. It may be that Villa in addition to the military genius commonly conceded him, has greater capacity as a civil administrator than has been suspected.

VAIN HOPES OF EARLY PEACE.

Rumors of peace negotiations, with the United States or Spain as mediator, are renewed at a time giving them some plausibility.

Germany has not "shot her bolt in Russia," as Kitchener said she had. The war did not, after all, "begin" in May, as that same Kitchener predicted it would, when he declined to prophecy as to the date it would end. If it had a "beginning" in September, the German line still holds fast in France after the loss of only a few miles in territory here and there, and new German successes are won in the Balkans.

But as a matter of fact there is small reason for supposing that present efforts for peace are more promising than previous efforts. The rumors are too good to be true. If they seem to have greater probability because of the Cabinet crisis in Paris and one almost as acute in London, it should not be forgotten that they may have been revived at this moment with that very possibility in view.

Since the battle of the Marne there has never been a time when Germany was not willing to make peace—on her own terms. The difficulty now, as in the past, is that the allies are willing to make peace only on their terms.

As to the allies' willingness to make peace on any other than their own terms, one test may be applied: Are they as strong now as when the war opened? England has many more trained men under arms now than a year ago and has scarcely completed her preparations as yet. The mind of France is on a war footing now. It was not then. It has mobilized its resources in resolution as well as in munitions and men. Italy has only begun to fight. Russia has met with reverses, but has supplied deficiencies and her fighting line is more formidable now than in 1914.

As a whole the allies are a more dangerous enemy than they were a year ago. But is Germany as strong as she was a year ago? She cannot repair her losses in men and equipment as readily as the allies. Whatever the result of the war, it will be many years before Germany is as formidable an antagonist as she was the day in July, 1914, when her fully prepared, magnificent armies, without a shoelace missing, began their march to the east and to the west.

TAINTED MONEY.

A Brooklyn police item reveals several unusual features, among other things the paradox that a detective may be a highly exemplary young man. The detective in question, while at the Y. M. C. A., which he frequented for spiritual and physical uplift and moral associations, was robbed of $55. How such a guileless young man ever happened to have $55 impresses us no less than the fact that he employed two other detectives to hunt for it, and naively reported the theft to the regular police. The sleuths traced the money by its scent, which was that of a powerful disinfectant and preservative. The romance is still further heightened, indeed reaches its climax, in the return of the money to the model young man. It smelt so bad that nobody could keep it—and nobody could successfully get rid of it.

As a means of enforcing honesty, we are impressed with the idea of similarly treating tainted money everywhere. Precisely as there are certain animals that cannot circulate freely, so dishonest money might be made unwelcome to the individual and unpopular in the vicinity. Having to cope with a disinfectant proof against deodorizers and exhalators, our frisky financiers, trust magnates and other bad money fanciers would have to do business on fragrant credit or become persona non grata. So long as tainted money smells pure and sweet it will remain a temptation and continue to be the root of some evil.

NEAR SALOONS.

That the world loves to be fooled is again illustrated in the marvelous success of the imitation saloons in Oklahoma.

The State being prohibition, an enterprising citizen conceived the idea of fitting out a place with all the appurtenances of the old saloon, but selling only near-beer. This beverage has a slight taste of hops, the color of real beer, together with the joy of exuberant bubbles. The only ingredient lacking to make it the real thing is alcohol, of which it contains so slight a trace that it escapes the ban of the prohibition law. To increase the realism, a few empty beer barrels were placed on the sidewalk, while the bartender, with customary white apron and cheerful smile, stood behind the counter.

From the opening of the doors the place was so liberally patronized that it has led others to start similar establishments throughout the State. Today the Oklahoma men are happy in their delusion. They sit around a table in a place having all the atmosphere of a saloon, sip their beverage out of real beer mugs, play a game of cards and have all the enjoyment they had before.

The experiment goes far to prove that drinking, to a great degree, is a social habit. The saloon is the poor man's club, where he goes for relaxation after the day's work.

Whether we shall drink real beer or near-beer, is a moot point, but that we should have respectable, orderly saloons, there is no question.

PHYLLIS MAKES HER DEBUT.

(Apologies to Kipling.)

WHAT are the nations fighting for?
Asked Phyllis, at the ball.
It's hard to tell! it's hard to tell!
Her host and hostess said.
And will they all be dead this Fall?
Asked pretty Phyllis, then.
It looks that way! it looks that way!
Her host and hostess said.
The Kings have had their fortunes told
By Mars, as well as Thor;
And each was very, very brave;
And each must go to war;
And each must pray to God, of course,
Though the troops don't know what for,
While they're killing one another in the trenches.

And do you think that God doth heed?
Asked Phyllis, at the ball.
Of course! of course! that's what He's for,
Her host and hostess said.
To countenance such bloody greed?
Asked pretty Phyllis, then.
Why not? why not? A God's a God!
Her host and hostess said.
Though they're killing male and female—
The young as well as old—
Their uniforms are beautiful,
With braids of beaten gold;
And they're giving out fine crosses
To the soldiers that are bold—
To the soldiers that are dying in the trenches.

But I have heard that God is love,
Said Phyllis, at the ball.
And so he is! and so he is!
Her host and hostess said.
And do his angels fight, above?
Asked pretty Phyllis, then.
You'd better dance! you'd better dance!
Her host and hostess said—
The Kings have had their fortunes told;
They know what they're about;
You're young to be a skeptic—
A girl just "coming out";
And though you do not understand,
It isn't safe to doubt
That the Lord can be divided in the trenches.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

IF we could foresee at this time what the national conventions of next year are to be like, we would be better able to determine which of them we want to bring to St. Louis. At this writing it looks as if the Democratic convention would not be a convention at all, but a sort of jubilee. Mr. Wilson has absolutely no opposition in the party, and very little outside. There are partisans in the war who will vote against him because he did not come out for their side, but against those must be set the great body of neutrals who will vote for him irrespective of party because they believe he has kept us out of the war. It must amuse the President to hear one day that he is for the British, and the next day that he is for the Germans. There are many good people who firmly believe these things, and that they will fire a few bombs in the next campaign we may be sure.

The Republican convention looks just now as if it would be lucky to get a hall in Kirkwood. There is nobody really running for the nomination, nor is it certain that any very level-headed person cares to have it. Senator Weeks and all the other prospective candidates whom we have seen out here haven't a ghost of a chance to beat Mr. Wilson. It is not so much that the people never heard of them as it is that they never heard of the people. It is a case of Who are they? on both sides. That is not the way to the White House. If Col. Roosevelt is going to walk into the hall and declare peace between the Republicans and Progressives, we will want the convention. Otherwise, it will be no more interesting than the Prohibition convention, or that of the Socialists, say.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

ETTA.—It is said that if any kind of nuts are packed in layers of sand and kept in a cool place they will keep fresh for an indefinite period. Soak them in warm water for an hour before using if you would have them peel as if they had just been gathered fresh from the tree.

C. Q. C.—Nickel can be cleaned with whiting and vinegar, if it is too badly stained to be cleaned with hot water—which really ought to keep nickel in good condition. Nickel kept bright by frequent wipings with woolen cloth is dampened with kerosene. Polish with dry flannel, lastly with soft paper.

SORGMAN.—Canning pimentos: Take pimentos of equal size and remove stem ends, seeds and inner fibers. Cut in halves and pour boiling water over. Let stand three minutes, drain and drop into iced or very cold water and drain after three minutes. Repeat until they have been in the iced water three times. Drain for last time and place in glass jars. Take equal parts of good vinegar and water and to a pint of each add a teacup of sugar, bring to a boil and cool. When perfectly cool pour over the peppers and seal. If poured on hot it will wilt the peppers and fade their color. Sweet green peppers can be prepared in the same way.

M.—Gluten bread for diabetics: Half cake yeast soaked overnight in half cup cold water. In morning pour off water and add one-fourth teaspoon sugar and warm water. Set sponge with one cup warm milk and four cups gluten flour. Let it rise, and when light take one tablespoon butter, one egg, one teaspoon salt, six walnuts chopped fine and one cup warm milk; beat well and make dough like baking powder biscuits. Pour in a greased pan and let rise in a warm place. When it shows signs of breaking place in a hot oven 15 minutes and in a less intense heat 45 minutes. This makes one loaf of bread. Don't keep it in closed box or covered pan. (Phone leading grocers as to where gluten flour may be bought.)

IS PROPHECY POSSIBLE?

NISBET.—We do not recall a 50-years-ago prophecy of the present war. The greatest prophet of the Middle Ages was Michael Nostradamus, who flourished in the first half of the sixteenth century. He predicted occurrences to persons then unborn, and gave their names, and his predictions were fulfilled. He predicted the abdication of the Emperor Charles V, the death of Henri II, the murder of Henri III. He predicted that Louis XIII would have a Montmorency executed "in an unusual place" by an executioner named Clerepeyne. In 1632, exactly 80 years after the prophecy was printed, a Montmorency was executed on King Louis XIII's orders by a soldier named Clerepeyne in an "unusual place" (the closed court of Toulouse city hall). Neither Montmorency nor Clerepeyne was born at the time of the prediction. Nostradamus further predicted the French revolutionary attack upon the Tuileries; dealt with Louis XVI's abortive flight to Varennes, and gave the name of the innkeeper who arrested the King. He predicted the defeat of Napoleon III at Sedan. These latter prophecies were made more than 200 and 300 years before they were fulfilled. Dr. Kemmerich goes into two questions: First, could these events be reasoned out by a clever student of his times? and, secondly, could Nostradamus have hit upon them by chance? He shows that it absolutely was impossible to reason out isolated events like the execution of Montmorency. On the question of chance, he has had the collaboration of the mathematician, Prof. Lindemann. Lindemann, taking all factors into account, holds that it is 5,000,000,000,000,000 to 1 against Nostradamus guessing the names Montmorency and Clerepeyne, and that it is 6,000,000,000,000,000 to 1 against Nostradamus hitting upon the three names which are rightly given in connection with the French Revolution. In other words, he did not guess the names. And since his printed books show the prophecies really were made hundreds of years ago, there is no alternative except to acclaim him as the most precise and most astonishing of all the prophets. Kemmerich gives many other convincing instances. He brings his history down to date, and shows on the evidence of Bismarck that the Austro-Prussian War of 1866 was foreseen. Mlle. Couedon of Paris predicted in the most minute terms the Paris bazar fire in 1897. In Messina in 1908 a hysterical Italian lady predicted the Messina earthquake and gave her doctor in advance a letter warning the King of Italy what was to take place. The doctor, thinking it a caprice, kept the letter, but gave it to the King after its prophecies proved true. Prophecy, concludes Kemmerich, is an unquestioned fact, in accord fully with nature. The superstitious people are not those who believe in it, but those who arrogantly imagine that all the laws of nature are fully explored and understood by mankind.

J. S.—The pioneer moving picture show of this city was on Franklin avenue, with two on Market street a few days later; year, 1906. Barkers stranded here after the World's Fair took up their well-learned cry of: "Hi-i-i-i-i! Going all the time! Never out and never over! Something doing on the inside all the time! Performance lasts an hour and you get it for half a dime!" The crowd on the busy street stopped to see what was "going all the time," just as the crowd stops to look at a dog fight or a drunken man. In 1907 Jacob Mogler, at a cost of $700, equipped an old black-top tent at Broadway and Bremen avenue as a "nickelodeon," as the popular name then was. The tent was 24 by 60 feet in dimensions and had seats for [illegible] persons.

F. D.—Americans who are always urging the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine are as trying to the patience as those who are forever subjecting it to distortion. The suggestion that there should be international action in Mexico has no more relation to the Monroe Doctrine than to the British North American act; yet newspapers and public men favoring the idea want to wipe out the Monroe Doctrine as the first step. In its briefest terms the Monroe Doctrine is a declaration against the extension of monarchy on this hemisphere. For many years we were content to let it go at that. Now, however, the Monroe Doctrine is any extreme view of overlordship which jingo or imperialist sees fit to take. Under the true Monroe Doctrine we stood ready to protect Latin America from the aggressions of Kings and Emperors bent upon conquest, not so much for the benefit of Latin America as for the safety of ourselves. Under the spurious Monroe Doctrine we have more than once undertaken to schoolmaster weaker nations, to relieve them of their rightful responsibilities and to bully friendly European Powers wronged by revolutionists and dictators. Joint action in Mexico can have no bearing upon the true Monroe Doctrine except to make it more binding. Joint action in Mexico would kill the false Monroe Doctrine in every turbulent Latin-American state and in this country also.—The World, New York.

Edith Cavell Execution Arouses Indignation

WORSE THAN A CRIME.

New York World: "It is worse than a crime; it is a blunder," said Fouche of Napoleon's summary execution of the young Duc d'Enghien. The action of the German military authorities in Belgium who executed Edith Cavell, an English nurse, belongs likewise to the class of blunders that are worse than crimes.

German psychology in the Cavell matter is as inexplicable to us as German psychology in the Lusitania matter.

What everybody who is not a German knows is that the Germans might better have lost an army corps than to have shot this woman for the comparatively trivial offense that she committed. Her blood will blot the honor of the German army and the German Government for generations to come. It is one of those stains that cannot be erased, and centuries hence German historians will be apologizing for the ruthlessness of a military commander who was unable to see that common sense is mightier than the letter of military law.

INEXCUSABLE.

Philadelphia Record: Apropos of the elaborate effort of the German Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs to justify the killing of Miss Cavell it may not be out of place to say that it is 300 years since Great Britain, though engaged in innumerable wars, put a woman to death for such an offense. In our own Civil War there is no record of a woman being executed on such a charge, though feminine spies were frequently caught. It will be hard work to convince the world that Miss Cavell, who was not a spy and who, in following the dictates of a warm and generous heart, simply assisted in enabling a few men to cross the Belgian border, committed a crime that was justly punishable by death. No other country would have been guilty of such brutality, and in the formation of international public opinion it is sentiment of other countries, not the legal sophistications of German bureaucrats, that counts.

THE QUESTION OF LEGALITY.

New York Globe: The Zimmermann defense is supremely impudent in its insistence on the letter of international law. The presence of German troops in Belgium is in violation of international law. So the German Chancellor has stated. It is also known to all that by the levying of contributions, the seizure of private property, the administering of collective penalties, the forcing of Belgians to do military work for their conquerors, the Germans in Belgium have flouted and set aside military law. The German Government has enforced strictly the part of the law that requires certain conduct from the Belgian people, but ignores the part of the law that lays reciprocal obligations on the German army of occupation. Under these circumstances, for the German Under Secretary, in the spirit of a hair-splitting lawyer, to argue the legal aspects of the Cavell case is ridiculously insincere.

WHAT WILL THE KAISER DO?

Indianapolis News: It is not too late for the Kaiser to repudiate the act, and to degrade the men guilty of it. It is not too late for the Germans, as far as they can get a hearing, to denounce the shooting, and to make it clear to the world that men who will do such a thing do not represent them. That would be small amends, indeed, but it would do something to redeem the reputation of the German people.

A HORRIFIED WORLD.

New York Times: Germany has brought herself into a position where the world turns from her in horror and dreads nothing so much as the success of her arms. She has instilled so deeply in the minds of her people the idea of power, of supreme military power, that she has deadened them to the finer and nobler feelings of humanity. Man's love of life, the chivalric sentiment of man for woman, tender consideration for the helplessness of age and of youth, all these she has maimed and bruised and effaced with her mailed fist, all these she has trampled under foot. The executioners of Edith Cavell but carried out the spirit and purpose of the imperial military policy. They did their part in the working of the brutal, monstrous engine. It is because of this spirit, of these purposes, of such deeds as that at Brussels that Germany has lost her standing among civilized nations devoted to the ideals of humanity and of progress, it is because of these things that the prayer goes up in all the peaceful countries of the earth that her enemies may triumph, to the end that such a ruthless rule may not be established in power upon the earth.

TO FRIGHTEN THE WOMEN.

Chicago Herald: Dr. Zimmermann declares that the motive of the deed was the same as for such achievements as the naval bombardment of summer resorts and torpedoing the Lusitania.. At least he uses the same words used to justify these killings of women and children. "Once and for always," he says, "the activity of our enemies had to be stopped, and sentence has been carried out to FRIGHTEN those who might presume on their sex." There is disclosed the dullness of the Prussian military caste—its entire failure in the imagination that gives understanding of other peoples.

Such deeds do not "frighten" anybody outside of Germany, whatever may be their effect there. They frighten women least of all. Men they enrage; women they inspire to seek to share what they regard as Edith Cavell's crown of martyrdom. Americans have never known government deaf of the voice of chivalry toward womanhood. Englishmen have not known it since a James II and a Jeffreys sent the Lady Alice Lisle to the gallows for helping fugitive "rebels" to hide. That was just 230 years ago. Those years measure the difference of viewpoint.

WILL SHOCK GOOD GERMANS.

New York Sun: In spite of the manifestations of "frightfulness" with which the record is already crowded, we are not willing to believe that chivalry to women is dead in the German army. To the rank and file Von Bissing can never be a hero. Doubtless his monstrous deed will be justified; nevertheless, it will sicken the soul of many an honest German officer. * * * Indeed, to all Germans who have not been corrupted by Prussian militarism, the hurried, stealthy shooting of hapless Edith Cavell in the dead of night, behind prison walls, will always be a bitter memory. More than all the counts in the Bryce reports of atrocities in Belgium it will weigh in the scale of judgment, for it has struck the world with horror.

CREATED A HEROINE.

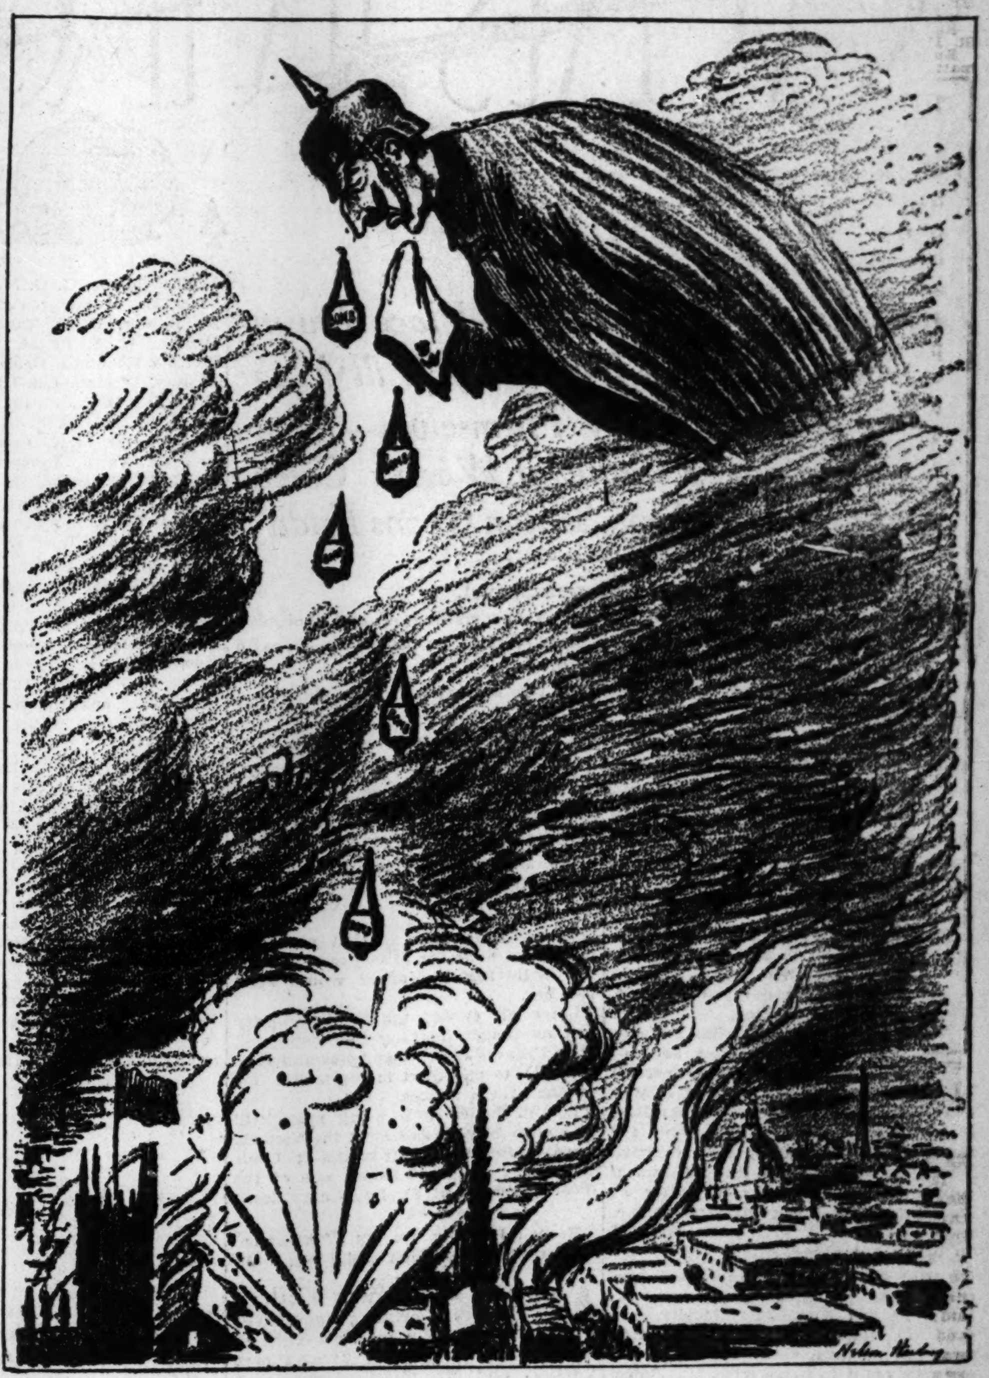
Detroit Free Press: The chorus of protests is so general that we believe there is justification for the conclusion that according to their own standards the German officials responsible for the execution have been guilty of a grievous error, have committed an action which is directly harmful to their country, without any compensatory good. They have fallen into a tactical mistake and this in time of war is worse than moral wrong. In the excitement of the time they may have created a heroine for the enemy who can easily be elevated to the position of a British Joan of Arc.

MORAL BLINDNESS.

New York Evening Post: That the original blunder of invading Belgium should now have been capped with the huge mistake of putting to death an English nurse in Belgium shows how slow the German high command is to learn moral lessons. And the fact that the Kaiser has quickly pardoned other women convicted of the same offense as Miss Cavell, at once places in a ghastly light the haste and secrecy of her execution—as if the Military Governor feared that his victim might escape if there were a moment's delay—and puts the finishing touch to a deed which, in addition to being barbarous, was eminently stupid.

"COLD-BLOODED MURDER."

St. Joseph News-Press: This act on the part of the German authorities in Brussels has shocked the world and will stick forever in the craw of humanity as a violation of even the cruel ethics of war. It was wanton and fiendish. The victim was a nurse, engaged in merciful work, and the offense for which she was killed was at the worst a work of mercy. Her execution was murder. It was a crime so singularly atrocious and cold-blooded that its effect will go deeper even than the wholesale murder committed by the sinking of the Lusitania.



WEEPING WILLIAM.

Grave Nature of the Fay Bomb Conspiracy

IS BERLIN INVOLVED?

Chicago Herald: Fay and his accomplice, disclosed and undisclosed, are believed to be more or less connected with criminal enterprises which include a long list of mysterious fires and explosions in munitions plants, attempts to burn at least 17 vessels leaving American ports, train and bridge wreckings, systematic forgery of passports, the attempted assassination of J. P. Morgan and several actual murders.

Should Fay be found to have told the truth about his alleged financing by the German Government it will be necessary, of course, for Washington to use some very serious language to Berlin.

WHO'S BEHIND FAY?

Detroit Free Press: Though it doesn't seem clear that anything will be proved against either the head of the Germany embassy or his subordinates, or against anyone except Lieut. Fay and his immediate helpers, nearly everyone will be convinced this newest of German underground activities in the United States is not and cannot be the isolated, detached and semi-private effort those under arrest declare it. Fay's scheme is altogether too much of a piece with the strange happenings that took place at the Sayville wireless station before the Government took charge of it, with the systematic espionage over munition ships for the benefit of German submarine commanders, with the planting aboard ships of infernal machines, and with those widespread efforts to stir up industrial troubles which culminated in the Dumba incident.

The Fay plot is plainly a new link in a long chain of events. Someone in this country is superintending the forging of this chain, but whether the director-in-chief is Ambassador von Bernstorff, Capt. Boy-Ed or some individual so far unknown, seems impossible to find out. Apparently the most that can be done is to head off each successive effort as it develops.

TIME FOR VIGOROUS ACTION.

Washington Times: Seemingly Washington has been disposed to give our Germanic friends all the chance in the world to reform; to realize that they were watched; that their program was known; that it was certain to be pretty thoroughly futile as to real results, and that it might bring an impossible stress in international relations. But it has all been without effect. The same sort of plotting has gone steadily on; apparently the caution and amiability displayed by the American authorities has been mistaken for weakness and cowardice about meeting the real issue.

The time has come for vigorous and direct action. The country is being progressively humiliated. We are getting to look thoroughly pusillanimous to the world at large. There will be no excuse for claiming the respect of anybody, if our authorities do not presently take steps to end this kind of thing. Only a policy of sheer and contemptible cowardice could permit such things to go on.

"A FOUL CONSPIRACY."

New York Evening Telegram: Twenty ships sailing from these shores have been victims of mysterious fires and explosions at sea. A dozen arms factories and powder plants have been as mysteriously blown up. This is the kind of work this nest of conspirators was equipped for.

One line leads from them to the man Holt, alias Muenter, who committed suicide after planting a bomb in the Capitol at Washington and shooting J. P. Morgan.

Another line leads direct to Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. von Papen, who stand before Count von Bernstorff.

It is time to show that we are not the effeminate race alleged by Herr Edward Meyer. He says: "Germany must now forever cease attempts at friendship with us." So be it, but she must be careful how she goes about it.

"AN UNSPEAKABLE NUISANCE."

New York Tribune: If the people of this country are too afraid of the German-Americans to abolish an unspeakable nuisance, if the politicians are too concerned about elections to think about national safety, then the only honorable and honest thing to do is to stop talking and confine our activities to praying that we may escape what we dare not openly attack. Meantime, there is an admirable opportunity to demonstrate our true devotion to valor and independence by denouncing the Greeks and Rumanians for their pusillanimous course in refusing to sacrifice their lives and their national existence for the sacred cause of human liberty.

HURTS THE GERMAN CAUSE.

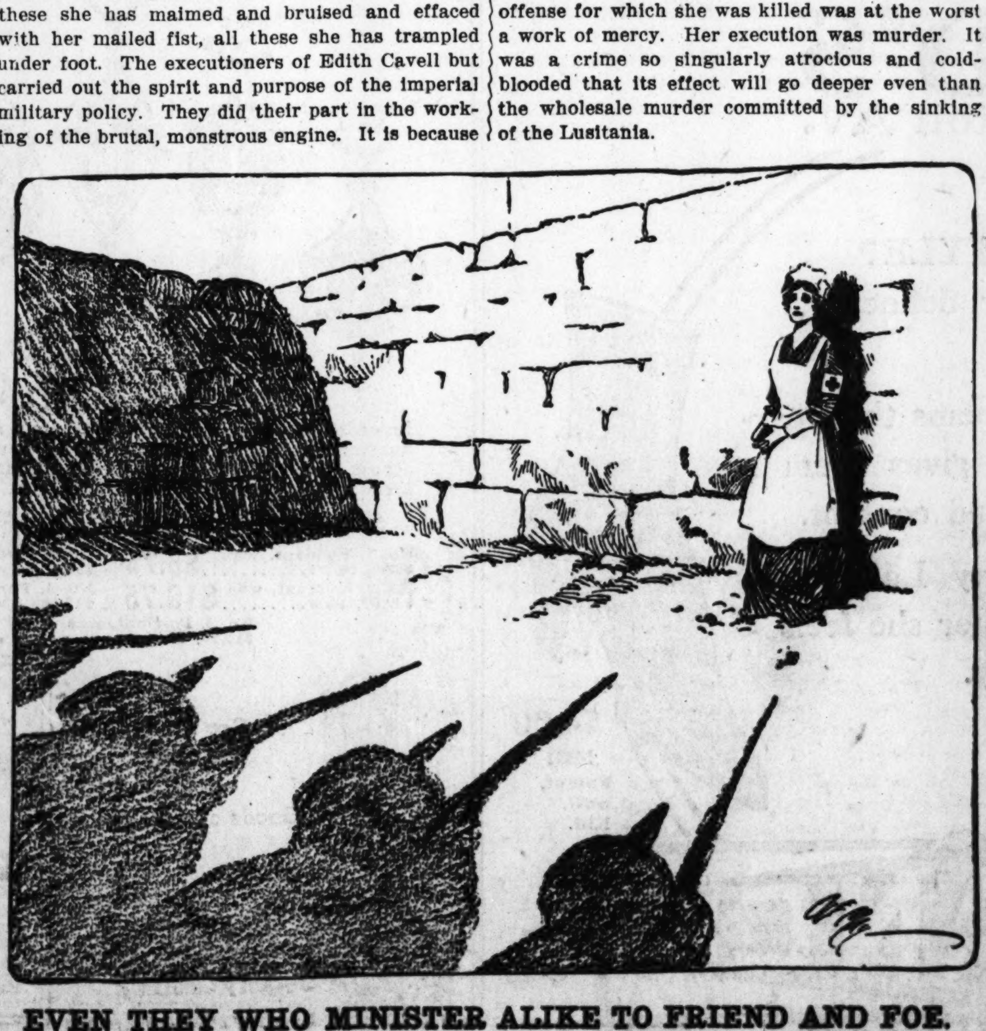
New York Evening Post: The readiness of Fay to tell all is a suspicious circumstance in regard to his story, but wherever the truth lies, the whole incident is gravely unfortunate. The attitude of Germans, and some German officials, in this country has been wrong from the very beginning. It makes no difference whether they believed that the United States was unfriendly to their country and working for the allies or not; that gave no one the right to violate our laws and to undertake to extend the warfare of Europe to our country, and that is just what has been done. We believe that when all the facts of which the Government is now in possession are laid before the American people, a great wave of indignation will sweep over the land. That there could be nothing more stupid and hurtful to the German cause than the activities of these conspirators is so obvious to any person of sense that the wonder of it increases day by day.

GIVE THEM A LESSON.

Louisville Evening Post: Let Lieutenant Fay be fairly tried by courtmartial in accordance with the rules governing Germany's courtsmartial. If guilty let him be shot before an appeal for clemency can reach the President. That is the only way—according to German logic—to break up the gang of rattlesnakes.

But we are told we are not at war with Germany. We had forgotten. Remembering the Lusitania, we felt we had been at war with Germany since last May.

Then try him and his associates for accumulating stores of dynamite and other materials destructive of life and property; try them for conspiracy to commit murder; try Bernstorff, Boy-Ed and Papen for having a guilty knowledge of this damnable conspiracy, and failing to reveal the crime to the police. Teach these diplomatic representatives of the German Empire that the rules of law governing its forces in Belgium and its allies in Armenia have aroused the American Government to its peril, and it will no longer harbor and protect men disguised as diplomats, who plot to destroy American lives and American property.



EVEN THEY WHO MINISTER ALIKE TO FRIEND AND FOE.

New Jersey's Suffrage Vote Analyzed

Philadelphia North American: Barely a week has elapsed since the decision on woman suffrage in New Jersey, but that has been long enough for the true significance of the event to be realized and for much of the exultation of the anti-suffragists to evaporate. The more the result is examined the less reason appears for regarding it as the overwhelming victory which those forces celebrated when the figures were announced.

The first fact which arrests attention is that very nearly 75 per cent of the presidential vote of the State was polled at this special election—313,120 out of 420,000. This in itself indicates a remarkable public interest, but certain obvious factors make it still more impressive.

The organized party vote is constant, and is always against the organizations, and in this case represents suffrage sentiment.

Of the votes cast, nearly 42 per cent were for equal suffrage. The majority against the amendment was 50,562; this looks imposing, until it is realized that a change of a few more than 25,000 votes—one in 12 of the total—would have established the principle in one of the 13 original states.

But it is in the circumstances surrounding the contest, rather than in the vote polled, that one must seek the real significance of the result.

This was the first time the question had come to issue in New Jersey. Equal suffrage was not indorsed by either of the great political parties. Such organization as the women had was thrown together by them in a few months.

Opposed to their hastily constructed machinery was a trinity of powerful forces—the highly efficient organizations of the Republican and Democratic parties and the liquor interests.

New Jersey is one of the most conspicuous of the "black" states on the anti-saloon charts, and might be counted upon always to develop aggressive opposition to any movement threatening the rum traffic. But just now the promoters and allies of the business are on the defensive everywhere, and they naturally went to extraordinary lengths to preserve one of the citadels of their power.

Moreover, this question was not decided like an ordinary political issue, in the determining of which all advocates and opponents have an opportunity to be heard. The women could only present their case; they had no actual part in rendering the verdict. They were even at the disadvantage of having no representation on the election boards; and the recent ballot scandal in Pittsburg shows what these bodies can do when the members are not divided on a partisan issue.

It was under these circumstances that equal suffrage received a vote of 131,279 at the first test—more than the entire vote cast in a presidential year in Maine, more than twice as many as are cast in Vermont.

The result, nevertheless, was a great disappointment to many of the campaigners, because they had been misled by extravagantly optimistic reports. There is no doubt that the drift of sentiment was favorable; but there is a wide gap between sentiment and effective expression of it.

Even so, a change of only 8 per cent of the ballots would have bridged it. The failure is easily accounted for by the difference in the efficiency of the veteran and volunteer organizations. Such losses are inevitable when it is necessary to translate sentiment into actual votes in the face of machinery controlled by antagonistic interests.

Already the early jubilation of the opponents of equal suffrage has subsided. The liquor forces still comfort themselves with the thought that they will not have to make this costly fight again for five years. But they are uneasily conscious that their victory was superficial and indecisive.

The advantage really lies with the other side, because the result infallibly points to final triumph. The movement is destined to advance; even its most determined antagonists admit that it can only be delayed, not turned backward.

An Off-Year in Politics

Louisville Evening Post: This is distinctly an off year in politics. There are no important vacancies to be filled in Congress, and only four states are to elect Governors a week hence and only one large city a Mayor.

The states to elect Governors are Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts and Mississippi. The real election in Mississippi was at the primary, and the voting on Nov. 2 will be a mere formality. In Massachusetts the Progressives have united with the Republicans, and, as the Democrats are in a minority in that State, the election of a Republican Governor is probable. The conditions in Maryland are very much the same as in Kentucky. Both States are normally Democratic, and in both States the shrewdest observers predict the success of the Democratic tickets, both elections, however, turning to a considerable degree upon State issues.

Philadelphia is the only large city where an important municipal election is to be held. The Penrose Republican ring has nominated one of its creatures for Mayor and a desperate effort is being made to unite independent men of all parties against him. The outlook in that city does not appear promising.

These are the important elections of the year wherein party politics enter, but in several states constitutional questions are to be voted on. New York is to vote on a new Constitution and also upon woman suffrage. Massachusetts and Pennsylvania will both vote upon woman suffrage. Ohio will vote upon a prohibition amendment. In the states of the Pacific coast a variety of constitutional proposals, most of them bad, will be voted upon.

The returns, as a whole, will give only scanty information as to the status of the national parties.

Ludicrous Incidents Taking Place During Rehearsals of Photoplay Will Make a Scenario All by Themselves—Many Marriages Feature of Week's Calendar—Symphony Season Opens Friday.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

IF the incidents that have taken place in the making of the photoplay to be produced by the society film stars were to be put into a scenario they would make another corking play.

Take one day as things happened in the heroine's family alone and you have a scenario.

Miss Mary D. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Jones' daughter, who climbs down a ladder in her bridal robes to run away with the bogus count, borrowed Mrs. Harold Bixby's wedding veil. In some way it was torn in rehearsal, so another was telephoned for in great haste. When it arrived, instead of being bridal veil it was maline—stuff that looks the same, but isn't. It is quite narrow instead of very wide and wouldn't do at all. So someone rushed downtown in an automobile to get another veil, while everything waited.

Whoever it was, was arrested for speeding—maybe it was Mrs. Wooster Lambert—"Quien sabe," anyway—and that further delayed matters. Finally the veil arrived.

Now in the meantime, Miss Frances Jones was over in another part of town on some philanthropic errand or social uplift work. When it was over she waited for the motor car Miss Mary D. had been using to come for her; but it never came. She returned via the Cass avenue limited and a number of other lines, arriving at her home in Westmoreland place, quite late for a girl unaccustomed to being out alone.

During this time Mrs. Jones was presiding at a meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Symphony Society, not dreaming that guests were arriving from out of town till about 5:30, when she received a message from Mr. Jones, who was going to meet them at the station in his car.

At that hour her dinner had to be rearranged and plans changed. She had been using her car, so that was why there was none for Miss Frances, each one believing the other would send for her.

Later all turned up at the charity ball as though nothing had happened, Miss Frances to sell cigarettes and Miss Mary D. to take part in the pantomime or one of the dances.

The photoplay now being made will be shown Nov. 19 and 20 at the Victoria Theater, for the benefit of the St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Home, one of the most deserving of St. Louis charities.

French Pleating Co., 704 Washington. Hemstitching; Buttons while you wait.

MR. AND MRS. ERWIN P. HILTS of 4624 Berlin avenue, will depart today for New York to see Mrs. Hilts' sister, Mrs. Pierre Cartier, and Mr. Cartier, who have arrived from France.

Mr. Cartier has been with his regiment at Cherbourg and is on sick leave. Mrs. Cartier has been nursing in a field hospital near there and also has been ill. They have come over to see their little daughter, Marian, whom they sent to this country at the breaking out of the war and who has been with another sister, Mrs. Bryson Delavan in New York.

Mrs. Cartier formerly was Miss Elma Rumsey, daughter of Mrs. Moses Rumsey of St. Louis.

Mrs. C. C. Hardcastle is starting a kindergarten dancing class. Information by phone. Monroe 999W.

THE symphony season will open with the first pair of concerts Friday afternoon and Saturday evening by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

THE marriage of Miss Helen Costello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Costello of 6170 Kingsbury boulevard, to Robert Baxter Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Brown of 3825 Connecticut street, will be solemnized Wednesday morning at 9:30 a'clock in St. Roche's chapel. The Rev. Francis J. Boyle, S. J., will perform the ceremony. Afterward there will be a breakfast at the home of the bride for the bridal party and nearest relatives.

Miss Bernice Brown, the bridegroom's sister, will be the only bridemaid, and Philip V. Brown, his brother will be best man.

The bride will wear a gown of ivory-tinted satin and tulle with a bodice of old rose point lace. Her veil will be simply arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms and will be caught to the long court train with clusters of orange blossoms. Her bouquet will be of lilies of the valley.

The bridemaid's gown will be of orchid colored taffeta with trimming of gold lace. She will carry a bouquet of orchids and sunburst roses.

Mr. Brown and his bride will go away to spend their honeymoon but just where is a secret. Upon their return they will be at home at 6146 Waterman avenue.

The furs and fur trimmings cleaned by Scott's are totally freed from ingrained soil, and given new life, new lustre and new satisfaction. Lindell 4460, Delmar 2946.

DURING the past week several interesting engagements were announced — Miss Dorothy Bakewell's to Page Nelson, Miss Frances Spink's to Edward H. Riesmeyer and Miss Emily Riddle's to Francis E. Fowler Jr.

Miss Bakewell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bakewell and a niece of Paul Bakewell. She is regarded as one of the most charming girls in society and is a fine pianiste.

as his name indicates, is a member of the colonial Pages, Nelsons and many others of distinction.

The marriage will be in the spring.

Miss Spink is the second daughter of Mrs. Charles C. Spink. She was educated at Mary Institute and at Ogontz College, and although never formally presented to society, on account of the death of her father, she is a favorite in her set. Mr. Riesmeyer is the son of Mrs. G. Riesmeyer of 3112 Hawthorne boulevard.

Miss Emily Riddle's engagement was announced at a luncheon given by her sister, Mrs. Philip Bond Foulke Wednesday. She is the daughter of Mrs. Truman Post Riddle and like her sisters, Mrs. Foulke and Miss Ethel Riddle, is very attractive. Mr. Fowler is the son of Frances E. Fowler, and a brother of Mrs. George Hellmuth.

We will dispose of all of this season's French and American Model Suits, Coats, Waists and Dresses at 33 per cent of regular price. Schumack Inc., 856 Century Building.

MRS. JULIA TURNER WATERMAN, who has been in this country since last summer has returned to Territet, Switzerland, to join her daughter, Miss Winifred Waterman, who remained abroad.

Mrs. Waterman was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Y. Worthington Jr., in Washington, D. C., most of the time, and went to Ashville for a while to visit an old friend before going back to Europe.

Mrs. Waterman came over to make the acquaintance of her new grandson, whose mother was Miss Adele Waterman, and who spent much of her time here before her marriage.

TWO of the many box parties at the benefit concert for Kingdom House at the Odeon next Tuesday night will be in honor of debutantes of the season, Miss Ann Collins and Miss Roberta Lewis. A large audience will hear Pasquale Amato of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Florence Macbeth of the Chicago Grand Opera Company in a most notable joint recital.

New Hats for receptions and Dancing. Sally Meagher, 801 Century Building.

THE studio reception which will be given Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon by members of the St. Louis Wellesley Club at Sheldon Memorial, promises to be a most charming entertainment.

A program of pictures by living models representing famous paintings by old Flemish and Dutch masters, will be given at both evening and afternoon affairs.

The proceeds will go towards fulfilling the pledge of $15,000 made by the St. Louis club as their share of the restoration and endowment fund being raised for the college all over the country.

Among the paintings which will be shown and those who will post for them are: Van Dyck's "Prince of Nassau," Miss Alice Butler; Ver Meer's "Woman With a Necklace," Mrs. B. E. Bradley; Ter Borch's "The Concert," Miss Lillian Grigg; Franz Hals' "Man With a Lute," Miss Josephine Little; Holbein's "The Writing of Erasmus," Mr. Edward Hart Jr.; Van Eyck's "Madonna from Ghent Altar Piece," Miss Bertha Doan; Maes' "An Old Woman," Miss Genevieve Apgar, and Rembrandt's "Old Woman," Miss Helen Koch.

Miss Geneva Crumb is president of the local club and Miss Elizabeth Hart vice-president, is in charge of the arrangements for producing the pictures.

When you need the services of a reliable cleaner and dyer, consult Schuck. You can depend on him. Lindell 4600.

MISS ESTELLE WATELSKY, daughter of I. K. Watelsky of 5592 Waterman avenue, and Ralph Kalish of Chicago were married Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the writing room of the Washington Hotel, which was decorated for the occasion. Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel officiated.

The bride's sister, Mrs. D. B. Goldman, was matron of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Lionel Kalish of Chicago, was best man.

The bride was gowned in white chantilly lace with over-draperies of tulle. The bodice was entirely of tulle, embroidered with seed pearls, and the court train which fell from the shoulders also was of tulle. She wore a cloud veil of illusion caught with pearls and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor wore blue silk over a petticoat of silver lace and carried Killarney roses.

After the ceremony there was a wedding supper in the dining room of the hotel where the table was laid for 30 guests, limited to the nearest relatives and friends.

Mr. Kalish and his bride departed at once for their wedding tour. When they return they will reside at 5763 Kingsbury boulevard.

MRS. SENTER GETTYS of 5335 Delmar boulevard will give a reception Nov. 15, to present her daughter, Miss Grace Gettys, one of the season's buds who made her first appearance as one of the maids at the Veiled Prophet's ball.

Miss Gettys was graduated last June from Mary Institute and although but 17 years old is making her debut this fall because most of the girls who were in her class are debutantes this winter.

Miss Sidney Emeline Boyle of 5035 Lindell boulevard has returned from Northfield, Mass., where she spent the summer.

"She was so attractive before she became stout," is frequently heard. See us before it is said of you. Reducing Machine Co., 750 Century Building. Write for booklet.

Mrs. Josiah Fogg of 3964 Westminster place, and her daughter, Miss Mary Fogg, have returned from Asbury Park and the White Mountains, where they have been since early summer.

A dancing club called Demois Danse Fortnightly, has been formed and the first dance will be given Friday evening at the Dance Studio, 4517 Olive street. The membership is made up of girls and youths from Central High School, Soldan, Washington University, Lenox Hall, Mary Institute.

WHEN Miss Katherine Gatch and Lockwood Hill are married Wednesday at Christ Church Cathedral Bishop Tuttle, the Rev. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's Church, and the Rev. Benjamin F. Kemerer, vicar of St. George's Chapel, will officiate.

The ceremony will be in the afternoon at 5 o'clock and will be one of the few big church weddings so far this autumn, most of the most notable of them having been at home and in the evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias S. Gatch of 5268 Westminster place and one of the most popular girls in the fashionable social set.

She will have her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hayward H. Gatch for her first matron of honor, Mrs. W. W. Wheeler of St. Joseph, Mo., for her second, and Miss Julia Bates will be maid of honor.

Besides there will be two bridemaids, Miss Virginia Goodbar, who will marry Albin Kelsey Schoepf of Cincinnati on Nov. 20, and Miss Anna Potter.

Little Nelson Burnes, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kennett Farrar Burnes and a cousin of the bride, will be ring bearer.

The bridegroom's brother, Walker Hill Jr., will be best man, and another brother, Maury Hill, will be one of the groomsmen and the rest will be Hayward H. Gatch, Nelson B. and Calvin Gatch, all brothers of the bride, Dr. Hayward Post, Howard O. Simon of Chicago and Chester Curtis of Michigan.

Immediately following the ceremony there will be a large reception at the Gatch residence.

The bridegroom is the eldest son of

Suit Style—Suit Supremacy

SUCH WEALTH of Suit style—such kaleidoscopic renewals of style originality as you find here every day in the year, is not possible in a store that has a small Suit business. Nor is it possible in a store except where specialization is the keynote.

It is only with years of specializing—getting right down, close to the women of this large community, in their Suit requirements, that we are in a position to point with justifiable pride to our Suit supremacy.

An Event for Monday.

High-Class Fur-Trimmed Suits

at $45 and $55

A Suit Trimmed With Fur Is Necessary This Year.

Not merely fashionable by choice, but by decree—literally a necessity—the Suit trimmed with fur is seen on every hand. Every fabric and every color is trimmed with fur, and every kind of fur is used, with beaver, Hudson seal, skunk, opossum, or raccoon as chief favorites, and broadcloth and velvet as the fabrics of first choice.

Our Suits at $45 and $55 are specialized for distinction. They are reproduced with faithful fidelity after foreign models—embodying the French and Russian ideas—the ripple coats, high collars, etc. They are made of broadcloths, velvets and other fine fabrics, in every fashionable tone of color.

They are specialized for price—and women who have shopped extensively tell us that every Suit, at the price, has many more dollars of value in it than they have found anywhere else,

(Third Floor.)

More Fur-Trimmed Suits at $16.75

Every day, as fast as these Suits go—and they go very fast—new styles come in to fill their places. The assortment for Monday will be very interesting—nearly 400 Suits in more than a score of models.

Broadcloths, gaberdine, wool poplin, corduroy, whipcord, serge. A varietv of fabrics that should make selections easy—and in colors, you'll find that part just as complete. Besides fur trimming there are scores of braid-trimmed and plain-tailored models. All sizes.

High-Class Coats

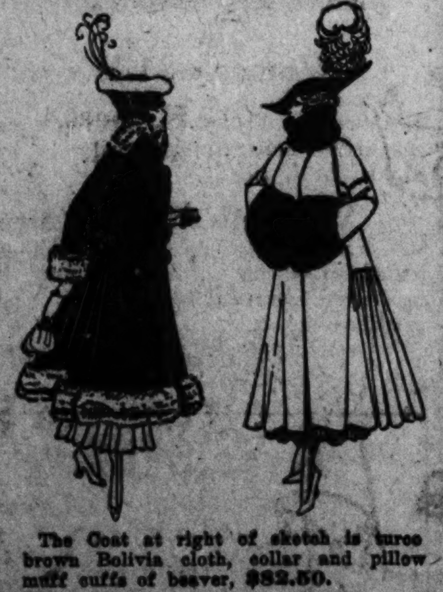
$49.50 and $59.50

Wonderful Coats, these, in both style and value. Fur trimmed, velvets and plushes, in a score of up-to-the-minute models—¾ and ⅞ lengths. Full ripple, full belted or semi-belted; chin chin, choker or full collar of beaver, natural raccoon, skunk-opossum or badger. Some have a border of fur at bottom. Peau de cygne or Skinner satin lined.

White Chinchilla Coats

Special at $7.95 and $13.50

A splendid variety of these smart, practical Coats, in all white or white with overplaid. The high school and college girl should not be without one for the various field day occasions. Sports and plain models. All sizes.



The Coat at right of sketch is turco brown Bolivia cloth, collar and pillow muff cuffs of beaver, $82.50.

The one at left is of velvet, trimmed with genuine raccoon; price, $52.50.

Our 10th Anniversary Sale

We began business in St. Louis just ten years ago this month—when styles meant as much to women then as they mean now. We have grown from a small "shop"—until now we are the largest—and our friends say the "best-looking" exclusive specialty store in this city.

We should celebrate—and this celebration will take the form of "giving." We intend to "give" a portion of our profit in order to make new friends and keep the old. We have planned for weeks—we have been in the markets for weeks—we have had the assistance of manufacturers. Now we are ready. Plan to be here early. We want you to help us celebrate and we assure you of a "real treat." See today's Globe-Democrat for more details.

One Week's New Styles at the Bedell Fashion Shop

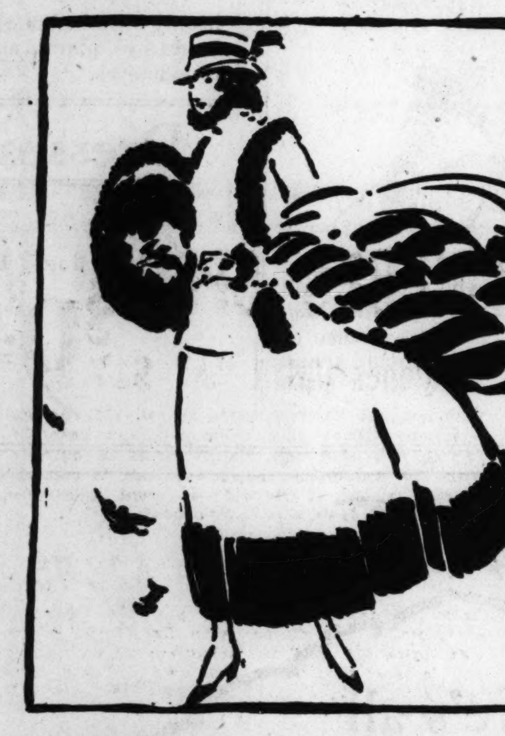
Washington Av., Cor. 7th St.

St. Louis

ARRIVALS are as frequent at the Bedell Fashion Shop as they are at the Plaza, or the Ritz-Carlton in New York, and quite as cosmopolitan. Whatever society has accepted during the past week as the proper exposition of the newest tendencies, you will find here Monday Morning.

Tomorrow is no exception. It is the very height of the "suit season," and as the designers have had their preliminary skirmish, these newer productions may justly be regarded as the styles that have come to stay.

In the Suit Salon



Lady Duff-Gordon has had her say about the correctness to be obtained and the economies secured in the Gallery of Suits and Coats, as well as in the Gown Salon.

This has been added to by the commendation of several of America's leading women of the stage, who are authorities on dress.

The very latest entries in fashion's lists will be found among the suits—with due attention to the increasing popularity of broadcloths, velvets and the English mixtures.

Many of the newer models show slightly plainer tailoring, with further development of the new silhouette—well fitted shoulders, longer coats and the Russian skating skirts.

How Fashion and Opportunity Collaborate on Tomorrow's $25, $30 and $35 Suits

With ample license for surprise, in view of the values offered daily at this Fashion Shop, tomorrow's offerings should cause a distinct sensation. If these suits were priced at $50 to $75, no apology would be necessary, for the styles are of that exclusive nature which usually demands a premium. At $25 to $35 they represent actual, intrinsic values, represented by richness of material and workmanship, on which fashion has collaborated without extra charge. Velvets, broadcloths, velours, velveteens, the smartest of smart mixtures—fur trimmed or plain—the authentic things in every respect.

The Growth of an Idea—Free Alterations

The new idea of "free alterations" has made a distinct impression. The very best class of customers, unaccustomed heretofore to this additional economy, are welcoming it. Bedell alterations are made by the highest grade fitters and tailors—the class of workmanship for which these same customers have paid top prices elsewhere.

Another Contract for Woolen Co.

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Announcement was made today that the American Woolen Co. had closed a contract for 1,000,000 yards of blue-gray uniform cloth for a foreign Government, the name of which was withheld. The company contracted several days ago to supply the Russian Government with 5,000,000 yards of uniform cloth.

"Count" Max Lynar Out on Bail.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Max Lynar, also known as "Count" Max Lynar Loudon, who has been in the Tombs since Oct. 13 on a charge of bigamy, was released today on a $10,000 bond furnished by a surety company.

TOMMY ATKINS IN ROUEN ANGLICIZING THE FRENCH CITY

Spreads English Even Down to the Newsboys and Introduces Food From Home.

SPENDS BRITISH MONEY

Five O'Clock Teas, Smoked Fish, Roast Beef and Cricket Are Innovations.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

ROUEN, France, Oct. 15.—Five o'clock teas, smoked fish, roast beef, boxing matches, cricket, golf, corned beef, marmalade, pickles, Tommy Atkins and the Salvation Army have so completed the Anglicizing of Rouen that Richard the Lion-Hearted himself would scarcely recognize it.

Since the second week of the war the streets have been full of khaki and from that time on the English language has encroached until French is rarely heard, excepting in the cafes from which Tommy Atkins is excluded by order of the General. Even the official communique is more English than French in Rouen. Ask a newsboy for a paper and he will inquire, "Daily Mail? Telegraph? Times?" Here and there a boy has a French paper, but seems to consider it scarcely worth mentioning.

Advertising in English.

If anyone has a building or an apartment to let, he advertises it in English and it is promptly taken. Officers, subalterns and privates of the auxiliary service lodge in town, while the fighting Tommies are camped just outside. The censor forbids mention of the number and discretion allows nothing more than the hint that there are enough of them to make a town of 120,000 French population appear to be English.

Rouen was the second English base in France after Havre; it was abandoned for Nantes during the march of the Germans toward Paris, but since the battle of the Marne the quays along the Seine where coal was formerly king, with wine as queen, are lined with piles of cases containing crackers, cheese, marmalade, corned beef and other essentials of British soldiers' fare.

Where there are no cases there are flocks of sheep and goats freshly arrived from the slopes of the Himalayas, to feed the Indian corps. Quiet crowds of French people watch the arrival and unloading of supply ships with about the same curiosity as that with which English tourists watched the movement of vast cargoes of wine before they owned the town.

When the Saint Patrick, the Saint Andrew and the Saint George steam into port these crowds watch the ambulances bringing wounded to the dock and as the hospital ships drop down the river wave they a feeling adieu.

Take English Money.

"Here we take English money," is announced in some places; unnecessarily, for English copper and silver circulate quite as freely as French money. Freely is the word for in the early days of the "occupation" the English were accused of "throwing money out of the window." Their expenditures were heavy, but gradually the people of Rouen have learned that though the War Office pays liberally, it is not without counting.

Tommy Atkins' realations with the French population have become familiar if not cordial. He did many things in the beginning to raise difficulties. The "side" brought by English officers particularly caused amazement, but that wears off and the men of the expeditionary corps have found many ways of dispelling first impressions.

Two hundred of them saved the bulk of the contents of a big warehouse destroyed by fire and were thanked in official order by the French General commanding the district. On Sunday afternoon many a "Tommy" may be seen showing the camp to a French family, generally taking charge of younger members. He is not always sober and is often over gallant, Kitchener's orders notwithstanding, and he is so conspicuous that every peccadillo is magnified several times, but while passing for a "terrible charmer," Tommy conducts himself generally so as to do credit to the Anglo-Saxon race and is regarded as a "jolly good fellow."

Work of Y. M. C. A.

The Young Mens' Christian Association, co-operating with the Salvation Army, is trying to keep Tommy straight. Its headquarters are the old "Folies Bergere," where instead of girls and liquors there are now hygiene drinks and high moral literature.

The organization of repose and pleasure in the British camp astonishes the French people. There is a circus tent requisitioned for the troops where there are moving pictures, acrobatic performances and shooting galleries, where the soldiers exercise their markmanship on the silhoutte of a German soldier as a target.

There is no social life in Rouen for the officers. Everyone is too occupied in hospital, or relief work. Some are even scandalized that at certain times in some quarters the town has the aspect of a city of pleasure for just outside in the Saint-Severe Cemetery there are 400 mounds, reminders of more serious things. There is a British soldier under each mound with tri-color cockades attached to the cross of stone above and flowers constantly renewed by the French people of Rouen.

PORTO RICANS BUY U. S. AUTOS

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 30.—There were imported into Porto Rico, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 543 automobiles, valued at $433,408, all from the United States. With the additions during the past year insular officials say there are approximately 2000 cars in the island.

In 1913 the number of cars imported was 323, valued at $406,440, and in the following year 291, valued at $320,680. It will be seen that there has been a marked decrease in the cost of autos, the average the past year being $800. There is no demand here for high-priced cars.

There's all the difference in the world between Hawaiian Canned Pineapple and the green fruit you call "fresh."

Hawaiian Canned Pineapple

is picked only when it is perfectly ripe and full flavored. It is packed immediately in its own natural juice—the genuine pineapple flavor is retained. There's nothing more delicious.

The big, tender slices are ready to serve for dessert the moment they come from the can. They may be used in countless ways—in pies, cakes, fritters, salads, puddings, ices, sherbets, etc. A medium-sized can is plenty for six people.

10c to 25c a can according to size of can and grade of quality—cheaper than it's ever been before. Just ask for a can of Hawaiian Pineapple.

NEWMAN ON SOUTH AMERICA

Travel Talks will Have Scenic and Trade Aspects.

A series of five travel talks, with South America as the general theme, will be given in the Odeon, begining Thursday night, Nov. 18, by E. M. Newman. His first theme will be "Brazil," that of Nov. 25, "Argentina;" Dec. 2, "Chile, via the Straits of Magellan;" Dec. 9, "Peru, the American Switzerland," and Dec. 16, "Bolivia, Costa Rica, Panama—Now."

Newman has given attention not only to the scenic attractions of the Southern continent, and the characteristics of the people, but to the comercial possibilities for Americans. He announces that he will tell business men some of the things they need to know for successful trade campaigns.

12 AMERICANS NOW IN FRENCH FLYING CORPS

Eleven Others Are in Training Near Paris Where Eight Courses Are Offered.

CLUB ROOMS IN CAPITAL

Possible Service In United States One Object of Those Who Enlist.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—The Franco-American flying corps is issuing a circular in which it describes the objects of the corps which are to assist France and to train Americans in military aviation for possible service in the American army should the occasion arise.

"What was the spirit that moves these young American citizens to cross the ocean and volunteer as French aviators?" says the pamphlet. "As one of them said, 'We wished to return the compliment which Lafayette and Rochambeau paid to us; we wanted to belong to that fine and sportsmanlike institution, the French Aviation Corps, and we felt that Americans ought to help a republic that was in a conflict where the liberty of all nations was at stake.'"

First American Volunteers.

The first American volunteers were Elliot Cowdin, James J. Bach, Frazier Curtis, H. G. Gerin, Bert Hall, D. G. Masson, Norman Prince, Andrew Ruel and William Thaw. They were trained in one of the first aviation schools in France, that at Pau: The candidates are put through eight classes. The first works with a short-winged machine called penguin. It has only 25 horsepower—not enough to lift it from the ground. The sole aim is to accustom the learner to regulate the motor and control the levers as in an automobile. No one can pass from one class to the next until he has shown his aptitude. The observance of this rule has avoided accidents, except in very small number.

The second class uses a 35 horsepower penguin also not sufficiently strong to rise into the air. Then a machine is given the pupil in which he can scarcely leave the earth.

If he does rise he skims along in straight lines. The fourth class is entrusted with straight line flying on a six-cylinder machine capable of rising about a hundred feet. The fifth contingent practices turning in an aerodrome, so that pupils become thoroughly experienced in wheeling to right or left.

The sixth division undertakes larger circuits at greater heights on 50-horsepower machines. Cross country flying and spiral ascents and descents to a height of 500 yards are the exercises of the seventh class.

Takes Pilot's Examination.

When all of these courses have been finished the pupil enters upon his last instructions, those that prepare him for his military pilot's examination. He must be able to fly for an hour at a time at a height of 6500 feet, fly triangularly across country landing at two different places returning to Pau within 48 hours. He must also make long distance flights to three different points and return.

The circular says: The Americans trained at Pau next spent some time at Le Bourget near Paris. From this spot there rise every hour numerous aeroplanes which fly over Paris both day and night. In the dark their searchlights look like shooting stars.

The Americans now number 12 men at the front and 11 in training. The corps has clubrooms in Paris in the Rue Ponthieu.

Germany Strives to Hold Her Trade In South America

tina are few and such as are established usually devote themselves to one special line, such as agricultural machinery or automobiles.

Hence it will be easily understood why Germany does not hesitate to go north for such merchandise as she requires to maintain local trade. Once the war is over, she will handle her own manufactures, at the same time making good use of any hints that she may have gathered while dealing with the United States. It is highly significant that there has already been founded a powerful German-South American economic union, with Herr Dernburg at its head. This gentleman may have been unfitted for the exercise of semi-diplomatic functions, but no one who knows his record, either as a man of affairs or as the first chief of the German Colonial Office, can deny his unquestionable ability. And it must always be borne in mind that in Argentina, or for the matter of that in any South American state, the consumer takes what the wholesale importing firms give him. Provided price and quality are to his liking, he recks little as to whether he is using French, German, British or American fencing wire, sheep dip, looking glasses or any of the thousand and one odd things stocked in a camp store. British and German manufacturers and shippers know this well and make their arrangements accordingly, but as yet the American trader does not recognize this cardinal fact.

He is content to see that exports to South America in general, and Argentina in particular, are moving; not realizing that such movement may be merely temporary, and even abnormal, certainly not to be taken as proof positive of the building up of a permanent and profitable connection with the real mainstay of all trade in this republic, the man in the camp.

British Held the Turks Too Cheaply In the Dardanelles

least, saved from all Turkish menace; second, Russian confidence and loyalty were assured; third, Italy was enlisted. So much the Dardanelles operation accomplished in the opening days.

Balkan Rivalries Baffle Diplomats.

The next step in the allied diplomatic campaign, which was based on the naval and military operations, was to enlist the Balkan States. Greece seemed certain to be had at the first moment. But promptly asked that her own integrity be guaranteed by her prospective allies.

This meant that they all publicly declare that Bulgaria could never hope to regain Cavala or Drama. Such a declaration would infallibly throw the Bulgars into the arms of the Kaiser, and it was the Bulgar who held the land gate to Constantinople.

In addition, Greece insisted that Bulgaria should not receive from Servia the lands west of the Vardar, which she claimed. Servia, too, fighting bravely against Austria and typhus, protested that she should be permitted to hold what her soldiers had won in two wars and were defending gallantly in a third.

But the allies, determined to enlist Bulgaria, asked Greece to surrender Cavala against the promise of Smyrna; asked Servia to give over half of Macedonia against Bosnian futures, as well as to give over Dalmatian hopes to Italy. Servia consented; Venizelos consented for Greece, but Constantine, loyal to the Kaiser and perceiving national hostility to the surrender of Cavala, balked. Bulgaria, for her part, was coldly uncompromising; she must have all, or she would, for the moment, remain neutral.

Athens meantime was frankly suspicious of Italy, which held the island of Rhodes and a portion of the Aegean archipelago, whose people were Greek. It was also suspicious of Italian designs upon Northern Epirus, also Hellenic by race, but marked out at London as a portion of that "autonomous" Albania which was the playground for Austrian and Italian ambitions.

Such was the situation in the Balkans—the political as contrasted with the military. The aim of the allies was to recreate the Balkan Confederation, reconcile the Balkan allies, who had quarreled and fought after their first victory and throw against Turkey and Austria the full weight of these considerable armies if the naval operations proved alone insufficient to open the road to the Black Sea and make possible the transportation to Russia of needed munitions.

The Turn of the Wheel.

From the inception of the plan, therefore, it was clear that, while Russia might be satisfied and Italy enlisted by mere preliminary operations, the tangle in the Balkans was such that only one thing could insure the enlisting of Greece and Bulgaria. This was a success. Unfortunately, success was certain immediately only if Greece or Bulgaria came in, perhaps only if both enlisted. With the possessor of Byzantium Bulgaria would have to make terms. Greek sympathies, apart from the crown, were with the allies, but the crown could postpone Greek participation.

There was then plain the peril of the thing. If the allied fleets failed, then allied diplomacy would fail with them. There was not the smallest real chance to reconcile the rival Balkan states; each insisted upon all of his claims at the expense of all his neighbors. The influence of the courts of Athens and Sofia was against the allies. In victory alone was there chance of a solution of the problem of the near East.

And the turn of the wheel went against the allies. First, the fleet tried and failed. It is the belief of most military and naval experts that the failure was due to the attempting of the impossible. These experts hold that a fleet without an army cannot do what was asked of the Anglo-French fleet. American military officers insist that a little more perseverence and the Straits would have been won. In this some British writers agree. As for Berlin, it insists that the Turkish ammunition was gone when the expedition gave up, and only retreat by the allies saved Byzantium.

In any event the fleet tried and failed. Several battleships were sunk by the Turks; the whole venture was abandoned; the fleets went back to Madros to await the coming of land forces and, as it turned out, that of German submarines. The Turks, warned of what was coming, went feverishly to work to fortify Gallipoli peninsula and when the armies did come they were ready. Did the allies from the outset expect Greeks to aid their fleets? Many believe this. Was the attack hurried by Russian request? This, too, is asserted. Such circumstances may explain the occasion, but they do not change the effect of the disaster.

The Portent of German Victory.

While the allies were preparing to try again the whole face of the war in Europe changed. In the west the disaster of the British at Ypres demonstrated that there was to be no allied "drive" for the spring. Hard on this came the beginning of that long Russian retreat that was to go from the banks of the Danajec to the Beresina, and from the outskirts of Cracow to those of Riga. The effect in the Balkans could not be exaggerated.

What actually happened was that in the spring Athens and Sofia concluded that German victory was far from impossible. Russian reverses would not, however, affect the situation if a successful allied expedition should force the Dardanelles by occupying the Gallipoli peninsula. Still neutral and still ready to enlist on the winning side the Balkans waited. But the Gallipoli land campaign promptly turned into a second failure. Instead of immediate victory there was at best a deadlock, a complete check. All summer long, while German guns made new echoes before Warsaw and Brest-Litovsk and finally Vilna, while western allied armies stuck to their trenches, the Turks held on.

Now the Greeks and Bulgars have both in recent years defeated the Turks. It was an incomprehensible thing that great nations like Britain and France should fail where they had succeeded. Less than three years separate Bulgar and Greek victories from allied failures against the Osmanli. Thus the situation in the minds of the Bulgars turned steadily in favor of the Teutons. Ferdinand hoped, but many of his advisers now believed, that the Austro-Germans were to win.

A King Against His People.

In Athens the sympathy of the whole public was with the allies. Venizelos was not shaken in his confidence of ultimate allied success by the long succession of allied defeats, but the King not only hoped but believed unhesitatingly that Germany would win.

In this situation Germany suddenly offered to Bulgaria all that she hoped for—Macedonia, Cavala and Drama, which were Greek, but for which Greece was to be paid by Albanian gains; she persuaded Turkey to resign a part of Thrace and promised more; she promised Mackensen and a victorious German army to cut the road through Servia to Sofia; she dangled before Ferdinand the lure of Constantinople, before Bulgaria the hegemony of the Balkans, Ferdinand took the bait. Bulgaria mobilized and the end was in sight.

Again Venizelos strove to enlist Greece on the allied side. Again there seemed the certainty, as in the days when the fleet went to the Dardanelles, that a Greek army would fight for the allies at the crucial moment. But again Constantine intruded. Greece having mobilized, ousted Venizelos. Greece would remain neutral. Relying on the promises of his brother-in-law, the Kaiser, the Greek King fell back upon the old policy.

Greece, to be sure, was bound to Servia by the treaty to help her against Bulgaria; so was Rumania; but here was the need to help Servia not against Bulgaria, but against Bulgaria with Germany, Austria and Turkey thrown in. Venizelos believed that it was the wiser policy to keep the faith, but the allies had no armies to give his policy force. Greek sympathy did not go to the length of dethroning a King whose caution might arise from Teutonic sympathy, but was solidly founded on patent national interests. Thus it was that allied diplomacy in the Balkans had been shipwrecked in consequence of allied defeat in the field, Bulgaria enlisted and Greece stayed neutral.

It now remains to summarize briefly

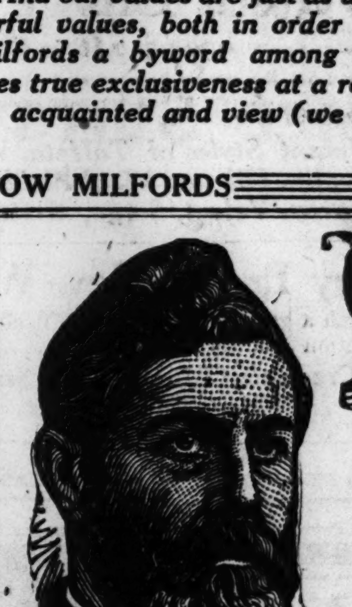
The Doctor's Advice
By Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Undersized" writes: "How may I safely increase my strength and weight?"

Answer—The best thing I could suggest to increase your strength and add to your weight several pounds of good healthy flesh is the use of three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets. These tablets taken with your meals cause proper assimilation of the food and in a short time you should increase in weight as many pounds as you wish.

"Traveler" says: "Since I had lagrippe this winter I am bothered with pains in my back and chills and fever. I am told that I have kidney trouble."

Answer—Your kidneys are possibly congested and inflamed. If you have headache, chills and fever and pains in the back, you need a good kidney medicine. Other symptoms are a puffiness under the eyes and swollen ankles. I always prescribe balmwort tablets and they give perfect satisfaction.

"Mrs. L." writes: "My blood is in bad condition. I am nervous and constipated. I always feel tired, but when night comes I cannot sleep. Have chills and fever."

Answer—The best thing I could prescribe for your condition would be three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). They relieve constipation, aid digestion and purify the blood.

"Hair Dresser" asks: "What harmless tonic may I use to promote hair growth and relieve the scalp of itching and dandruff?"

Answer—Secure a jar of plain yellow minyol and apply to the scalp after washing the hair. Rub in well and rinse out thoroughly. You will find this a most successful dandruff remedy and scalp vitalizer.

"Too Stout" writes: "I travel and I'm so fat I seem in my own way. Would like to reduce safely, 25 to 35 pounds."

Answer—Many people have reduced their weight successfully with the use of arbolone tablets. These may be bought at any well-stocked drug store with full directions.

"Traveling Man" writes: "I'm not now the man I was a year ago. I've lost my ambition and vitality. I'm unfit for work and pleasure, and find the social and business demands I once enjoyed are now irksome to me. I seem to have lost my lease on life. I'm only thirty-five, surely I'm not getting old. I feel bored and mortified at times, and worry and fret without cause."

Answer—Your symptoms indicate wasted nerve forces and a general run-down condition. You will find just the tonic, stimulant and builder you require in three-grain cadomene tablets. Thousands in your condition have been benefited by them.

"Miss Leila J." asks: "I would like to know how one can fill out hollows in the neck and develop the bust?"

Answer—You can accomplish your desire if you will obtain medicated vernolin and use it persistently and regularly as a flesh-nourishing massage. It requires time and thorough effort and vigorous patting and rotary massage with the finger tips, but results are sure if your health is good.—ADVERTISEMENT.

the history of the military and naval operations. The naval attack began in February and virtually terminated after the sinking of the Bouvet, Ocean and Irresistible, on March 18. It was not until April 25 the first troops of the expeditionary army began to land on the Gallipoli Peninsula. This promontory is perhaps 50 miles long, extending westward from European mainland, with the Dardanelles Straits to the south and the Gulf of Saros to the north. In his first report Sir Ian Hamilton compared it to a well-worn boot, and this figure makes it easy to describe both the main features of the battlefield and the progress of the conflict itself.

Walled Off by the Turks.

Once the main force was ashore it moved up the toe of the boot, stretching a line straight across the peninsula, but after having progressed for some three miles it reached the first strong defensive position, that of Achi Baba. Here a line of hills stretches straight across the peninsula, rising abruptly from the Gulf of Saros to an elevation of 400 feet and from the Straits of 500 feet. Midway across the peninsula and just east of the village of Krithia is the dominating hill of Achi Baba, 709 feet high. Against this position the allied forces moved on the first day after they landed, but they were halted there, and have been unable to make any substantial progress.

Meantime a second force landed above Gaba Tepe was designed to move south across the instep, thus arriving in the rear of the Achi Baba position and compelling the Turks to retire from it. But this force was no less promptly checked along the face of the Sari Bahr hill.

The third and last attack was made north of Sari Bahr, the landing taking place in the broad roadstead between Suvla Cape and the seaward slopes of Sari Bahr. The object was to seize the ridge of hills extending from Sari Bahr northeastward to the Gulf of Saros, marked on the map Sanafart and known in the reports by the name of Anafarta, to get hold of Sari Bahr and flow over the whole range down upon the roadway at the foot, which is the only landward line of communications of the Turks on the peninsula.

Future Policy Undecided.

More than 100,000 men were used in this attack; it was momentarily successful; Sari Bahr, the key of the peninsula, was occupied, but the Turks retook it, and continued to hold a portion of the crests of the Anafarta range. This operation took place in the middle of August. It lasted several days, but after terrific slaughter ended in a new check. And with the check the Dardanelles campaign fell to a deadlock. By Oct. 1 it had cost the British alone more than 100,000 casualties. The French loss is not known. For this enormous slaughter there was nothing to show except a few square miles of ground, some trenches huddled under the crests of the hill which the Turks still hold, a precarious position destitute of safe sea base.

Had the British been able to hold Sari Bahr they would have won the campaign; had they been able to push on after the first landing, they would probably have carried Achi Baba, still lightly held by the Turk. Twice success has just slipped through their fingers. Only military men can guess now whether the successor to Sir Ian Hamilton, who has been recalled, will be asked to try again or commissioned to withdraw his army from its perilous post, and take it to the mainland. This will be an operation fraught with incalculable peril. But so far as it is possible to see now, the military aspects have been a complete failure, and they have been responsible for the equally grave collapse of allied diplomacy inthe Balkans.

Never in history has the Turk done better than at Gallipoli. Nothing has been more marvellous in the military records than the Osmanli recovery between 1913 and 1915. Fighting on the very place through which he marched into Europe five centuries and a half ago, fighting with the devotion that made Plevna memorable in the last century, he has won the admiration of the whole world, of his British foes first.

German Princess Says Women Will Fight If Needed

everywhere I went, and decided that the only way to escape was to disguise myself as a Flemish peasant. I was acquainted with a traveling cheese buyer, who was starting from Antwerp with his cart toward Salliet, where I knew there were some Dutch smugglers always to be found who would see me to the frontier.

"The cheese merchant gave me a seat beside him on his cart and I passed as his daughter when we were stopped by the German sentries at the different posts along the road. My friend had to stop five miles from Salvliet and I walked the rest of the distance with an old basket over my arm half filled with straw to disarm suspicion. On arriving at the small town through which was my only way into Holland I met some of the Dutch smugglers, who were very kind, and hid me in a stable until it was dark, and then we started to tramp to Ossenbrecht, the first town in Holland, which I reached in 11 hours, thoroughly worn out.

"I shall never forget that experience as long as I live. Sometimes we had to crawl on all fours through the damp, long grass like Indians, and at others wade through swamps full of reeds, where the water and mud came knee deep. At last, when I was almost exhausted, we reached the barbed wire entanglements, and that was the most difficult of all, as the smugglers could not cut the wires. By the aid of stout poles they managed to twist them wide enough apart to drag me through. When I reached Ossenbrecht and realized that I was safe at last, I had some bread and milk and slept for 20 hours."

Mrs. Carter said that she could never have escaped from Belgium if she had not been able to speak Flemish fluently; it was the only thing that enabled her to pass the German sentries.

"The Germans," she said, "have undermined the Palace of Justice and the North, South and Luxemburg railway stations in Brussels and the majority of the hotels and restaurants formerly patronized by Americans are closed."

Mrs. Carter will remain for some time in this city at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Are You Too Fat? Reducing Outfit Sent Free

MY DEAR READER: With permission it will be my pleasure to mail a little 6-ounce package containing two very important free gifts, for the benefit of every over-fleshy reader of this publication (male or female) who writes a postal to me. If you, reader, are putting on fat or are excessively fleshy at the present time, then you certainly must have this free outfit, because it includes absolutely everything necessary to give you an immediate demonstration of what the very latest and greatest (1915) health and Nature methods are so marvelously accomplishing for stubborn obesity cases all over the world today. One of these free gifts is a neatly bound copy of my world-famed copyrighted "new thought" Treatise, telling in easy language the simple, ordinary things you can do for yourself and much you must NOT do when reducing. No other book is like it—every person over-weight should study it. The other gift is surely going to please and surprise you. It is a complete ready-to-use testing package of my wonderful true-acting reducing materials, the like of which you have never seen before. They are delightful to use and are meeting with tremendous favor by thousands upon thousands of sensible people everywhere, who have become thoroughly disgusted with old-style, harsh-dosing treatments that utterly fail and may do lasting harm. Your own doctor could not possibly object to my healthful preparation. He will tell you it may be positively dangerous to use old-fashioned methods of starvation, excessive sweating and continuous strong purging of the bowels with drastic, poisonous cathartics. How can a weak heart stand this enormous strain? Why take such chances when my absolutely safe, health-giving method is ready for you and waiting? There is no delay. It starts at once. I purpose it in every instance to put the system in a state of vigorous health, to vitalize weakened organs and strengthen the heart by perfectly reducing every pound of superfluous flesh on all parts of the body, double chins, large stomachs, fat hips, etc. You will never know until you try it. Remember, just a postal request will bring all to you absolutely free by return mail, in a plain wrapper. You can then judge by actual results and may order more of the reducing preparations later if you need them. Nature meant that you should have a graceful, symmetrical form, for it is this that lends a youthful, healthful appearance to those of middle age or older, while fat makes the young look old and feel unhealthy. Why not allow me to take full professional responsibility in your case? Let us see how much better and healthier I can soon make you feel and look. The test costs nothing. Now is the time to reduce your weight in Nature's own easy way. Please write your address plainly.

The love and grief of Mario live again in the

AEOLIAN-VOCALION

"THE PHONOGRAPH THAT CALLS FORTH HIDDEN BEAUTIES FROM YOUR RECORDS"

The great moment in La Tosca has arrived. He stands before the rifles of the soldiers; and Bonci, the great tenor, sings "The Stars are Shining"—the greatest singing effort of his life.

That song is a memory, a revery, a love-wrung, deep regret. He remembers the starlit nights, the love-meetings in quiet gardens. Emotion flows from him subtly, in exquisite, pulsating waves of beauty.

Ah, it is wonderful—this intense yearning, this deep, deep feeling expressed by Bonci—the most Italian of all tenors!

And how wonderful to think that even the subtlest shades of Bonci's great art can be reproduced—as never before—by the Aeolian-Vocalion—that draws the hidden beauties from your records!

For the Aeolian-Vocalion actually develops tone-subtleties of voice or instrument—tones too finely delicate to be developed from records "before the Vocalion came." So exquisitely delicate indeed are these tones that till now you have only heard them direct from the instrument or from the singer himself. On the Aeolian-Vocalion they come out clearly, sweetly, beautifully to the very last tonal tint, the result of the Vocalion's new wonderful sound-box.

You can make each record sound actually like a new one, too—subtly changing it each time you play it—just as Bonci does himself each time he sings.

Vocalions cost no more than do better grades of other phonographs. They range from $90 to $375. Initial payments are very small, and terms are as low as $5 a month. We will also make exchange arrangements for your present instrument.

AN INVITATION

WHY not prove the sincerity of this advertisement by bringing in your own records to our representative's store, playing them on the Vocalion, and hearing for yourself how the Vocalion actually draws out their hidden beauties?

This will entail no obligations on your part, and will be a most unusual and interesting experience.

Scenes for "Society Movie" to Be Taken at Country Club

Mrs. B. F. Bush Will Be Filmed by Wooster Lambert.

MRS. B. F. BUSH.

SCENES in J. W. Wooster Lambert's "Society Movies," which is to be given at the Victoria Theater, Nov. 19 and 20, for the benefit of the St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Home, will be taken today at the St. Louis Country Club. Society actor folk will be filmed at play as part of the passing show, among them Mrs. B. F. Bush of 30 Portland place, who is vice president of the orphan home, and wife of the receiver for the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain railroads.

It is expected that former Park Commissioner Dwight F. Davis, will do some golfing extraordinary before the camera. Miss Mary D. Jones, the heroine, will fall from a ladder and be rescued by the villain. Mrs. Arthur Stickney will be in a scene. Mrs. H. E. Happell will be one of the young matrons and Mrs. Henry Boeckeler will appear in the role of chaperone of a gay party of debutantes and beaux.

Lambert will film everything that pleases the fancy of himself and the playwright, William LeBeaume, and the stage manager, A. J. Lindsay.

RECOVERY OF $45,000 SOUGHT BY RECEIVER FOR FAILED BANK

Payment to Mississippi Valley Trust Co. by Arkansas Banker Held to Have Been Unauthorized.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co. was sued in the Federal Court yesterday by J. M. Davis, Banking Commissioner of Arkansas, who seeks to recover $45,000 alleged to be due Davis as receiver for the Bank of Rogers at Rogers, Ark.

According to the petition, the Bank of Rogers, a State bank, was formerly a private bank conducted by W. R. Felker, who remained a director after the new bank was incorporated in 1912. It is alleged that Felker borrowed $80,000 from the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., giving as security a note and 39 bonds of the Rogers Light and Water Co. and 48 bonds of the Kansas City & Memphis Railroad Co. When the Mississippi Valley Trust Co threatened to put Felker into bankruptcy in an effort to collect this loan, it is alleged W. E. Talley, president of the Bank of Rogers, paid $45,000 to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. without consent of the directors.

The Bank of Rogers closed its doors in July, 1914, and the suit is brought to recover the $45,000 which, it is alleged, was wrongly paid to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

GERMAN BANKER STATES HIS IDEA OF PEACE TERMS

Brother of Dr. Emil Simon Expects Indemnity and Guarantees for the Future.

RUSSIA TO BE STRIPPED

Never Any Fear of War With This Country, Owing to Its Unpreparedness.

Herewith is presented another letter written from a center of European war interest to a reader of the Post-Dispatch and by him sent to this paper in response to the announcement that it would publish such parts of letters so received as might contain interest for the general reader.

This letter was written, as were those hitherto published, without any idea on the part of the writer that it would be given to the public, and has special value as giving a more candid German view of the war and what is to follow, than would one sent for newspaper use.

Since the letter was received the writer has advised his brother by postal card that his son has left for the front in Russia and that the German Government has forbidden long letters to be sent to neutral countries.

Banker's View of War.

Letter received by Dr. Emil Simon of St. Louis, from his brother, a banker at Hamburg, Germany.

HAMBURG, Aug. 1, 1915.

I consider myself fortunate because I have my Walton with me one or two days every three weeks. Only very few parents are as fortunate as that, but this favor will cease soon. Four weeks ago he was ready to march to the front again, but was sent home on account of heavy nosebleeding and is on duty in his old garrison. He is wating for the final medical examination every day, and I do not know anything that will keep him at home then. He expects to attain the rank of an officer in a few weeks, which would be fine indeed, but still he is my only one and all I have in this world after Loptic's death.

How wrong are the views of your Government and so many thousand Americans about the true idea of neutrality. I am afraid a long time will pass before common sense will prevail, if it ever will, as the power of the almighty dollar can never be shaken in the United States. It surely must be a trying time for you German-Americans, and just now, when I am writing these lines, it will be more trying than heretofore. Perhaps it will be a long time of suffering—it all depends how long the war will last. When you wrote your last letter you were not yet acquainted with President Wilson's second note and you were afraid of war between Germany and the United States.

No Fear of War With America.

Unnecessary fear! It will never come to that, as your country is not prepared sufficiently. You could jump on poor Spain and rob her of her colonies, but now you cannot pacify Mexico. With your money you have incited the revolution against Diaz, you assist robbers like Villa and Zapata with your capital, but never carry out your promise to end the trouble and bloodshed. Either the money power does not want to or Wilson and his official family lack courage.

I trust you do not believe that we are afraid of America. Sure, we want to cultivate peace and friendship with the United States on account of the immense commercial relations and because so many millions of Germans have found a home there; but we do not take anything from you. I am satisfied America needs us more than we do you. Just now there is great dissatisfaction among the meat packers in Chicago and the cotton growers of the South. It would take me too far to relate all the things that you have to buy from Germany. For instance, you are entirely unable to manufacture chemicals and dyes.

Second Note Agreeable Surprise.

The second note, the one Bryan did not want to sign, was an agreeable surprise. We expected something bellicose, but it was very nice and will make an excellent impression here. Germany's answer tried to meet you half ways. Our proposals were as plain, simple and practicable as possible, and with a good will on your part another Lusitania case could not have occurred. You know the German proposals, and now comes a reply from Wilson and Lansing saturated with ill will, fanatically one-sided, and, notwithstanding some friendly phrases, so brusque that one might almost believe that rascal, Sir Edward Grey, dictated it. And what do you think, that Reuter published the contents—after all, the most important matter—several days before the work was handed to the German Government. One is nearly led to believe that the Department of State in Washington is part and parcel of the Foreign Department in London. If it pleases a single solitary citizen of the United States—and all England has to do is to hire an American sailor for a few pounds—to sail on an English steamer carrying millions' worth of ammunition to England or France, then we are not allowed to sink such a ship. Or if an American globe trotter takes pleasure in walking between the German and English trenches, then our troops must cease firing in order not to hit this American! Or we are notified an American journalist will visit Arras or Virden: then our heavy guns must be silenced—for, alas! a representative of the Evening So and So might be killed!

I hope our Government will not answer this note at all, or only after a long time. At any rate, Prof. Wilson's essay will, I hope, be pigeonholed in Berlin. Our diplomats who before the war for many years had got met with much success and were often incapable have learned in the hard school of this war and begin to be equal to the occasion at last. If we had treated England differently—with utter disregard, things would have come out differently too. Bismarck's hard fist was wanting. We all hope that our present Chancellor will grow to half, or at least to a fourth of Bismarck's greatness! We shall need an energetic man at the helm when the time for peace shall arrive, which, with the help of God, we hope will be in the near future. At any rate, Austria has such a man: Count Tirza, which is a blessing.

We have a kind of a holiday today; the anniversary of the declaration of war—not a day of noisy celebration nor of gladness, though we have sufficient cause to show joyfully our pride and our satisfaction, but each day of this horrible war makes us more earnest and more disciplined. No, it is a day of retrospection and quiet thinking. It comes back to our memory what immense amount of thanks we owe to our matchless army and navy, to the thousands who gave up their lives and the millions who are watching and fighting for us.

Future Generations the Main Thing.

The main thing when peace comes at last is that we have guarantees for the future. It is, I am sorry to think, a long way off, but even now a certain care makes us feel uneasy lest the pen should lose what the sword has won. Still, we hope our Emperor will never allow anything like that. Our sacrifices have been too great; money and other values may be replaced, but the brave men who died and those who are doomed to a soldier's death can never be replaced. It is therefore a pity that some people cry out against annexation now already. Our whole nation, with very few exceptions, will back up the Kaiser and would be horrified and perfectly wild if we would have the least regard for our enemies who have forced this war upon us with terrible ferocity.

Just now documents have been found in the Belgian archives, reports of Belgian ministers dating back to 1906, that prove beyond the shadow of a doubt how systematically this war was prepared, especially by England. Envy and

WHERE MUSIC IS SWEETEST

"What Wonderful Tone"

KRANICH & BACH
Ultra-Quality PIANOS and PLAYER PIANOS

TONAL excellence is the one great Piano essential. No matter how attractive an instrument may look, it cannot be considered desirable unless its Tone is of true artistic QUALITY. Tonal quality is exquisitely developed in the KRANICH & BACH.

Words are inadequate to describe its beauty, but it represents the same enchanting loveliness and unapproachable purity, as the tone of a rare old Stradivarius violin, or the matchless tenor of Caruso—a superb individuality that is instantly recognized by everyone, even the novice in music—no one can hear it without feeling that here, indeed, is the realization of tonal ideals — a masterpiece in which some inspired genius has attained exalted heights of Tone production far, far above the regulation Piano standards of today—beautiful beyond comparison.

Absolutely permanent, the wonderful richness of KRANICH & BACH Tone is the result of fifty years of striving for perfection by three generations of the KRANICH & BACH families of Piano Makers. KRANICH & BACH Pianos and Player Pianos are priced fairly and may be bought on convenient terms of payment. Liberal allowances made for other instruments taken in exchange.

avarice of England, hatred and revengefulness of France and rapacity of Russia are the causes of this terrible war, hence pity is out of place. They must not be allowed to catch their breath for decades.

Russia is the great danger of Europe, was so for centuries and will remain so unless her claws are clipped mercilessly. The Baltic provinces, Finland, Poland, Ukraine, should not even exhaust the list of her losses. France should lose Calais and Dunkirk as part of her coast against England and pay a few millions. What we are going to do with England I do not yet know, but Italy, the most despicable of the great Powers, shall be made very small indeed.

No one can blame us to write down these thoughts and wishes in private letters still it is better not to discuss them in the newspapers. That would cause but unnecessary excitement and, besides, it is poor policy to divide the share of the bear before it is killed. But at least we have almost killed the Russian bear. I presume you are posted about our successes and even old honest Reuter cannot help sometimes to tell the truth. The very British papers have become more truthful and print that up to the first of August we had bagged 1,750,000 of prisoners and 10,000 cannons and machine guns.

Losses Dumfound Allies.

The French and Italians are kept in ignorance until this day concerning their truly horrible losses. For her few months of war Italy has lost nearly 200,000 men. England and France are dumfounded and try to encourage each other. The English remain cool as ever and I believe they really do not dislike Russia to be weakened as much as possible. Their alliance is utterly unnatural and after the war their differences will be keener than ever before.

I close for today, and recapitulate. To Germany no pride, but quiet overconfidence. We trust implicitly in our Emperor and our able Generals east and west, and to our matchless army. Our industries are busy, although there is very little export, the sea being closed, which is hurting our native Hamburg especially. Our financial condition is better by far than the finances of the allies, as we manufacture our own ammunition guns, clothing, etc., which keeps our money at home, whereas our enemies are compelled to send millions, perhaps billions, in gold to America. The grand result of our two war loans is well known. There was nothing artificial or ficticous about them, like in England, and no foreign help. In September there will be a third loan, and nobody doubts its success. What a showing compared with France and Italy, where the capitalists keep their pockets closed, not to mention Russia, whose bankruptcy is imminent. Our crops are fine, and we contemplate the future with confidence and trust in God.

After Warsaw, Calais and Paris! With this glad hope, I send my true love. Your brother, MARCUS SIMON.

DR. HILLIS AND FERGUSON SIGN ARBITRATION AGREEMENT

Plymouth Church Pastor and Business Manager Brought Together by Clergymen Friends.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, the pulpit once occupied by Henry Ward Beecher, and Frank L. Ferguson, former president of the Board of Trustees of the church, today signed an agreement to arbitrate all matters at issue between them.

Chief of these matters was a demand by Dr. Hillis for an accounting of his business ventures for several years, the books and papers relating to which, it was charged, had been retained by Mr. Ferguson, Dr. Hillis' business manager of several years. Discussion over this has resulted in the filing of a libel suit for $50,000 damages against Dr. Hillis by his nephew, Percy D. Hillis.

Dr. Hillis and Mr. Ferguson were persuaded to adjust their differences by two clergymen who long have been close friends of the Plymouth Church pastor.

ILLINOIS SUFFRAGISTS ELECT MRS. HARRISON M. BROWN

Association Tables Resolution Pledging Support to Universal Peace Movement.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Harrison M. Brown of Peoria was elected president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association at its closing session here today to succeed Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, and others who had been placed in nomination for office also were elected. Nine directors, chosen from 16 candidates, were Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, Chicago; Miss Katherine M. Porter, Freeport; Mrs. Holleway McClung, Monmouth; Mrs. Albert H. Schweizer, Chicago; Mrs. Charles E. Nagely, Chicago; Mrs. Mary E. Busey, Urbana; Mrs. Carrie Alexander Bahrenburg, Belleville; Mrs. Lou M. McGraw, Glencoe, and Miss Kate Adams, Chicago.

A resolution pledging the support of the State association to the universal peace movement was tabled after a lengthy discussion in which the retiring president said that while the association was for universal peace it could not indorse a resolution of this nature because it had no bearing on suffrage.

Three additional resolutions were adopted. They were that no meeting of the State association should be held without the display of the American flag; that the results of the investigations of the Federal Industrial Relations Committee be made public and that the proposed Susan B. Anthony suffrage amendment to the national constitution be approved.

KREISLER TO USE GUARNERIUS VIOLIN AT HIS RECITAL HERE

Instrument Once Was Property of Great Wilhelmj—He Also Owns a Stradivarius.

For his recital Nov. 9 at the Odeon, Fritz Kreisler, the violinist will use his violin made by Josepf del Gesu, which formerly was the property of the great Wilhelmj. This Guarnerius is one of the finest instruments in existence and it would be difficult to compute its value in dollars and cents. It is a large instrument with a full mellow tone charatceristic of its kind. Kreisler also has a Stradivarius which he uses mostly in smaller recital halls. Another famous violin is his Gagliano, the work of one of the earliest and most famous of the Italian violin makers who flourished in Florence in the first half of the seventeenth century.

As a violinist Kreisler is held by many critics to be the greatest in the world and is a fascinating figure in music. Few artists of any time have so held the affections of the public. Despite the fact that had he not been one of the greatest violinists, he would have ranked supreme as a pianist, that he excelled in his study of medicine, in painting, that he is a linguist, speaking French, Russian, English as easily as he does his native German tongue, that he has composed exquisite music for the violin, discovered the wonderful literature for the violin that the seventeenth and eighteenth century Italian composers wrote in such quantities, that he has won renown on two continents, he is notable most of all for his modesty of demeanor and his artistic sincerity.

For his recital Kreisler will play compositions of Handel, Hartini, Viotti, Godwosky, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Chopin, Chaminade-Kreisler, Dvorak-Kreisler, Granados-Kreisler and several of his own compositions, the closing number being his much admired Caprice Viennois.

The Order of the Day

An Eye Bath

The Latest Thing in Hygienics

Have you given your eyes their morning bath?

That's what everybody is doing nowadays—doing it because they like to be clean; and there's no such thing as being thoroughly clean unless the eyes themselves are clean—well-groomed.

Washing around the eyes and on the shut lids doesn't cleanse the eyes—the eyes themselves need their morning bath just as much as your teeth and mouth do.

The Sanitol eye bath is a joy while you're taking it and it is a freshening up process that you'll delight in after taking it. Just think of washing all the sleep out of your eyes in the morning and washing all the day's dust and work-weariness out of them in the evening. It is the comfort of cleanliness intensified.

Besides the Pleasure of it—There's the Health Side

If any part of your anatomy needs its daily bath your eyes themselves do.

The reason is obvious.

A moist surface will collect more dust and dirt than a dry one—yet you bathe your skin which is comparatively dry and neglect bathing your eyes which are moist.

Again—mucous membranes are more readily attacked by germs than is the skin. The surfaces of your eyes are themselves mucous membranes. Keep them clean with Sanitol Antiseptic Eye Bath and you're very materially lessening danger of inflamed or sore eye troubles, such as are carried by contagion, infection or dirt.

SANITOL ANTISEPTIC EYE BATH

is needed for your daily toilet—it is cleansing, soothing, refreshing and antiseptic. It is harmless as fresh air or pure water—contains no "drugs" or harmful ingredients—it is not an "eye-water" nor an eye "medicine"—it does not pretend to cure any eye disease or any defect of vision.

It is just purely and simply a bath for the eyes which by virtue of being cleansing and possessing mildly alkaline, astringent and antiseptic properties will keep your eyes in a fresh, healthy state on the same principle that Sanitol Tooth Powder or Paste helps to preserve tooth health.

This little eye cup—your eye bath-tub—comes with each bottle of Sanitol Antiseptic Eye Bath. Fill cup about half full with Sanitol Antiseptic Eye Bath, then dilute with pure water slightly warm preferred—the cup is held up to the eye—so (Fig. 1); the head is thrown back —so (Fig. 2); and the tub and the liquid do the rest. It doesn't smart—it doesn't "shock" the eye—far from being uncomfortable, you get the same exhilarating enjoyment in the process that you get when you bathe your face in cold water.

Treat Yourself to the Comfort of Clean Eyes

Automobilists—use it for removing dust and foreign particles from the eyes.

WHY WE DO THIS Never in the history of St. Louis has such a distinctive, dignified and high-grade publicity contest been offered, especially emanating from one of the world's largest and honored manufacturers of high-grade pianos. The fact that this far-reaching publicity contest is launched by this great concern stamps it immediately as one of the squarest propositions ever offered the public, and its magnitude precludes any possibility of legitimate criticism. It is a well-known fact that high-grade advertising is the essence of up-to-date business methods in any line of commercialism.

We want the good people of St. Louis and vicinity to better know the SMITH-REIS PIANO CO., their fine pianos and Money-Saving facilities to the buyer. We want to increase our sales this year, and for this purpose have set aside a large fund for advertising purposes, to bring this house to the attention of every home, old and new.

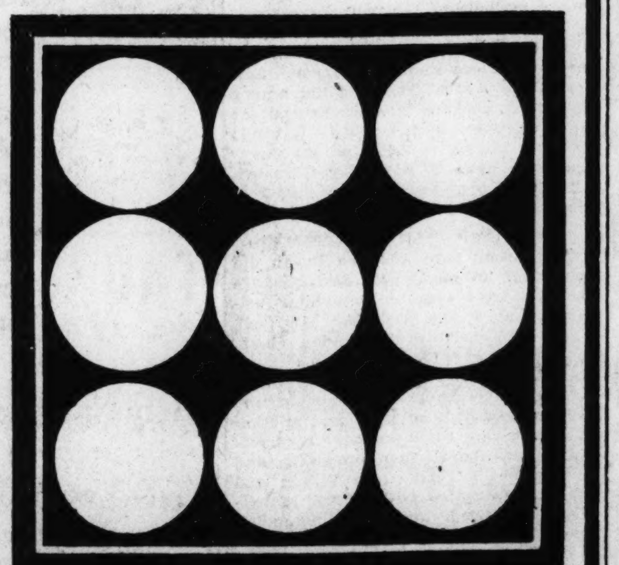
CAN YOU Solve This Puzzle?

SEND YOUR ANSWER IN TODAY!

DIRECTIONS—Take any number from 7 to 15, inclusive. Do not use any number more than twice. Place one number in each of the circles so that when they are added perpendicularly or horizontally the total will be 33.

For the neatest correct, artistic answer we will give the prizes mentioned above in order of accomplishment. All prize winners will be notified. All prizes must be called for within ten days of closing of contest. But only one in a family is eligible for entry.

ALL PRIZES IN THIS GREAT PUBLICITY CONTEST WILL BE GIVEN ABSOLUTELY FREE



Remember, This Costs You Nothing

To the next ten who do not participate in the distribution of the above prizes we will give a bona fide credit voucher for $156, which will be accepted absolutely the same as cash as part of first payment on any new piano in our house.

The Next 25, a Credit Voucher for $115.00 The next 75, a Credit Voucher for $78.00
The Next 50, a Credit Voucher for $100.00 The Next 100, a Credit Voucher for $56.00
The Next 200, a Credit Voucher for $48.00

And all contestants will be awarded a beautiful song folio of old-fashioned songs free by calling at our store.

The above prizes will be given to the correct neatest and most artistic answers.

We are taking this means to reward you for your work in placing our name before the piano purchasing public of St. Louis and vicinity, to celebrate the instantaneous success of our new 1916 Models of Grand, Player-Pianos and Upright Pianos. See that your answer is mailed or brought to our store on or before Thursday, Nov. 11, 1915.

You Will Be Notified of Your Success Nov. 12, 1915

All piano manufacturers and dealers have different ways of advertising. Some employ great artists, some use expensive magazine advertising, while others use teachers to persuade people to buy, paying them commission. We, however, believe that the best advertising is a satisfied customer.

REMEMBER! This Contest Positively Closes Thursday, 6 P. M., Nov. 11, 1915. RUSH YOUR ANSWERS!

[illegible]MIT TORTURED TO DEATH IN VAIN QUEST FOR MONEY

Chicago Murder Mystery Said by Police to Have Been Cleared by Confession of a Boy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—The murder, 12 days ago, of Joseph Osborne, a hermit who lived in a hut by railroad tracks, was cleared up today, according to the police, by the confession of Joseph Merek.

The old man was tortured to death in the belief, which proved unfounded, that he had money concealed about the place. Merek, who is 16 years old, confessed, the police say, that he and Charles McWitham, a year his senior, committed the murder.

They woke the old man up at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, according to the alleged confession, asked him where his money was, and when he refused information, clipped off a piece of his ears with a pair of shears. The torture was continued, according to the alleged confession, and finally the old man was stabbed in the abdomen and the forehead until he died.

HEAD STOPPED UP FROM A BAD COLD

One dose Pape's Cold Compound gives relief from colds and grippe—No Quinine.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

It promptly ends the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this wonderful compound with knowledge that there is nothing else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effect as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist can supply—it contains no quinine—be sure you get what you ask for—accept no substitute—belongs in every home. Tastes nice—acts gently.—ADV.

Radway's Ready Relief

Frank Meis, 420 6th St., New York, writes: "My wife suddenly fell very sick with influenza. I called in the doctor, but he failed to help her any. We have no time to be sick. So I became my own doctor, and with Radway's Ready Relief and Pills, I gave her according to Radway's directions, and she went back to work two days later."

COLDS AND COUGHS

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest until the surface smarts and reddens. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will thoroughly cleanse the bowels. For a sudden cold take a large dose Radway's Pills and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses, in a tumbler of hot water. Retire at once to bed, in the morning the cold will be gone. 25 and 50 cent sizes at druggists.

SUNDAY RECEIVES $18,425 FOR HIS 7-WEEK REVIVAL

Omaha Enthusiastic Over the the Evangelist's Preaching; Total Collections $49,204.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 30.—The Rev. "Billy" Sunday, at the close of his evangelistic services in this city, received $18,425.59 as a thank offering from the public. The meetings extended over seven weeks.

On the final Sunday of the campaign there were five meetings and the estimated attendance was 46,500. The number of trail hitters on the last day is put at 1429. For the entire seven weeks the attendance is placed at 742,200, with a total of 13,022 trail hitters, and aggregate collections of $19,204.30. In the Tabernacle, which was erected especially for the evangelistic services, Sunday preached 91 sermons and in other places 12, a total of 103.

The closing day of the revival was one the like of which Omaha had never before known. Not only was it one of activity for Sunday and his wife, but the end was marked by a perfect riot of good will and friendship manifestations by men, women and children. A vast throng hung about the train on which the Sunday party left Omaha and as the train pulled out a mighty chorus sang some of the songs made familiar at Tabernacle meetings.

Delivery of the thank offering check to the revivalist was not the least interesting event of the final activities. Sunday had gathered up one of his grips to start from the hotel for the depot when the treasurer of the local committee called upon him to wait. "I've got a check for you," he exclaimed. "Say," Sunday replied, "I'd forgotten all about that." And it was for $18,425.59.

MUSICALE SUGGESTED TO GET FUNDS FOR 1916 CONVENTIONS

West End Business Men Plan to Raise Large Amount by Big Show at Coliseum.

The West End Business Men's Association has started a movement for a big musical entertainment to raise funds for obtaining one or both of the national political conventions for St. Louis in 1916. It is suggested that the entertainment take place at the Coliseum, and that the public be given an opportunity to donate in small sums for seats or boxes.

An effort will be made to obtain the services of organizations like the Symphony Orchestra, the Apollo Club and the Pageant chorus as their contribution to the convention fund. The plan is being pushed by President B. W. Clarke of the association, who also is a member of the Citizens' Convention Committee.

FRENCH PERFUMER GETS FIVE YEARS FOR SALE IN COLOGNE

Courtmartial Also Fines Him $4000 and Confiscates Goods Worth $54,000.

MONTPELLIER, France, Oct. 30.—Henry Racine, a millionaire perfume distiller of Mentone, has been sentenced by a courtmartial here to five years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 20,000 francs ($4000) for having supplied essence of neroli to a firm of perfume manufacturers at Cologne. The court also ordered goods belonging to the perfumer to the value of 270,000 francs ($54,000) confiscated.

Racine originally was sentenced by a courtmartial sitting at Marseilles to perpetual deportation. He obtained a reversal on technicalities and was sent here for trial by courtmartial.

CARNIVAL QUEEN RACE IS CLOSE

15th and 16th Wards' Improvement Association Affairs to Close Tonight.

The carnival of the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Wards Improvement Association, which has been in progress a week, will close tonight at 10 o'clock with the crowning of a queen. The ceremony will take place at Jefferson and Chouteau avenues, and Mayor Kiel is expected to officiate.

Mrs. Irene Kamp has taken the lead in the race for queen from Mrs. Elizabeth Schnur, who had been leading for several days. The race is close, and among those who are contesting for queenly honors are the Misses Grace Niesen, Margaret Kietz, Helen Emery, Mabel Pudivitr, Olga Boettcher, Gesina Schroeder, Helen Bergman, May Hopkins, E. Rose, Emma Grigone and Francis Ablen.

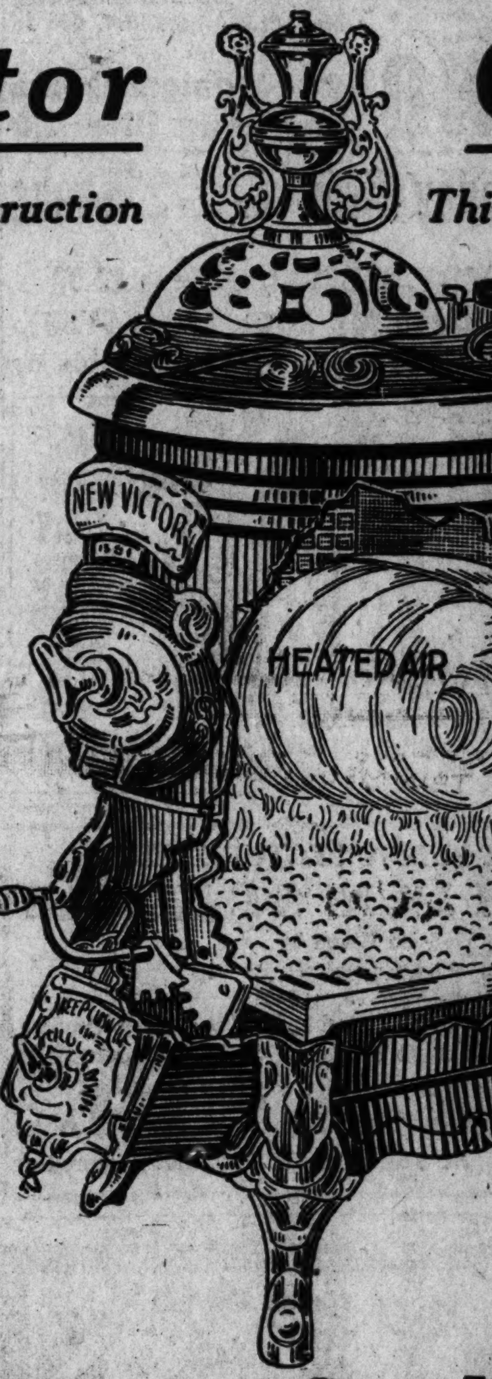
Newest Victor Overdraft Heater

A New Idea in Heating Stove Construction

This is positively the best Soft Coal Stove in the World



WE want every man and woman in this city who intends buying a new heater this season—to come to May-Stern's—and see this wonderful new Victor Overdraft Heater—and acquaint themselves with its many points of superiority.

$1 Cash

$1 a Month

Here's the Heater You Want

We tell you frankly—in our opinion there is no other Heating Stove on the market that can for one moment compare with this new Victor Overdraft Heater—it is so far superior to the ordinary heating stove that there is no room for comparison—and if you will investigate—we know that your own judgment will confirm every word we say.

The New Victor Overdraft Heater

Is exactly as shown in the illustration—it is handsome in appearance—constructed in the finest manner throughout, richly nickel trimmed and possesses more unique features than any other heater that has heretofore been presented to your notice.

Burns Hard or Soft Coal, Coke, Wood or Slack

The grates, the drafts, and the entire construction of this stove are so scientifically perfect that it will burn any kind of fuel—and not only that—it will give more actual heat out of every pound of fuel than any other stove on the market.

Burns the Smoke and Consumes the Gas

Every other stove but this allows half the coal to escape up the chimney in the form of smoke or gas—the patented construction of this stove permits it to utilize as fuel all the gases and combustible elements of the coal—makes this stove practically smokeless and explains why it consumes about half the fuel needed by any other stove.

IT is constructed on the newest downdraft principle—converts every ounce of fuel into heat—and distributes it in the room and not up the chimney—an extraordinary value indeed at the price we name.

$1 Cash

$1 a Month

$14.50

Heats the Floor

This is the only soft coal stove made that heats the floor of the room. The inverted conical base radiates the heat so every part of the floor, as well as the room, receives direct heat waves. This is even better than a base-burner, which only sends the heat to the floor directly under the stove.

Holds Fire 24 to 36 Hours

Just as the speed of an engine can be regulated by the throttle, so can the rate of combustion of this stove be regulated by its drafts. The fuel can be made to burn fast or slow—and the fire can be kept going for twenty-four to thirty-six hours without touching the stove or adding to the fuel.

To Appreciate This Heater

You must call and see it for yourself—note the interior construction—and permit the demonstrator in charge to explain to you its many wonderful features. It is the only stove of its kind on the market—and is well worth seeing.

Our Special Price—$14.50

In order to introduce this wonderful Heater into the homes of this city we offer it this week at this special low price of $14.50—and on terms of $1.00 cash and $1.00 a month. Visit our store this week—see this wonderful stove.

Exactly Like Cut

This entire set is in Mission design of solid oak throughout—the Divan-Bed Davenport, Arm Chair and Arm Rocker are finely upholstered in imitation leather.

It's a Bed by Night

The Divan-Bed Davenport opens into a full-size bed—built on a new principle—bedding can remain under the seat and comes into position when the seat is turned—has a set of regular bed springs.

The Table and Lamp

The Library Table is made of solid oak—has 24x36-inch top and broad lower shelf for books and magazines—the Art Lamp has brass stand and glass shade—and is fitted for gas or electricity.

Terms—$2.50 Cash

Judged from every standpoint this is an actual $65.00 Parlor Outfit which we offer for only $45.00—on terms of $2.50 cash and $2.50 a month.

ARABELLA AND HER FURS.

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN when autumn winds are blowing
Goes blithely tripping through the town with furbelows a-showing.
Yes, furbelows is just the word, for that is where you'll find them
For ankles trim they now must gird with bands of fur to bind them.
But we have thought it rather queer, and really quite capricious,
That in the season of the year when skies are most auspicious,
When afternoons are bright and warm and all the world is sunny,
The boulevards are then aswarm with fuzzy shoe tops funny.
But when the wintry days have come with sleet and snow and blizzard,
And when a man is frozen dumb with chilliblains on his gizzard,
You'll see Miss Arabella Brown, with never shake or shiver
Go faring forth in furless gown that sets you all a-quiver.
O, where is then the silver fox, or mink so warm and clinging,
To shield her ankles from the knocks of winter shrapnel stinging?
Her slippers then are cut so low her instep she's revealing
With not a wisp of fur below her ankles trim concealing.
Her hose is of the thinnest lisle, and one can see right through it;
Yet all a man can do is smile and wonder how they do it.
And if he asks the reason why, through motives of compassion,
Miss Brown will answer very spry: "Because it is the fashion."

A SAD DEPARTURE.

O, WHERE have all the jitneys gone
That used to run around?
They ran until their tires wore out,
Then ran upon the ground.
They ran until their wheels collapsed,
Then ran on their chasseezes;
These couldn't last forever, though,
And then the autumn breezes
Just blew the remnants all away,
And now there aren't any.
The jitney man must drive a dray
To earn an honest penny.

CHINA BOY LETTER.

PEKIN, China,
Whenever you print it.

HON. PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI has postponed the Chinese monarchy and will continue to be very plain Mister until further notice from Japan, thank you.

Japan has got Chinese goat. If more or less Hon. Foo Ying Toe wants to start nice laundry business he must write humble letter for permission to his cousin Yo Scampy San, who has tea store in Tokio, Japan. Question is then referred to elder statesmen who employ all many kind of mathematics to find out if addition of one Chinese laundry in Pekin would disturb foreign policy of Japanese Government.

Recently of late Hon. Yuan Shi Kai went to neutral tailor shop to be measured for imperial suit and peacock feather. Japanese boy who worked in tailor shop heard about it and sent wireless telephone conversation to Tokio. All is now off. Hon. Yuan Shi Kai has changed his order and will now wear very plain sack suit with patch pockets, like all other Hon. presidents.

Japan does not want China to be monarchy. Reason for this is because China has no Teddy, who would know how to be complete and satisfactory monarch with aid of large front teeth and pair of store specs.

Fund is now being raised to get Teddy to jump to Chinese Federal League. Already it amounts to $10.25. When necessary sum of many thousand dollars has been raised I will let you know. Until then China will be patient.

Hoping you are the same,
CHINA BOY.

AN EYE TO WINDWARD.

THE news columns inform us that Gov. Major, a few days ago, stopped off at St. Charles for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Reed Major. Foresight could go no further. The Governor wisely named his parents after Senator Jim Reed. In view of this, how can the Senator consistently continue in his hunt for the Governor's scalp? Long may the eagle wave! Hear the flag scream! Sic semper unum! E pluribus tyrranis!

A CRITICAL CASE.

"What seems to be the matter."

"He's had a mental blowout."

"You mean his cerebral engine has gone dead?"

"Something like that."

"What makes you think so?"

"He insists that an automobile man voluntarily quit a $100,000 job."

"Very serious. Take him to the violent garage for an overhauling."

A LOOK AROUND

BY CLARK M'ADAMS.

IF there is a more fascinating place in the fall of the year than a cider mill, I cannot imagine what it is. The cider miller has never been celebrated in song and story as he deserves. I do not know if all cider millers are alike; but if the one I know best is typical, they are a romantic lot. This particular miller has his mill on the river, where he can ship his product on the steamboats, and he turns his press with a traction engine out of a threshing outfit. When he gets his engine fired up, and throws in his belt, there is a much finer assortment of creaks and groans than we have left at Halloween in these matter of fact times. The perfume of crushed apples rises on the air, the spout under the hopper begins to run, and the celebrated business of barreling cider engages the millhands. The miller himself is a great bearded man whose appearance well becomes the place. It is such a place as Rip Van Winkle might have rejoiced in. There is no great intrusion from the world without. Everybody on the place is an expert in the grave matter of properly swelling barrels. Everybody knows intimately the varying degrees of cider. The place fairly savors of old times. There is a great pounding at bungs. If we follow the miller we learn how cider is made, and if we follow him still we learn how it is kept. It is not to be wholly confined like most things we drink. Cider must have vent. The miller is careful about that. There is enough being blown up in Europe without blowing up anything here. Presently the boat comes along and takes the barrels aboard. The next morning they sit on the St. Louis levee, and until they are taken away a throng of men and boys works around them with straws, seeking to discover where they can suck. One would suppose that there is a great popular thirst for cider; but apparently it is not so. It only seems so where the cider is free.

WE are getting on in art. There is no doubt about it. If one doubts, let him go to one of the Art League receptions at the Art Museum and hear our docents doce. When this thing began it was a difficult matter to get people who know something about the exhibitions to take people around in groups and talk to them about the pictures and sculpture. Usually where a dozen started out, there was probably one docent whose greater assurance and superior talkativeness soon won to his own following those who followed the other eleven. It was very amusing to see those other eleven docents, all learning painfully how it is done, following the twelfth man around, having also become part of his audience. It is better now. Our docents understand better what it required, and they strike out eagerly where once they hung back. We are developing many good extemporary lecturers on art, and they do make the museum much more interesting for the people with whom art is still something of a puzzle.

"That picture looks natural," says the casual art lover.

"But, my dear lady," the docent protests. "It is not so much as it looks, but as it feels. The painter tries to express what he feels when he looks on snow or water, and unless he can get that behind what he merely sees, it is not a good picture. The camera makes things natural enough."

"I see," says the lady. She does see, too—not clearly of course; but she, too, is getting on. To see pictures like the artists see them, and to hear music as the musicians hear it—that is where we are bound. Somebody must docent for us if we are not always to live in darkness in this big city, and we must rally around that somebody whenever we can.

Which way now, docent? Do thou lead.

IT would be interesting to know if Patience Worth were out last night. Patience is our greatest spook hereabouts, and she counts in her train even such materialists as Editor Reedy and the Hon. Charles P. Johnson. Heretofore Patience has been disposed to make herself not quite clear, but when the reports come in from last night's celebration we hope to learn that she has done something that all of us can understand. Most of us would lose a gate, if we had one, to know just how far Patience Worth has led some of our eminent thinkers from that high plane of rationalism to which they have for so long beckoned us to ascend ourselves. It is something of a surprise to us, just when we thought we were getting up to that level, to see such a tremendous rationalist as Editor Reedy go swimming off in the clouds. Will he be back? We think so. The ouija board is an old toy, and most people tire of it after a little. Whether Patience is an honest ghost or not cannot very much matter. We have things like the single tax that we want to get settled, and if Editor Reedy is not to define those things for us from time to time, we are going to be down on all spooks. One can scarcely go on half earth and half sky, and we hope to see all these good people return to earth. We need them here, and they will leave for the sky permanently all too soon for our common good. We are glad to see the single taxers as a whole stand hitched while their local generalissimo goes foraging afield. They seem to realize that Patience, whatever she is, cannot do anything to confine the tax to land. The whole thing looks to most of us like an Arabian Night's entertainment, and as such it is welcome. We must keep in touch with Ali Baba and Aladdin. Nothing better for us has come out of the past, and nothing better awaits us. My guess, anyway.

Good Stories TOLD in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM P. BORLAND of Missouri is in favor of universal religion, but sometimes he admits it has its drawbacks.

A lawyer friend, Borland relates, was dozing in his office one day, when a negro woman, struggling with suppressed anger, entered.

"Look hyeah, Mistah," said she, "I wants to git a divo'ce."

"What has Rastus been doing?" the lawyer inquired.

"What's he been doin'? Why, he's been gittin' religion, dat's what he's been doin', an' we ain't had no chicken on de table fo' mo' dan fo' weeks."

As to Some Judges.

DURING the hearing of a civil action in a North Dakota Court, Senator Asle J. Granna of that State, related to a group of friends, the Judge ruled against a young lawyer on a contested point.

"Your Honor," said the loser, "I am amazed."

Instantly the young lawyer's partner sprang to his feet.

"Your Honor," interposed he, "I want to apologize for the hasty remark of my young partner. By the time he is as old as I am he will not be amazed at anything Your Honor does."

Limit on Bad Spelling.

IN the family of one of his favorite constituents, Congressman Eugene E. Reed of New Hampshire, relates, there is a bright and ambitious little boy named Willie. One day he came home from school with a downcast air, and his mother naturally was solicitous as to the cause.

"I didn't study my spelling lesson," the boy explained, "and I missed 13 words."

"Oh, well, you'll do better next time; don't worry," the mother comforted him, and then, in an effort to cheer, added: "I probably would have missed more than that myself."

"You couldn't do it, mamma," the boy replied with evidence of returning brightness. "There were only 13 words in the lesson."

Had Reason for Suspicion.

IT is a tenet with Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, to keep on the job, and he tells the story in point of two men who entered a cafe for dinner together. They hung their coats and hats on a convenient rack, and one of them turned every minute or so to see if they were still there.

"You certainly are suspicious," his companion finally suggested. "Do you think anyone would steal our coats?"

"Well, yours disappeared 10 minutes ago," was the reply, "and I'm going to see to it that mine doesn't."

THIEF STEALS WHILE IN JAIL

Robs Prisoners and Visitors and Is Arrested.

BARTLESVILLE, Ok., Oct. 30.—Jail is a slight handicap for Ethan Casey, addicted to petty larceny, for he can practice there as well as elsewhere. Casey was released from the county jail here recently and soon after a number of prisoners and others missed articles of wearing apparel and other property. Casey was arrested.

He was wearing a pair of $5 shoes owned by a man charged with selling liquor and held in the jail. The clothes he wore belonged to other prisoners, and he had property belonging to the jailer and to visitors.

How to Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better Than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed.

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 54 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

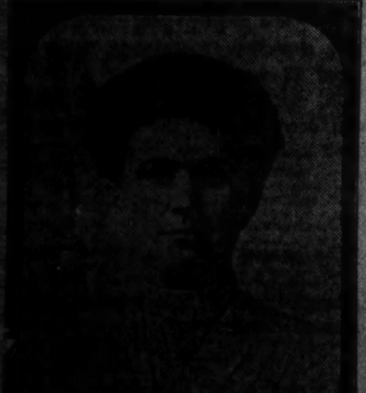
This Wife and Mother Wishes To Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By all Means Write to Her and Learn how She did it.

For over 20 years Jas. Anderson of 10 Pearl Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a confirmed drunkard. His case was about as bad as it could be, but a little over twelve years ago his devoted wife, after years of trying, finally succeeded in stopping his drinking entirely.



Write to this woman if you have a relative or friend who drinks

Not only did she save Mr. Anderson but she stopped the drinking of her brother and several of her neighbors as well. All this she accomplished by simple home treatment which she now desires every man and woman who has a relative or friend who drinks, to know all about, for she feels that others can do just as she did.

The treatment can be given secretly if desired and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell what it is. Therefore every reader of this notice who is interested in curing a dear one of drinking should write to Mrs. Anderson at once. Her reply will come by return mail in a sealed envelope. She does this gladly in hopes that others will be benefited as she was. One thing she asks however, and that is that you do not send money for she has nothing to sell. Simply address your letter with all confidence, to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope.

NEW PLANS FOR MERCHANT MARINE STIR ARGENTINA

Whole Country Interested in Scheme for Transatlantic Line.

SIX BIG SHIPS OFFERED

One Resident Will Build Them if Government Will Equip Them.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 30.—A proposal lately made to Congress by a shipowner resident in Argentina has opened up the whole question of a national mercantile marine. Inconveniences and losses undergone by shippers and travelers since the beginning of the war in Europe had prepared the country for a lively interest in the matter. As a result, shipping is now a national issue here, as well as in the United States.

An earlier effect of the restriction of the European lines on which Argentina had depended was an especially keen and general interest in the mercantile marine proposals in the United States.

This was, perhaps, no less a mark of Argentina's understanding of the Pan-American idea, in its real signification, because she saw in the proposals the possible promotion of her own material advantage. The interest remains, and it is not doubted that the North American movement will sooner or later yield actual ship lines, drawing the country closer to the United States, as well as to her nearer neighbors, and providing something of the freer and more secure outlet for her products that she needs.

Felt in Various Quarters.

But it is felt in various quarters that the North American ship lines, much as they will help, will fall short in one vital particular, from the Argentine point of view. They will be primarily in the service of the United States, just as the European lines primarily served the European countries, and were subject to orders from them.

And if one lot of ships flying alien flags can restrict its service in time of need, so can another. There is, of course, no bitterness over this. The other countries subsidize their merchant ships so that they will be of use in just such times.

But the fact remains that Argentina should not entirely depend on them; it is held that she should have ships of her own, which will continue in her service whatever other nations may do. Such, in effect, is the argument.

To Build Six Ships.

The shipowner mentioned proposes to build six large ships on his own account, as a beginning. He pledges himself to plan and equip them on the most modern lines. If the first six are successful he will add more. According to the plan, the first six would ply between Buenos Aires and European ports. The Government would be allowed reduced rates on all its materials.

The Government's part in the enterprise would be to supply and pay the salaries and wages of officers and crews. It is pointed out that the Government might easily supply these men. They could come mostly if not entirely from its naval forces. Instead of spending much of their time at shore stations, they would be having the advantage of sea service. By a system of rotation a large number of men could be trained for naval reserves.

For a Merchant Marine.

Friends of the proposal urge that by adopting it the Government would obtain a national mercantile marine without adding a peso to the budget—a detail of no little importance in these times, and that it would be rendering distinct encouragement to an important enterprise.

They point out also that all the principal ship lines have Government encouragement of some kind. Even Great Britain, notwithstanding its established hegemony in shipping, finds it desirable to give large subsidies. Germany, Spain, France and Italy, to mention only a few others, do likewise.

Among countries more nearly in the situation of Argentina, mention is made of Brazil and Chile. Without substantial Government aid, it is said, the Lloyd Brazileiro Line could not have been established, and at the moment Chile is strongly encouraging the navigation of big ships.

Proposed Once Before.

At least once before in recent years the country has been considerably interested in a shipping measure, the so-called Luro bill. It proposed Government merchant ships, but with a somewhat different purpose—to shorten the sailing time between here and Europe. At least, that was the aim that attracted most attention, for the journey was indeed unnecessarily long.

Opponents of the bill were confident that alien shipping interests would not be much longer in seeing the advantages of quicker and better service to a country like the Argentina.

And as it turned out, they were right. Thanks to the private companies, better ships soon were put on, and the voyage from Lisbon, for instance, was reduced to 12 days and a few hours.

The improved service more than paid for itself, and it was an immense advantage to Argentina. But it was found wanting on the critical point. Regular and frequent sailings are as important as speedy voyages. For a country like this, which produces much more than it consumes at home and depends for normal prosperity on foreign markets, regular, frequent and speedy ships are practically indispensable, and the belief that Argentina should assure them as far as possible by having some of her own is spreading.

Teachers' Fellowship Election.

The Teachers' Fellowship Society at its annual election, Friday, chose Miss Anne B. Waasy as president, Miss Martha M. Krebs, vice president; Miss Rose O'Boyle, secretary and Miss Julia M. Bayha, treasurer.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to a Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson, or any other good drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.—ADV

HALLOWEEN PARTY AT Y. M. C. A.

Members of Boys' Council, and About 200 Friends Entertained.

The Boys' Council, the governing body of the new Boys' Federation of the Central Y. M. C. A., gave a stag Halloween party last night at the Central branch, Grand and Franklin avenue, to the mebers of the federation and about 200 friends, the occasion being the formal celebration of the organization of the federation.

A program of Halloween games and jokes was given, each event taking place in a different part of the building and ending in the large assembly hall, where a Halloween supper was served. Members of the Council are William Hippisley, president; Oliver Scheiperpeter, vice president; Cornwall Jackson, secretary; Norman Lemon, William Bush, Joseph Scallets, Paul Jackson, Everett Adams, Paul Faulks, Irl Tremaine, Andrew Kessling, Roy Brooks, William Cibulla, William Splan, Andrew Naughton, Cyril Chase, Allan Fish.

ANURIC!

The Newest Discovery in Chemistry.

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric" manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or even write Dr. Pierce for a free sample. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, describe your symptoms to him. Dr. Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you without fee or charge.

NOTE:—"Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—or more in extreme cases—as "Anuric" (thanks to Doctor Pierce's achievement) is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.—Advertisement.

A Special Nemo Corset

Nemo
Thanksgiving
$2.00
Special

The Nemo "Thanksgiving Special" Corset is a splendid new model for all average figures—military shape, with graceful lines.

It is not a regular Nemo model, and is NOT a "Self-Reducing" Corset—just a small lot, made up from a fine material, such as is used in Nemo Corsets sold at $4.00 and more. This particular lot was not a perfect white, but that doesn't affect the looks or the wear.

"Thanksgiving Special" $2

In sizes from 20 to 30

This "Special" is medium in all proportions—bust, back and skirt. Gores of semi-elastic Lastikops cloth, extending below the back steels, give ease and comfort.

Great value—should sell out quickly.

CORSET VOUCHERS

Are issued to every purchaser in our Corset Department, and each voucher can be cashed for 2½ cents, or handed in for credit for that amount.

One Voucher will be issued for every dollar expended in our Corset Department.

This unique Profit-Sharing Plan will be appreciated by the large and growing patronage of our popular and up-to-date Corset Dept.

A Notable Purchase and Sale of Men's Fine Sample Shirts

While we have had a good many sales of Men's Negligee Shirts in this store, we have never had one which, for value-giving, could equal the sale which will begin here tomorrow morning.

These Shirts are samples and, while we have all sizes from 14 to 17½, the majority of them are 14½, 15 and 15½.

There are about 1200 Shirts in the purchase and we have divided them into two lots for this occasion.

$1.50 and $2 Shirts at 85c

In the first lot are Pleated and Negligee Shirts with soft cuffs in a wide variety of cloths and patterns. Positively two-thirds of the Shirts in this lot are actual $2.00 values, while the balance are worth every cent of $1.50 each. Choice, while they last, at 85c

$2.50 to $4 Shirts at $1.55

In the second lot you will find Pleated and Negligee Shirts with soft cuffs, together with a small lot of about 60 Full Dress Shirts with pique or tucked fronts.

The Shirts in this group are made from almost every cloth imaginable, such as woven madras, French penangs, pure fiber, silk-and-linen, and silk-fiber.

They range in value up to $4.00 each, and the majority of them are actual $2.50 to $4.00 Shirts. Sale price, while they last, $1.55

Claims Woman's Beauty Depends Upon Health

Health and Vigor Necessitate Regulation of Organs of Elimination.

Skin foods and face creams and powders cannot make a woman beautiful, because beauty lies deeper than that—it depends on health. In most cases the basis of health and the cause of sickness can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headache, the lassitude, the sallow skin, and the lusterless eyes are usually caused by constipation. An ideal remedy for women, and one that is especially suited to their delicate organisms, is found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild laxative compound, pleasant to the taste and free from opiates and narcotic drugs of every description. Mrs. Gertrude Jordan, 522 North Liberty street, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "It is simply fine; I have never been able to find anything to compare with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I started using it for the baby and now it is my family standby in all cases where a laxative is needed."

MRS. GERTRUDE JORDAN

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle; a trial bottle can be obtained free of charge by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington street, Monticello, Illinois.

CENTRAL CHARITY COUNCIL BEGINS THIRD YEAR OF WORK

Composed of 62 Organizations—Plans Again to Eliminate Duplication of Efforts of Workers.

An effort will be made by the Central Council of Social Agencies to prevent the duplication of effort in charity work in this city during the ensuing year.

The council is composed of 62 charities. It is just starting its third year's work. Last year it eliminated several organizations which were duplicating the work of more efficient organizations.

The council works in conjunction with the Business Men's League and furnishes to the Charities Committee of that organization a report upon the efficiency of any charitable organization. The indorsement of the Business Men's League is based upon the report of the council.

Standing committees have been appointed by J. Lionberger Davis, president of the council, for the year's work. Other officers are: C. M. Hubbard, first vice president; Mrs. W. E. Fischel, second vice president; A. W. Jones Jr., secretary, and Dr. George B. Mangold, treasurer. The Executive Committee is composed of the officers, Rev. Father John J. Butler and Oscar Leonard.

Dr. Gephart to Read Paper.

Dr. W. F. Gephart, head of the department of economics of Washington University, has been invited to present a paper on the "Character of the Curriculum of a College of Commerce" before the annual meeting of the American Economic Association in Washington, D. C., Christmas week.

ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD IN EIGHT STATES TUESDAY

Massachusetts, Maryland and Kentucky Have Contests for Governor and Other Officers; Mississippi to Ratify Result of Democratic State Primaries.

3 STATES TO PASS ON WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Several Congressmen Are to Be Chosen on "Wet" and "Dry" Fight in Ohio—New York Voters to Ballot on New Constitution.

Eight states will hold elections on Tuesday. Massachusetts, which elects its Governors, State officers and Legislature annually. Maryland and Kentucky have gubernatorial contests. Mississippi will ratify at the polls the candidates for Governor and State officers who won Democratic nominations at the State primaries in August. New Jersey will elect the Lower House of its Legislature and six Senators.

New York will elect a State Assembly, various officers in the several counties and Mayors and officers in 41 cities. Ohio cities also will elect Mayors and officers, and Philadelphia has its quadrenial mayoralty fight.

Four vacancies in the Sixty-Fourth Congress are to be filled. Successors to Norman S. Gould in the Thirty-sixth District and Bertrand H. Snell in the Thirty-first, will be chosen in New York to the seats of the late Sereno Payne and the late Edwin A. Merritt Jr., up the State, and William S. Bennett, Republican, and Elsworth J. Healy, Tammany Democrat, nephew by marriage of Boss Murphy, are contesting the seat left vacant by the death of James B. Goulden in the Bronx.

In the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District Dr. Temple, who sat in the last Congress as a progressive and was defeated last year on the same ticket, has the Republican nomination for the vacancy caused by the death of his then opponent, and is likely to win.

City Issues at Stake.

Direct voting on great issues, however, overshadow the personal campaigns of candidates in four states. The voters of New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, with their more than 20,000,000 population, will pass judgment on woman's suffrage.

Ohio will decide whether she is to be the twentieth State to go "dry." She also has a bitter political contest over the proposed redistricting of the State. The present district lines give the Democrats nine out of the 22 Congressmen, and the Republicans think that too many.

Maryland will pass decision on a project for a large measure of home rule for Baltimore city and the counties and on a form of referendum; and Massachusetts will decide the question of imposing a State income tax.

New York also will vote on a new Constitution, with sections on a centralized taxation plan, on State apportionment submitted separately; and also on the authorizing of a bond issue of $27,000,000 for the barge canal.

Democrats Expect to Win in Kentucky; Uphold Wilson, the Rallying Cry.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 30.—With platforms nearly identical, the Republicans and the Democrats are each confident of winning in the fight for the governorship and State officers, Tuesday. Republicans are centering the fight on State issues. Democrats are asking the voters to uphold the national administration, and pointing out that there must be no break in the Democratic ranks the year before the election of a President.

A. O. Stanley, Democratic nominee for Governor, is confident of being elected by 35,000 majority. During the last week the Democrats have had a special train out through the State. Senators James and Beckham, several members of Congress from Kentucky, with Senator W. J. Stone of Missouri, and Congressman Thomas Heflin of Georgia, were on the train. The only danger threatening Democratic success, leaders say, is that voters may stay at home.

The Republicans have come into a real campaign fund and two specials were sent out during the last week. Former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks came from Indianapolis to help Edwin P. Morrow, Republican nominee for Governor. Morrow said that he believed the Republicans would have a large majority.

From reports gathered from over the State it seems that the entire Democratic ticket will win, but the majority will not come up to the highwater mark of 35,000.

Liquor Question Overshadows Other Issues in Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 30.—The big issue in Ohio at Tuesday's election will be prohibition. Not satisfied with the rejection of a Constitutional amendment last year, aiming to make the State dry, advocates of prohibition have placed the proposal on the ballot again and are making a last ditch fight of it.

The liquor question overshadows all other issues. Last year prohibition carried in 70 of Ohio's 88 counties, the majority of 84,152 against the proposition being rolled up by the large cities, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo, the wets and drys putting forth all their strength in these cities. Politicians and the betting favor the wets.

Voters also will pass upon two other proposed Constitutional amendments and act on two laws passed by the last Legislature. One amendment provides for four-year terms for county officers and the other puts a check on referendum elections so that proposals twice defeated cannot be subject to a referendum again for six years. The latter proposal, having been initiated by the wets, will carry, it is believed, along with the probable defeat of prohibition, although the advocates of the initiative and referendum are putting up a hard fight against it. There seems to be a chance of putting across the term extension measure.

In the referendum on the Sprague law, a Republican measure redistricting the State for congressional purposes and repealing the Greenland Democratic gerrymander act, politicians profess to see an issue of national moment. They declare the Wilson administration has urged the Ohio Democratic organization to exert all its strength against the Sprague law, holding that rejection of it at the polls will indicate that the voters are "standing by Wilson" and approving his administration.

The liquor issue bobs up again in the referendum on the McDermott liquor license law, which is a measure favored by the Republican administration, with the intention of removing the county liquor license system from State control. The drys have brought Bryan to Ohio, while the wets also have imported orators.

Cleveland, Columbus and Toledo will have municipal elections under the nonpartisan system. Columbus has nine candidates for Mayor, Cleveland six and Toledo three. Through the addition of bond issues and referendums on city ordinances Cleveland voters will pass on 18 issues, besides city, school and judicial candidates. Each voter will have eight ballots to mark.

Democrats Divided, Republicans United, in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30.—Maryland will elect a Governor, Comptroller, Attorney-General and members of General Assembly. Four amendments to the constitution will be submitted. These are, first, authorizing the General Assembly to provide for uniform system of taxation; second, giving home rule to Baltimore City and the counties; third, providing for indeterminate sentences; and fourth, providing for a referendum which will apply to laws passed by the Legislature. As these amendments are generally approved, their adoption is practically certain.

There is little doubt of the next General Assembly being Democratic, but the gubernatorial contest has everyone guessing. The Democrats should win, as they have a normal majority, based on affiliation, of nearly 50,000 in the State. Owing to divisions within the party, while the chances still favor the Democrats, the margin appears small.

The Republicans are united on Ovington E. Weller, a Baltimore County man, chairman of the State Roads Commission. Weller has made good as a road builder, and has a slogan of "A business administration by a business man." The Progressives are back in line, even Bonaparte having declared for Weller. As it looks now, if the Republicans get 85 per cent of their registered vote in the box they should win. If they fail to do so, the Democrats will land Harrington as Governor and their entire ticket.

Educator Likely to Be Elected to Congress in Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 30.—Dr. Henry W. Temple, the Washington and Jefferson educator, elected to Congress in 1912 as a Progressive, but defeated in 1914, will likely be returned to Congress as a Republican next Tuesday.

Former Lieutenant-Governor M. Brown of Lawrence, elected to succeed Temple in the Republican reaction of 1914 from the third party revolt of 1912, died within a few days after he was elected, and his death made Tuesday's special election necessary.

BARONET, WHO RESEMBLED JOHN BULL CARTOONS, DIES

Sir Oswald Mosley, Heightened His Resemblance to Symbolic Figure By His Oddities of Dress.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The death of Sir Oswald Mosley, Bt., removed a picturesque survival of old England, for he not only looked but actually dressed the cartoonist's part of John Bull, while his mind was correspondingly John Bullish.

Sir Oswald was descended from an ancient Staffordshire family, noted for its stubbornness in litigation but of the highest probity. In his youth he was a notable boxer. He went through Eton, then settled down as a country gentleman. He was a familiar figure at the Christmas cattle show in London, where he was to be seen escorting parties of farmers among the pens, prodding the pigs with his cane and digging his hands into the sheeps' wool. To heighten his resemblance to John Bull, which he enjoyed, he wore a broad brimmed white hat, a coat with a half dozen capes and flowered waistcoat.

Hebrew Society to Give Dance.

The United Hebrew Young People's Society, an auxiliary of the United Hebrew Congregation, King's highway and Von Versen avenue, will hold its seventh annual dress ball and vaudeville entertainment Tuesday evening at Trimp's Hall, 4456 Delmar boulevard. There will be vocal solos by Misses Clara Potashnick and Bertha Schoen. Miss Rose Lasker and Harry Levi will present specialty dances.

Young Men's Civic Association Formed.

The Young Men's Civic Association, an organization designed to educate young business men in civic questions, has been founded by Henry Giesenbier Jr. of 3120 Arsenal street. The association, which meets every second and fourth Thursday, has an active membership of 75.

River Board Meets Nov. 18.

The Mississippi River Commission will meet for its fall session on board the steamer Mississippi at St. Louis, Nov. 18, at 10 a. m. The commission will make an inspection trip from St. Louis to New Orleans and will give public hearings at St. Louis and at points along the route on matters connected with the improvement of the Mississippi River.

You Have Honored Us Greatly With Your Patronage!

We Wish Now to Congratulate You on Your Acceptance of What We Are Helping You to Do.

FIRST we congratulate you that you don't owe The Lindell Store any money for the merchandise you have bought this past month.

You paid cash for what you bought, and doubtless bought only what you needed. And —You paid just your own bills—nothing to make up for unpaid accounts of others.

You contributed nothing to help pay interest on long-standing, lagging accounts—the sure heritage of "charge" businesses.

You saved money on your purchases because our cash buying, and your paying cash have the sure reward of the most for your money, however much or little you spend.

And that is what we are helping you to do—save money. We are busy all day long gathering, displaying, rightly pricing merchandise, and earnestly striving to be of acceptable service to you.

Our first half year in business just ended has been very pleasant!

PROGRAM FOR DAY LIBERTY BELL WILL BE EXHIBITED HERE

Patriotic Relic to Be Uncovered at 6:15 A. M., Nov. 21—Salute of 17 Guns to Be Fired.

A platform which will stand on three sides of the special car bearing the Liberty Bell, on its visit to St. Louis, Sunday morning, Nov. 21, will be built under the supervision of Richard McCulloch, president of the United Railways Co. It will stand in De Balliviere avenue, near the Jefferson Memorial.

The street car company, it is understood, will pay the cost of this platform, and it is expecetd that the laying of a special spur track, connecting with the Wabash track, will be done by the Terminal Association, without expense to the committee in charge.

A program for the Liberty Bell reception has been arranged, to cover the time that the bell will remain on the De Balliviere track, from about 2 a. m. until 10:30 a. m., when it will resume its journey east, leaving Union Station at 11 and stopping for 20 minutes in East St. Louis. The program follows:

1 a. m.—Arrival of bell.

2 a. m.—Decoration of car and platform.

6 a. m.—Unfurling of great flag tendered for the occasion by the city of St. Louis.

6:15 a. m.—Firing of salute of 17 guns.

6:15 a. m.—Uncovering bell, and platform opened to public.

7:15 a. m.—Breakfast for Committee of Escort at St. Louis Club. Welcome by Mayor Kiel. Presentation of banner to Committee of Escort. Response by Chairman Seger of committee. Badges of welcome to be presented to each member of Visiting Committee.

8 a. m.—Military parade, starting at St. Louis Club, led by automobiles carrying Committee of Escort and Liberty Bell Committee of St. Louis.

9:30 a. m.—Review of parade as it passes the Liberty Bell platform by the Committee of Escort and the Liberty Bell Committee of St. Louis.

11 a. m.—Patriotic services in all the churches.

The committee has asked that children be taken to the bell in groups, according to schools or organizations, each group in charge of an adequate number of adults. Arrangements will be made to receive and place near the bell any flowers which may be offered.

NO ACID STOMACH, NO SOURNESS, GAS, OR ANY INDIGESTION

In five minutes your sick, sour upset stomach will feel fine.

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes acids in stomach and starts digestion.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion dyspepsia or gastritis, it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is food fermentation—acid stomach—food souring; the digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.—ADV.

Open Letter From a Victim to a Victim.

To Whom It May Concern: For years I was afflicted with nasal catarrh and all of its annoying, disgusting symptoms. Any victim knows what the symptoms are, how they embarrass and disgust all about you. Finally I began using Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm, and in a very short time my catarrh was a thing of the past. It stopped the discharge and healed up the membranes, and I want every victim to profit as Idid. Just address Pretzinger Catarrh Balm Co., Dayton, O., enclosing 2-cent stamp for mailing, and ask them for a Free Trial treatment. They will gladly supply you and prove to your own satisfaction what a wonderful medicine it is. (Signed) E. A. SMITH-WALL.—ADVERTISEMENT.

RUSSIAN DISASTER NEAR WHEN DUMA WAS PROROGUED

Only the Patriotism of the Leaders in Parliament Saved the Situation.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The prorogation of the Russian Duma, according to accounts that have reached London from members of the Octobrist and Progressive parties, was one of the severest tests which representative government in Russia has met since it came into being. Only the sheer patriotism of the men who guided the majority in that body prevented the prorogation from becoming a disaster of the most far reaching import. At one time it threatened to precipitate a general strike in all the factories supplying the army, a strike which would have left the army virtually helpless.

The following account of the crisis comes from a member of the Progressive group:

"First of all, it is necessary to realize exactly what this Duma meant to the Russian people. That people was enduring the heavy mental strain of a long period of retreat, a retreat on a scale so gigantic that its effects were obvious even to those many hundreds of miles from the front. Wounded soldiers returning to the heart of the country brought to town and village stories that made the lack of ammunition more than an intellectual problem. The result was that the common people were clamorous for open criticism and some sort of control of the bureaucracy which it felt was responsible, and the Duma seemed to all classes the only hope of such criticism and control. For a time it was refused to them. Then, under the stress of the fall of Warsaw, the Government decided to yield and summon the Duma.

Became Parliament in Fact.

"The Duma, conscious that the nation for once was united behind it, astonished everyone by the thoroughness and frankness with which it attacked in a hundred speeches the problems that had been in the minds of all. It soon became evident that this was to be a different sort of a Duma from those which had preceded it. It was to be a Parliament in fact as well as name, for he membership, always heretofore broken up into tiny political groups which made anything like concerted action well-nigh impossible, began to weld itself into two or three parties and a real majority party began to appear for the first time in history.

"There are 14 so-called parties represented in the Russian Duma, as follows: Extreme Right, Nationalists, Progressive Nationalists, Right Octobrists, Zemstvo Octobrists, Left Octobrists, Poles, Mohammedans, Peasants, Progressives, Cadets, Labor members, Social Democrats and Social Democratic 'Minority' party.

"While thus disunited, the Duma was weak. But things began to assume a very different aspect when Miliukov, leader of the Cadets, and Guchkov, leader of the Octobrists, working together, succeeded in forming what was called the Progressive bloc. They combined all the parties in the preceding list except the first three and the last two. Then for the first time the Government was faced by a Duma with the power of making itself felt. The majority enjoyed by the Progressive block was absolutely overwhelming.

Peculiarity of Russian Politicians.

"The next stage in the story was the result of the peculiar character of the Russian politician. No sooner do any two Russians agree on anything than they sit down to draw up a platform or program, dealing not only with the matter in hand, but extending far afield to all the subjects upon which they are able to agree. So with this progressive bloc.

"No sooner had the constituent parties agreed to unite for their work in the Duma than, in spite of the fact that every man was solely concentrated on doing what should be done for the winning of the war, they met to elaborate a serious program which should show all the subjects on which they were agreed. They produced a program embodying about a dozen points, including such untimely matters as the reform of the Zemstvos or municipal councils, a broadening of the election franchise, recognition of trade unions and the establishment of a ministry not recruited from the ranks of officialdom.

"It is obvious that the few points noted are enough to constitute the widest possible reformation in the Russian system of Government. Leaders of the bloc have since declared that they did not mean this program as anything but a statement of 'ultimate hopes,' and that for the moment they were content to concentrate their attention on matters of war legislation.

Shock to Governing Classes.

"But the publication of the program gave the conservative governing classes a tremendous shock, and officialdom took the opportunity to say: 'Look what these people are determined to do under cover of the national emergency!'

"Premier Goremykin, who was one of those greatly aroused by the program, rushed off to the Czar and obtained a decree of prorogation, as a reply to what he believed to be a threat against his official existence. It is said that when he laid the decree before his colleagues of the Cabinet, they all, with the exception of one man, sided against him, but there lay the Czar's order on the table, and the thing was done, the enraged Duma being politely told that it had successfully accomplished its destiny.

"But for the patriotism of the members the result might have been chaos. For a time Miliukov threatened that all members of his party would resign from their positions on the committees formed for dealing with questions of munitions and other war matters. This would have been an incitement from above to a general and disastrous strike. Miliukov was fortunately made to see the danger of it, and the leaders of every party set themselves to preventing any disturbance.

SYMPHONY SEASON IN ST. LOUIS TO BEGIN FRIDAY

Subscription Matinee Concert Will Be Given Again on Saturday Night.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra season will open Friday afternoon with the first subscription concert, which will be repeated Saturday night, and will be followed by the first popular concert Sunday afternoon.

Margarete Matzenauer, contralto, will be the soloist at the Friday afternoon and Saturday night concerts, making her first appearance before a St. Louis audience. Two years ago Mme. Matzenauer was engaged to sing with the St. Louis orchestra, but the engagement was canceled.

Mme. Matzenauer's husband, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, dramatic tenor, also of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear at the symphony concerts of Dec. 31 and Jan. 1. Mme. Matzenauer's daughter, now 2 years old, is traveling with the mother on a long concert tour this fall.

Daughter of the Stage.

Like her daughter, Mme. Matzenauer was "a child of the stage," her father having been a symphonic conductor and her mother an operatic soprano. Her musical education had its beginning early in life, and in 1901 she made her debut, in Strassburg, taking the role of Puck in "Oberon." The succeeding 10 years were spent in Munich, as leading contralto of the Court Theater, and in the Wagner festivals, given there each year at the Prince Regenten Theater. She found time, however, to travel, concertizing and appearing as "guest" in the musical centers of Europe.

It was not until 1911 that Mme. Matzenauer came to America to sing in the Metropolitan Opera House. After a successful season in New York she went to Buenos Aires for a season, returning from there to New York. It was on the trip to Brazil that she met Ferrari-Fontana, whom she married after their return to New York.

Has Remarkable Voice.

Mme. Matzenauer's voice is noted not alone for its richness and volume, but for its really remarkable range. A contralto, she can sing mezzo-soprano roles with ease.

The symphony orchestra rehearsals will begin tomorrow on the numbers included in the program of the current week, as follows:

Symphony No. 2, in D. Op. 36....Beethoven
1. Adagio molto: Allegro con brio
2. Larghetto
3. Scherzo and Trio: Allegro
4. Allegro molto
Aria—"Abscheulicher!" from "Fidelio"—Beethoven
Symphonic Poem—"Stenka Razine," Op. 13—Glazounow
(First time in St. Louis.)
Senta's Ballad, from "The Flying Dutchman"....Wagner
Overture to "The Flying Dutchman"..Wagner

The Beethoven second symphony is one of the most clear and vivid expressions of good cheer aand humor to be found in the entire realm of abstract music. Even the slow movement contains no note of mournfulness, but is rather built on graceful, tender themes.

The aria from "Fidelio" shows the great master in another light, being the expression of the horror and piteous sorrow felt by Leonore, when, disguised as the youth "Fidelio," she discovers the hideous plot to murder her husband, and closing with the glorious adagio, in which she sings of the immortal power of love.

Matzenauer's other number, the ballad, from "The Flying Dutchman," is fittingly placed before the closing number, the overture to the same work. The Glazounow symphonic poem, "Stenka Razine," is given for the first time in St. Louis.

Tea at Cicardi's.

Reservation of tables for the first lecture tea, which will be given at Cicardi's Thursday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, is proceeding rapidly, indicating that there will be a large attendance. An invitation has been extended to Mme. Matzenauer to attend, as she is expected to be in St. Louis Thursday. E. R. Kroeger, who will deliver the lecture, will give illustrations at the piano.

The season seat sales, to date, are about $1600 ahead of the grand total of last year. This increase, with the rush which always takes place during the last week preceding the opening concerts, promises to make this the banner season of the symphony orchestra in point of attendance at the concerts.

The single ticket sale opens Monday, at the M., K. & T. ticket office, 708 Olive street. The sale of season tickets, however, will be continued at the office of the Symphony Orchestra, 3540 Olive street.

MARCELLA CRAFT, INDIAN SINGER, TO BE HERE THURSDAY

She Will Appear Before the Morning Choral Club—Has Been Abroad 12 Years.

Marcella Craft, dramatic soprano, will make her first St. Louis appearance Thursday at the Members' day concert of the Morning Choral Club.

She is an Indian girl and comes back to America after 12 years abroad. She sang Butterfly in the Keil Opera House premiere of that opera, and has for five years been prima donna soprano at the Munich Royal Opera House.

When she sang Mimi in Puccini's opera of Boheme, the part of Rudolpho was sung by Caruso. Miss Craft has just been engaged as star soloist by the New York Philharmonic Society for a special Richard Strauss concert. The society has obtained Strauss' new Alpin Symphony for first performance in America and at the same time they will give the American premiere of Strauss' concert arrangement of Salome's closing scene, especially made for Miss Craft.

Recital by Charles Galloway.

Charles Galloway will be the organist at an organ recital and song service at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Messiah Church, Grand avenue and Pestalozzi street.

GERMAN AND DUTCH TERRITORY DIVIDED BY BARBED WIRE

Fences Run Down Main Streets and Across Railroad Stations in Holland.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 10.—The barbed-wire boundary between Holland and her neighbors, Germany and Belgium, presents a remarkable picture at some points, where it bisects farmhouses, towns, or even cuts straight across the platform of frontier railway stations.

There is one place where the street is divided up the middle, so that Dutch and German shops face each other across barriers of barbed wire. On the further side of the street runs a street railway, which is in Germany. Separated from the tracks by a high wire fence, there runs down the middle of the street a strip 12 feet wide which is neutral ground.

Then comes another fence, and the narrow bit of road and pavement beyond it are in Holland. At each street corner are narrow openings to allow passage from one country to the other, sentries of each country standing careful guard on either.

It is the main street of a busy town, and the ordinary town life flows back and forth, while little Dutch street boys talk to the German street boys through the meshes. Down this street at the beginning of the war the Dutch population watched for four days and nights the German army marching southward into Belgium.

All the villages on the frontier lead a confusedly bisected existence, a belt of barb wire as it were separating their heads from their feet. In these places the work of the Dutch sentries is mainly to search the people who pass, lest they carry in or out illicit merchandise.

INDOOR LIFE MAKES FAT

TAKE OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OR TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FAT.

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against over-stoutness, as fat acquired by indoor life is unhealthy and a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying powers of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality, and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any person who is satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout should go to a good druggist and get a box of oil of korein capsules and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight, digestion should improve, energy return, footsteps become lighter and the skin less flabby in appearance.

Oil of korein is inexpensive, cannot injure, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Any person who wants to reduce their weight 15 or 20 pounds should give this treatment a trial. There is nothing better.—ADV.

ECZEMA

Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, etc.

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D—and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling nearly a half million cases of eczema and devoting 12 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what all you have used nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured, all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. If you write me TODAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it and I feel sure you will agree with me.

"L'Africaine" will be given Saturday morning, Nov. 6, at 10:45, the others following the first Saturday of each month. For "L'Africaine," Mme. McCarty will be assisted by Mrs. Adah Black Holt, voice; Miss Alice Pettingill at the piano.

IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR YOUR BACK IS ACHING, TAKE SALTS AT ONCE

We all eat too much meat, which clogs up the Kidneys, and they need a flushing, else we must suffer.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complicatons.—ADV.

E. P. RIPLEY IS 70; 300 GUESTS AT BIRTHDAY DINNER

Flowers From 13 States Traversed by Santa Fe on Banquet Table.

TOAST DRUNK TO HIS WIFE

Railroad President Pays Tribute to Helpmeet—and to Men Who Worked for Him.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co., who was 70 years old today, said at a dinner given him tonight that he attributed whatever success he had made to the helpful influences of his wife and to the cordial support of the men and women who compose the Santa Fe family.

The dinner is said to have been notable in that it brought together more men prominent in the railroad world than ever before participated in a strictly social function. Three hundred guests were present and the banquet hall was decorated with plants and flowers from the 13 states traversed by the Santa Fe. The speakers were the Rev. Bernard Kelley of Topeka, Kan., an old friend of Ripley, who asked the blessing; Walker D. Hines, New York, general counsel of the road and chairman of the Executive Committee of its board of directors, who acted as toastmaster; Charles S. Gleed, Topeka, a director and editor of the Kansas City Journal, who talked about the old Santa Fe and the new; Victor Morowetz, New York, a director who was largely instrumental in reorganizing the road; Frank Trumbull, New York, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake & Ohio; George B. Harris, Chicago, chairman of the board of the Burlington road; Gardner Lthrop, Chicago, general solicitor of the Santa Fe, and Ripley, who spoke last.

Theodore H. Vail Present.

Other guests included H. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania; B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific; W. W. Biddle, receiver for the St. Louis & San Francisco; Theodore H. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; W. G. Besler, president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Telegraph Co.; J. N. Hannaford, president of the Northern Pacific and high officials from all over the Santa Fe system. The speakers spoke of the wonderful growth of the Santa Fe and eulogized Ripley. Then Ripley spoke:

"I desire here," he said, "to pay tribute and praise to her, who joined her life to mine 40 years ago and has since provided the comforts and rest of a quiet home; who has twice accompanied me through the valley of the shadow of death; who has watched over me mentally, morally and physically and who is mainly responsible for such successes as has been mine in conserving mind and body. I ask you, friends, to join me in drinking to the health of my wife."

The sentiment was applauded with vigor and the toast drunk standing. Continuing, Ripley paid tribute to the men who have worked under him.

Always Had Loyal Support.

"No one man is of any possible consequence; no one man can accomplish anything in a large way without loyal and enthusiastic support. This support I have now—have always had—in unstinted measure. The esprit de corps of the Santa Fe has become known and is commented on by everybody everywhere, and I desire here publicly to declare my appreciation of it and to thank not only those present, but the great body of employes as well."

Mr. Morowetz said that under Ripley's presidency of 20 years the gross earnings of the road have increased from $30,000,000 to $120,000,000 a year.

"The results," he continued, "were due not only to Mr. Ripley's exceptional ability and sound pudgment as a railroad manager, but also to his rigid enforcement of those elementary principles which are essential to enduring success in the management of any business. During all the years of Mr. Ripley's management the company has never issued a note or bill payable, and has always kept on hand an ample supply of cash and of salable securities to provide for unforeseen contingencies."

Trumbull, in the course of his remarks, said:

"The Santa Fe is not a sectional, but a national asset. During Mr. Ripley's time many wrongs have been righted and many rights have been wronged. One right is that such a unified transportation has he had developed is entitled to unified regulations."

WOMAN FAINTS IN COURTROOM

Mrs. Maud Smith of 4807 Olive street, fainted in Judge Anderson's court yesterday after a decision in her favor had been made in a case brought by her husband, Charles A. Smith, whom she divorced last year

At the time of the divorce, Smith was granted the right of having the custody of her daughter, Margaret, 3 years old, for two hours each Sunday, providing he pay $5 a week for the support of the child. He filed a motion to have Mrs. Smith and her brother, Arthur Peters, cited for contempt of court, alleging that upon Oct. 17, when he called for his daughter, he was not allowed to see her. Mrs. Smith testified that the child was ill upon that day and for that reason she refused to let her leave the house. Just as the Judge dismissed Smith's motion, Mrs. Smith fainted.

Flower Day for Old People's Home.

There will be a "Flower Day" next Saturday for the benefit of the Christian Old People's Home. Young women will be on the downtown streets and in the main picture theaters selling flowers for the home. Mrs. L. P. Crigler, 5861 Plymouth avenue, is in charge of the campaign.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION TO HOLD GOLDEN JUBILEE HERE

State Organization Will Meet Nov. 16-17—Will Be Virtually a School of Instruction.

The Golden Jubilee of the Missouri Sunday School Association will be held in St. Louis Nov. 16-18. It is expected more than 2000 delegates from outside of St. Louis will attend.

The speakers are: Mrs. Antoinette A. Lamoreaux, Chicago; Mrs. Katherine W. Eddy, Kansas City, Kan.; John L. Alexander, Chicago; Walter S. Athearn, Des Moines; Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner, Chicago; the Rev. J. N. McDonald, Savannah, Ill.; John H. Engle, Abilene, Kan.; the Rev. John A. Rice, D. D., St. Louis; S. H. Meyers, Detroit; W. C. Pierce, Chicago; the Rev. Theodore Mayer, National General Sunday School Secretary of the German M. E. Church, and the Rev. W. N. Dresel, Evansville, Ind.

The convention will be virtually a school of instruction. Sunday School leaders will be directed in the course of Bible study as mapped out by the world's societies. Sunday School teachers are now given post graduate courses and are fitted for special class work. The course of study is standardized throughout the world.

The main headquarters will be at the Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington avenues; Union M. E. Church, 3610 Delmar boulevard, and the First Presbyterian Church, Sarah street and Washington boulevard.

SUES HUSBAND FOURTH TIME

McPHERSON, Kan., Oct. 30.—For the fourth time in eight years, Mrs. Eva H. Decker of Galva has brought suit for divorce from John J. Decker. Once Mrs. Decker obtained a divorce, but after less than a year, she was remarried to Decker. The other suits were dismissed, the last one only a few weeks ago.

In each of her suits Mrs. Decker has alleged undue attentions on the part of her husband to other women. The Deckers have been married 25 years, have nine children and considerable property.

Knights of Columbus Entertain.

An entertainment followed by a banquet was given by members of Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, at Holy Angels' Parish School Hall, Thursday night, in honor of Rev. E. T. Finan, assistant pastor of Holy Angels' Church, who departs in the near future to assume charge of a pastorate at Silver Lake, Mo. Rev. Father Finan is chaplain of the Knights of Columbus of the State of Missouri and is also chaplain of Marquette Council, and members of Marquette presented him with a gold case containing $150 in gold coins.

GIRLS! ACT NOW! HAIR COMING OUT SIGN OF DANDRUFF

25-cent "Danderine" will save your hair and double its beauty.

Try this! Your hair gets soft, wavy, abundant and glossy at once.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—ADV.

BRITISH AVIATION SCOUT VISITS U. S. TO REST NERVES

Lieut. Ford, Son of "Blotting Paper King" One of Few Survivors of Flying Corps.

TELLS THRILLING STORIES

Declares England's Airmen Are Far Superior to Those of Enemy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—One of 10 left from the original 75 amateur aeronauts who joined the ranks of the British flying squad at the outbreak of the war, Lieut. Archibald B. Ford, the 22-year-old son of the English "Blotting Paper King," is in America on unlimited leave.

Thirteen months in active aviation work of range-finding and wireless work, having two observers killed in his aeroplane, and being himself twice slightly wounded have told on the young pilot's nerves, and he does not intend returning to his work with the Royal Flying Corps of the British army until he has seen New York, San Francisco and Honolulu. "A bit of globe-trotting," as he puts it, "will bring me back to form."

Stormed by Reporters.

Lieut. Ford arriced from Liverpool on the steamer Tuscania, and was stormed by an army of reporters as he was unpacking his luggage at the Hotel McAlpin. On the subject of the war, he did not wish to talk, his reticence being accentuated by his own modesty and the fact that he was an army officer.

Finally, however, he told of some of his experiences, and showed among his souvenirs of the battlefield a miniature Mauser automatic gun of 28-caliber, firing 10 shots, which he took from a captured aviator, a clip of rifle cartridges, which he had cut from the clothes of a dead German soldier, and the nose of a 12-pound anti-aircraft bomb, which he had found imbedded in the framework of his machine after a flight over the enemy lines.

Is Nerve-Racking.

"The thing about aviation that is most telling on a man's nerves," said Lieut. Ford, "is the semiingly interminable wait for the first big shell from an anti-raft gun. When one gets over the enemy lines, a hail of small bullets usually strikes him. But that doesn't matter much. We know where most of the big aeroplane guns are, but we don't know when they are going to fire. After the first shot from them they come thick and fast, but the strain is over. All sense of fear is gone. It is the fact that there is nothing to occupy the aviator's mind except holding to his course, that makes the waiting so enervating.

"English aviators go up each morning and evening, spending six or seven hours a day in the air, regardless of weather conditions. They patrol the 34-mile battle front, extending from the coast to Switzerland, and often fly as far as Brussels, 100 miles from their own lines."

Lieut. Ford spoke of the superiority of the English aviation corps over that of their adversaries. He pointed out that he had seen but two hostile "Tauben" over the English lines in two months, and that these had been brought down easily. One pilot said he had been but a fortnight in the service and had made only four flights. The captive told them he could make only a right turn. The lieutenant praised the type of machine guns with which the German aeroplanes were equipped.

"What of life in the trenches?" he was asked.

"It has two sides," was the reply, "a humorous—rather grim, sardonic humor, perhaps—and a tragic side. An example of the lighter side is the sport of shooting rats in which the officers indulge.

"The space between the trenches, which we call 'No Man's Land,' is infested with huge rats, as big as rabbits, which feed upon the unburied bodies. A morning's kill sometimes amounts to 100, I dare say."

"They tell a tale, too, of the proximity of the trenches in some places, which, though of course, exaggerated, shows the cherfulness of the soldiers. So close were the trenches, said they, that the same ramparts served both sides. And the allied and German soldiers took turns sticking their rifles through the same loopholes."

Lay Two Days Wounded.

"There are more tragic stories. A Colonel in my regiment, for instance, was wounded past the line of his own trenches. He lay there in 'No Man's Land' for two days, with a bullet in his spine. He was conscious and in his right mind. In fact, he dictated letters to his wife to someone in the trenches. He died, for we could not get to him. He lay between the fire of the two lines. When we did get to him, it was too late."

"The Canadians and Irish are making a wonderful record in this war," continued Ford, after a thoughtful pause. "The Canadians sprang something new a short time ago. Prowling about at night, they planted a couple of bear traps of their own manufacture near the German lines, and were rewarded with two human captives. Chains were attached to the traps, and, squealing like stuck pigs, the Teutons were hauled into camp."

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Nature warns you when the track of health is not clear.

Unhealthy kidneys may cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and lose flesh.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results may be expected; Kidney Trouble in its very very worst form may steal upon you.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are among the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease may constantly undermine the system.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition, try taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the famous kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys improve, they will help the other organs to health.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE.—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Catarrh a Blood Disease S.S.S. Drives It From Your System

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, causing sores in the nostrils, stoppage of air-passages and gathering in the throat, it has been common practice to treat Catarrh by lotions, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment is entirely wrong. It cannot give permanent relief, and it is liable to irritate and aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. If allowed to run on it will disease the bronchial tubes, settle on the lungs, the stomach—indeed it is a very serious disease. Don't treat it locally. The fact that it causes headaches is proof that it is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proved effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S. It is the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by the process of renourishing the blood, renewing its strength and vigor, giving new life to the red blood corpuscles, and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. It is literally a blood bath. You quickly feel results. Headaches disappear, the gathering in the throat stops, the nostrils heal—before you hardly realize it you are well. S. S. S. is a natural blood tonic and has proven effective in the treatment of all blood affections. Eczema, tetter, rash, Scrofula. Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. If you need special advice write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.—ADV.

New Way Wonder for Corns, "Gets-It"

The Big Surprise for Corn Owners. It's Sure, Simple, Safe, Quick.

Listen to the wee story of "Gets-It," the world's greatest corn remedy. It's a short story—only about two feet—"Mary had a little 'Gets-It,' and corns upon her toe; and every time she put on 'Gets-It,' the corn was sure to go."

Stop Misery and Embarrassment Like This With Simple, Easy "Gets-It."

Mary, like thousands of others, used to be a heroine, suffering martyrdom, using painful bandages, irritating salves, sticky tape, toe-harnesses, blood-bringing razors and scissors! She says now there's no sense in it. Use "Gets-It," applied in 2 seconds. Easy, simple, new way—just painless common sense! Millions are doing it. Never fails. You can wear smaller shoes now. You don't have to limp around any more, or walk on the side of your shoes to try to get away from your corns! You know for sure before you use "Gets-It" that the corn or callus is going away. For corns, calluses, warts and bunions.

"Gets-It" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, other thousands have headaches every week and still others have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, no matter what their nature, take Anti-kamnia Tablets and the results will be satisfactory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 10c worth, 25c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick headache, the most miserable of all sicknesses, loses its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets, and in many cases the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The rest and comfort which follow can be obtained in no other way.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the AK monogram. At all Drugists.—ADV.

NEW M. A. A. HOME WILL BE OPENED SOON AFTER JAN. 1

Building Planned as One of the Finest Clubhouses in the United States.

FIREPROOF THROUGHOUT

Swimming Pool, Gymnasium and Running Track All on the Fifth Floor.

The new 10-story $650,000 club building of the Missouri Athletic Association at Fourth street and Washington avenue, the site of the old building, which burned down with a loss of 30 lives, will be completed by Jan. 1. Officials of the club are preparing to open it with appropriate ceremonies soon after New Years day. It is expected the membership roll—2000 resident members and 1000 non-resident—will be filled within 10 days after the opening.

The club building will be one of the finest and most complete in the United States. The grand dining room, with four private dining rooms on the balcony and the banquet room opening into it, will be one of the most attractive in the west and will have a seating capacity of more than 1000. The opening banquet will be held in this room, which is 110 feet long and 54 feet wide, with a 21-foot ceiling. The dining room is painted in French gray, with costly tapestry in the panels of the walls. The leaded glass windows, the lighting effects from two huge fixtures, a curtained balcony off the private dining rooms, all contribute to the beauty and magnificence of the big dining room.

Building Is Fireproof.

The construction is fireproof throughout, but as a safety precaution there are two inclosed stairway fire escapes, with doors on each of the floors. The steel and concrete construction, the complete elimination of wood in the interior finish, tile petitions throughout the building and concrete floors throughout, make the building as nearly fireproof as is possible to construct any building.

The exterior design is Italian classic. The first and second stories are in Bedford stone, and the walls above are of brick, with terra cotta treatment.

The club rooms are arranged to provide the maximum of convenience and comfort for the members and their guests. The big gymnasium, 54 by 90 feet, is on the fifth floor, at the south end of the building, and the swimming pool, 30 by 75 feet, is on the same floor at the north end of the building. Between the two are lockers, 1000 in number, shower baths, physical instructor's room, ladies' lockers and a gymnasium. Above the gymnasium is a suspended running track with 16 laps to the mile.

The swimming pool is equipped with a filtration system and a violet ray sterilizer, which filters all water before it enters the pool and completely sterilizes the water in the tank every 16 hours. The tile floor of the tank is of a greenish color, giving the water the apparent color of the sea. There is a spectator's balcony all the way around the swimming pool.

A Complete Gymnasium.

The gymnasium will be equipped with every conceivable device for exercising the body and restoring fagged muscles to their normal condition and strength. On the fifth mezzanine floor there are six hand-ball courts, with 18-foot ceilings. The squash and racquet courts are on the roof, and are absolutely regulation size and finished with ample galleries.

The first bedrooms are on the sixth floor, one-half of which will be used for sleeping. The seventh, eighth, ninth and part of the tenth floors are utilized for sleeping purposes, there being 197 bedrooms in the club building, 100 of which are equipped with shower and tub baths. Some of the rooms are arranged in suites so that two or more members may occupy them, and have the convenience of both a bedroom, sitting room and private bath.

The gymnasium, the dining rooms, the swimming pool, the kitchen, nearly all the bedrooms, the lockers, the handball, racquet and squash courts are all practically completed, with the exception of the decorations.

The lobby of the club and grill will be on the first floor, and the east corner will be used as a banking room. There will be a grand stairway leading from the lobby on the first floor to the lobby of the grand dining room on the second floor. The interior finish of the lobby will be oak wainscoting. There will be mezzanine floors around the lobby, containing the manager's office, barber shop, writing room and double-deck coatrooms. The ladies' parlor, cloakroom, telephone booths, coatrooms for men and washrooms will all be on the first floor.

The elevator service is so arranged that the rear elevators will be available to members only, so that they may pass from their rooms to the gymnasium without being fully dressed. Guests will use the front elevators only.

Special attention to the kitchen was given by the designers of the building, for eating seems to be one of the principal features of athletic training. The ample kitchen has a ceiling 22 feet high, with mezzanine floors leading directly to all private dining rooms. The kitchen is arranged so that the dining rooms may be served quickly, and with the least possible amount of work. The storerooms are in the rear of the kitchen, and the receiving rooms open on Lucas avenue. The kitchen occupies the northwest corner of the second floor.

Care Taken With Plans.

No building in St. Louis was ever erected under such strict supervision. The building committee, comprised of William C. Connett, chairman, H. M. Cryder, C. H. Smith, William C. Johnson and John A. Laird, supervised the letting of every contract, and G. F. A. Brueggeman exercised very close supervision over the construction work. It is said the club members will have delivered to them at a cost of $600,000 a building which under the ordinary methods of letting contracts and supervising construction work would have cost from $750,000 to $800,000. All the money for the construction of the building was in the bank before the work was started, the first mortgage 25-year 5½ per cent bonds having been sold to the Boatmen's Bank, which owned the site; the second mortgage 35-year 5 per cent bonds were sold at par, and the members took the third mortgage bonds, to the amount of $175,000 at par.

The amount of the first mortgage bonds was $300,000 and the second mortgage $125,000.

Each resident member subscribed for one $100 bond, and many of the members subscribed for five to 10 bonds. The club will be supported by the initiation fees of $100 for each member, subsequently to be increased to $200, and the annual dues of $40 for each member. The club will derive a big revenue from its dining and bedrooms. An annual ground rental of $16,500 a year is paid by the club, but the 60 by 120 foot banking room was leased to the German-American Bank for 20 years at an annual rental of $12,000. This leaves a net ground rental of only $4500 a year to be paid by the club.

The building has a frontage of 112 feet and 9 inches on Washington avenue, 150 feet on Fourth street, and a strip 22 feet 6 inches wide and 76 feet long to Lucas avenue, making a total of 18,522 square feet embraced on the ground floor.

Club Has 600 Members.

There are 600 members in the Missouri Athletic Association who were not members of the Missouri Athletic Club. The Board of Governors of the new club are making it more exclusive, and are requiring a higher standard for membership than in the old organization. They say that the club will not only be the principal downtown club of St. Louis, but that it will occupy the same relative position in St. Louis that the Chicago and New York Athletic Clubs do in those cities.

The club officials say the membership lists will be closely scrutinized in the future, and only those who are willing to meet the requirements of a high-class club will be admitted.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors Thursday night, 23 new members were admitted, among them being railroad presidents and leading business men and bankers of the city.

The New Members Elected.

In the list were: B. F. Bush, president Missouri Pacific Railway; James T. Caradine, William A. Hopkins, Emil B. Krausse, James L. Minnis, general solicitor Wabash Railroad; L. E. McQuay, P. R. Walsh, R. Vernon Clark, Fred C. Dabb, treasurer Terminal Railroad Association; John D. Filley, Albert W. Gray, general manager Belding Bros. & Co.; Ernest M. Hubbard, bonds, Hubbard-D'Oench Bond Co.; Benjamin R. Leavell, manager Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Neil A. McMillan, banker, St. Louis Union Bank; Charlie Murphy, Edward A. Nixon, George S. Rogers, traveling metallurgist, Southern Railway Supply Co.; J. Clark Streett, William L. Schmick, Thomas S. Walton, Fred Krey, president Krey Packing Co.; Frank K. Houston, vice president Third National Bank, and Richard McCulloch, president United Railways Co.

"CARMEN" 4 WAYS AND "POLLYANNA" BILLS THIS WEEK

Dramatization of "Glad Book" Will Open at Olympic Tomorrow Night.

This Week's Bills at St. Louis Playhouses

"Maid in America," Shubert. Tonight last time. Winter Garden musical and dancing revue, with Florence Moore and Mlle. Dazie in leading roles.

"Pollyanna," Olympic, tomorrow night. Dramatization of Eleanor H. Porter's "Glad Book," with Patricia Collinge in title role.

Mme. Calve, Columbia, tomorrow. Noted operatic singer heads vaudeville bill with her husband, Sig. Gasparri. Nazimova in "War Brides," last times today and tonight.

"Nearly Married," Park, tomorrow night. Farce-comedy by The Players. "Halloween Follies," by Park Opera Co., twice today.

"Halloween Follies," Shenandoah, tomorrow night. "Mary Jane's Pa," twice today.

"Battle and Fall of Przemysl," Shubert, tomorrow night. Official German and Austrian War moving pictures.

"The Birth of a Nation," Garrick. Photoplay of Civil War and Reconstruction.

"Carmen," Princess. Geraldine Farrar in photoplay.

"Carmen," New Grand Central. Theda Bara in photoplay.

"A Little Girl in a Big City," American.

Vaudeville, Grand. De Pace Opera Co. heads bill tomorrow.

Burlesque, Standard. "Beauty, Youth and Folly."

Burlesque, Gayety. "The Tourists."

Photoplay, King's. "The Magic Skin."

Photoplay, West End Lyric. "The Masqueraders."

Photoplay, Congress. Mrs. Carter in "Heart of Maryland."

Photoplay, Juniata. Mary Pickford in "Girl of Yesterday."

Photoplay, Lorelei. Helen Ware in "That Lass o' Lowrie's."

Carmen, that black-eyed and trouble-making damsel, will have quite a week of it in St. Louis. The Geraldine Farrar film, "Carmen," is already running at the Princess Theater; the Theda Bara film, "Carmen" is to be shown, beginning this afternoon, at the New Grand Central, and Mme. Emma Calve, whose name is almost synonymous with that of the Spanish coquette, will begin a vaudeville engagement at the Columbia tomorrow afternoon, singing a selection from Bizet's "Carmen" music, among other things. Also, at the Shenandoah Miss Sarah Edwards will seriously impersonate Carmen as an incident of the "Halloween Follies."

Calve's vaudeville program has five numbers, three of which are solos by herself, one a duet with her husband, Sig. Galileo Gasparri, Italian grand opera singer, and the fifth a solo by Sig. Gasparri. Calve's solos will be an aria from Puccini' "Tosca," the Habanera song from "Carmen" and Gounod's "O My Harp Immortal." The duet will be from Gounod's "Faust," and Gasparri's solo will be from "Tosca." This tour is Gasparri's American debut. Mme. Nazimova's engagement in "War Brides" at the Columbia ends with her two appearances today.

A two weeks' engagement of "Pollyanna" will begin at the Olympic Theater tomorrow night. The play is a dramatization of Eleanor H. Porter's "Glad Book," and is produced by the new managerial alliance of Klaw & Erlanger and George Tyler. Patricia Collinge appears as Pollyanna Whittier, the "glad girl," and other members of the cast are Herbert Kelcey, Effie Shannon (Kelcey and Shannon of old days), Jessie Busley, Philip Merivale, Maude Granger, Maud Hosford, Lorin Raker, Bobby Tobin, Harry Barfoot and Carolyn McLean.

"Maid in America" will have its last performance at the Shubert tonight. Monday night "The Battle and Fall of Przemysl," a series of German and Austrian official motion pictures of the recapture of the Galician stronghold, will be shown. These pictures will be continuous, from 1 to 10:30 p. m., the rest of the week.

"The Birth of a Nation," photoplay, at the Garrick, begins its tenth week in St. Louis today, and it is announced that its engagement here will end Nov. 27, making 13 weeks in all.

"The Lilac Domino," Andreas Dippel's notable musical and scenic production, will come to the Shubert next Sunday.

The Players, at the Park Theater tomorrow night, will present Edgar Selwyn's comedy, "Nearly Married," in which Marie Tempest and her company of English players appeared last spring at the Shubert Theater. The theme of the play is the elopement of a divorced couple endeavoring to remarry, handicapped by the well-meant interference of friends. Miss Frances Neilson, who was leading woman of the Suburban Garden stock company a few seasons ago, will become leading woman of The Players with this engagement. "Halloween Follies" will go to the Shenandoah.

The American Theater will have its farewell week as a house of spoken drama with "A Little Girl in a Big City," which would seem to require no description beyond its title. Next Sunday the Triangle Film Corporation will take over the American, and will begin the presentation of its photoplays, twice daily, at a price scale of 10 and 25 cents, with all seats reserved.

Lorelei Theater, Olive Near Taylor, Opened Last Night.

The Lorelei motion picture playhouse, on Olive street just west of Taylor avenue, in the building made familiar by the natatorium of the same name, opened last night. The feature film was "That Lass o' Lowrie's," with Helen Ware in the principal role. Night performances will be at 7:15 and 9 p. m. The handsome new theater is conducted by the Gertrude Amusement Company, of which J. J. Landay is president.

FAIR FOR BENEFIT OF FREE ITALIAN SCHOOL DEC. 11-12

Parishes of Which Father Spigardi Is the Pastor Want More Teachers for 675 Children.

The parishes of St. Charles Borromeo and Our Lady Help of Christians, of which Rev. Father Caesar Spigardi is pastor, are preparing for a fair to be given Dec. 11 and 12 in the parish house of St. Charles Borromeo Church, 2901 Locust street, for the benefit of the free school of Italian children at Tenth and Wash streets.

The school that is the beneficiary of the fair, is modern in its building and equipment, covering all the departments from kindergarten to the eighth grade. There are 675 children and only seven teachers, all of whom are nuns of the order of Zelatrixe of the Sacred Heart. In some of the lower grades more than 100 children are under one teacher.

Proceeds of the fair will be used to enlarge the building and its equipment and to provide additional teachers.

ST. LOUIS GIRL SUCCESS AS APPLE GROWER IN THE WEST

Sends Pick of Her Crop Here for Distribution Among Her Old Friends.

Miss Bessie Baron, who formerly lived at 3249 Copelin place, is the first woman to make a success of apple growing in the Okanogan country in Washington, and because she wants all her friends in St. Louis to know of her achievement she is shipping the pick of her first big crop here for distribution among them.

Miss Baron went west six years ago because of ill health, and bought a ranch in the Okanogan region, for which she paid $1.50 an acre. The entire acreage was planted to apples. Last year the trees began to bear, and this year the first big crop was picked. The success of the venture, and the fact that Miss Baron is the only woman rancher in that section who has succeeded, has gained her the title of the "Apple Queen of Okanogan." Shortly before her crop was picked this season she was offered $1200 an acre for the ranch.

In writing to her friends about sending the apples to St. Louis she says she personally inspected every apple destined for this city because she wanted all sent here to be perfect, and she offers $1 for every worm found in the apples.

Comedy for Benefit of Church.

A musical comedy will be presented at St. Mark's Church Wednesday by the choir, under the personal direction of Angelo Gilsinn, for the benefit of the church. There will be dancing.

ANTICIPATION SALE

of Pianos and Player-Pianos for Holiday Gifts

New Player-Pianos $345 up

Freedom to Choose the Best Pianos and Players

"THE PIANO HOUSE OF ST. LOUIS" owns no Piano factories and is under obligations to no Piano maker or group of makers.

It is free to choose any Piano the world provides; FREE to discard that make promptly should a better appear; FREE to take advantage of every point of progress made by invention in creating better instruments, or by efficiency in lowering prices.

The "Nine Famous Pianos" offered today at Conroy's are, in the opinion of experts, the nine foremost American instruments at their respective prices.

Knabe A. B. Chase Gabler
Emerson Autopiano Francis Bacon
Brewster Foster Kohler & Campbell

They must maintain their superiority to remain at Conroy's.

Any one who ever bought a Piano or Player-Piano here has the satisfaction of knowing that, in the opinion of competent men, the instrument purchased was the equal, if not indeed the superior, of any the world afforded for the price.

Any one who may buy here tomorrow—or next year—or ten years hence—will have the same satisfying assurance that no "entangling alliances" will have bound our freedom of choice.

Pianos and Player-Pianos, $195 to $1250; as cheap as safety permits—as rich as any home requires.

Every instrument at every price DOUBLY guaranteed; once by the maker, again by Conroy's.

Every instrument sold as low as that make can be had anywhere in the United States.

Your Own Terms—In Reason

Examine the Pianos here—choose the instrument you like best—decide how you can most conveniently buy it, fixing yourself the sum to be paid down and the sums to be paid monthly.

Tell us your plan. Unless it is entirely beyond all bounds of good business we will accept it.

A Better Allowance Now for Your Old Piano in Exchange

Because we wish to prepare during the winter as many old Pianos as possible for our Spring Sale we are now able to make a much better allowance for your old Piano than ordinarily.

If you have considered the purchase of a new instrument now is your chance. Next Spring your Piano will not be worth as much to us or to any other house as now. It is depreciating steadily in value, and that depreciation alone is a considerable offset against the cost of a new instrument bought on the deferred payment plan.

Berlin Couple Here on Honeymoon Since Before the War.

TEMPLE, Tex., Oct. 30.—A 14 months' honeymoon is more than August Hedderich and his bride of Berlin, Germany, bargained for when they set sail for America on July 14, 1914, to see something of the new world on their bridal trip. Soon after their departure war conditions obstructed passenger traffic between America and Germany and the honeymoon trip has lengthened without effort on the part of the travelers.

The couple has spent the time seeing America and although they agree that this is a beautiful country, they both are anxious to return to the Fatherland and settle down to domestic life. Mr. and Mrs. Hedderich spent last week in Temple visiting friends. They were en route to New Orleans.

The Hair-Destroying Curling Iron Passes

The heated iron makes the hair dry and parched looking, burns off the ends, giving a most untidy appearance. You who have learned this from sad experience will be glad to hear of a very simple method which is open to none of the objections referred to and which gives better results than the curling iron.

Just get a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine at your druggist's and apply a little to the hair at night with a clean toothbrush, drawing this down one strand at a time from root to tip. In the morning your hair will be as beautifully wavy and curly as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will be much prettier than if you used a waving iron, and the health of your hair will not suffer. As silmerine is not sticky or greasy it is quite pleasant to use.—ADV.

SENT TO ASYLUM FOR SAYING THAT HE KILLED GIRL

Sanity Board, After Hearing Alibi Evidence by Relatives, Hold Man Is Insane.

CRIME REMAINS MYSTERY

Experts Declare Story of Courtship and Murder Is a Permanently Fixed Delusion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30.—The peculiar mental condition of Alfred Driskell, 22 years old, who has insisted repeatedly that he murdered a young girl more than three years ago, despite the testimony of his relatives and friends proving an alibi for him, was a deep study for a board of alienists, who finally adjudged the youth a monomaniac and committed him to a hospital for the insane.

Testifying before this board, he again told the grewsome story of how he choked the girl to death when she refused to marry him, and, when his mother got on the stand to testify for him, he warned his examiners not to believe what she said. The mental condition of this youth was described by one of the alienists, Dr. L. F. Foote, as a fixed delusion, which he will carry as long as he lives. Although a great deal of testimony was introduced to show that it was improbable that Driskell killed the girl, he steadfastly clung to his story, at the same time admitting that he was insane.

Driskell's confession was first reported from Arkansas, and he was brought here in hope that he had cleared the mystery.

The girl, Miss Alice Matthews, was found choken to death almost on the doorstep of her home in South Minneapolis the night of March 22, 1915. Mystery surrounded her murder, and as yet no one has been punished for the crime. Although Driskell has confessed four times that he killed her, little or no credence has been given to his story because of the almost positive evidence that he could not have done it, and because his mind is known to have been affected.

Describes Murder Sensation.

When asked by a member of the board how he felt after he killed the girl, Driskell said:

"The only sensation was that of a man who kills his pet rabbit and feels queer over it. I choken her with both hands."

Young Driskell presented an unusual study, the examining physicians agreed. His head is of peculiar shape, the forehead appearing rather low because of fullness at the crown, accentuated by a shock of straight, dry brown hair. His eyes are deepest. His lips are thick and drawn at the corners and his chin thin and pointed.

He told of taking cocaine and morphine while in the United States army, referred to his term at the state training school, attempted to display a knowledge of drugs, gave some little insights into his regard for life, saying he regarded himself as a failure, discussed an erratic letter he sent to a newspaper, and told a bloodcurdling tale of how he murdered a young girl.

"What induced you to make this confession?" inquired Dr. Foote.

"I expected to be sentenced to a place like this so I could be treated for being 'off,' or whatever you call it," he replied.

He explained that when he confessed in Arkansas he thought he would be returned to Minneapolis, that he would be tried for murder, but that insane criminals are not treated at the state prison.

Knew He Was Insane.

"And I knew I was insane and would be able to prove it," he said.

"You mean to say that you lied when you said you killed Alice Matthews?"

"No. The memory of it is so vivid in my brain I can see it done."

"Did Alice Matthews hurt you at all?"

"No. She fought back but didn't hurt me. She didn't scratch me or tear my clothes, only pushed and struggled to get away. I didn't tear her clothes."

"How did you kill her?"

"I choked her," he replied cooly, with a trace of disgust at the question.

"You still believe you killed Alice Matthews?" asked Dr. Quinby.

"I'm certain of it."

"Sure of it?"

"Yes."

"What reason did you have for killing her?"

"I asked her to marry me."

"And she refused?"

"She did."

Asked in what position he was to marry—what wages he earned, he answered:

"I was a blamed fool. I didn't realize what I was doing when I asked her to marry me."

He had known the girl about three months, he said, and had seen her 10 or a dozen times, but he could not recall anything about her hat or clothing, or whether she wore eyeglasses.

"Her hair was neither curly nor straight—just young women's ordinary hair, a little fluffy, but plain rather than fancy," he said.

"I never knew where she was working and never cared—it was none of my business. I supposed she was working, though, because she didn't look a girl who had millions of dollars."

Normal as a Child.

Mrs. Etta Dougherty, Driskell's mother, said her son appeared to be a normal healthy boy, until he was 14 years old, when he showed a desire to be alone most of the time rather than associate with his chums. When he was 15, and the family lived at Anoka, she said, he broke into a store, but refused to divulge the names of other boys she was confident were implicated.

The woman was positive that the boy was at home in New Brighton the night Alice Matthews was murdered. She fixed the date, she said, because of mention at the time of a New Brighton suspect and a call from the State visitor from the Red Wing Training School, of which the boy had previously been an inmate.

MAJOR AND KIEL PILE DRIVERS

Governor and Mayor Will Officiate for Riverview Club.

The first pile for the clubhouse of the Riverview Club will be driven by Gov. Major and Mayor Kiel jointly at a ceremony at the club grounds next Wednesday, according to an announcement, signed by Col. Horace S. Rumsey, president, and Louis Nolte, secretary, mailed to the members yesterday. There will be music and dancing on the Steamer Spread Eagle, which has been chartered by the club for the occasion, and admission to which will be by special pass.

GETTING GRAY? USE SAGE TEA TO RESTORE NATURAL COLOR OF YOUR HAIR

Says Sage Tea when Mixed with Sulphur Darkens the Hair Just Beautifully and Removes Dandruff.

Hair that loses its color and luster, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of the ready to use preparation, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally; so evenly, that nobody can possible tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it brings back the gloss and luster and gives it an appearance of abundance.—ADV.

ROAD WORK BY STATE CONVICTS WILL BE URGED

Organization Circulating Petition to Be Presented to Legislature.

Officers o fthe Missouri Good Roads Society, which recently opened headquarters in the Pierce Building, are circulating petitions throughout the State asking the Legislature to provide a measure for the employment of convicts upon State road work and to forbid further leases of convicts to private contractors. George E. Vogle, president of the society and Allan H. Cole, secretary, said today that they had secured the signatures of 1000 business men of St. Louis.

Vogle said that the Georgia system of using convicts is favored. He said the last official reports in Georgia show that road construction nonw costs but $49 a mile in that State, or about $1.58 per capita. He said this system will solve the good roads problem in Missouri where the farmers are united against a bond issue for road improvement.

LORD MORLEY BREAKS SILENCE LASTING SINCE WAR BEGAN

Asks What House of Lords Is for if Opinion of Members Is Not Asked.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—When the Marquis of Crewe told the House of Lords that he could not speak on foreign affairs with the first hand knowledge possessed by Sir Edward Grey and advised the lords to attend the gallery of the other House if they wished to hear the forthcoming announcement on Balkan afafirs, his suggestion was sufficient to draw from Viscount Morley the first public utterance of any sort that he has made since war was declared when he, with John Burns and Sir George Trevelyan, withdrew from the Cabinet.

Lord Morley broke his long silence with the observation that the suggestion amounted to reducing "our system to a single-chamber government," adding:

"What is this House for if on occasions of such enormous importance our opinion is not to be in any way consulted, and if we are to have no opportunity of saying whether we agree with the Government or not."

It was not the serious aspect of anything he said, but the simple fact that he had said anything at all that gave interest to the statement. As if by agreement, the three men who left the Cabinet at the outbreak of war have taken no public part in any discussions, and even the great prominence of John Morley, as he is known to the world of letters, has not hitherto been sufficient to draw the veil from this voluntary obscurity.

Again Lord Morley arose in the House and addressed a membership that was wont to hear him often in earlier years. This time he devoted his remarks to a criticism of the Balkan campaign, expressing the hope that Great Britain was not being drawn unprepared into another theater of war.

MAKE YOUR OWN LIQUORS AT HOME

Anyone Can Now Make Their Own Liquors at Home and Save Money.

A well-known distiller of this city has just produced a Concentrated Extract, with which anyone can now make right at home any Whiskey, Liquor or Cordial, at a saving of over fifty per cent of the liquor dealers' prices. It's very simple and easy. A few minutes does the work, requiring no apparatus, no boiling, no experience whatsoever. It is said that the liquors made are far superior to those that can be purchased at most liquor stores, and as a result of this discovery, thousands of people all over the country are already making their own liquors at home. The legality of his method has been carefully investigated by the highest authorities and found to comply with the laws in every respect. No one now need be without their favorite liquor, as it can be made right at home, or anywhere, in a jiffy, just when wanted. The news of this amazing discovery has startled the country, and he has already received thousands of letters of praise. Anyone can try a quart of his favorite liquor free by writing to M. W. Prickett, 1416 Universal Bldg., Cincinnati, O., and ask for his interesting booklet, "Secrets of Making Liquors at Home," which he will send free to anyone sending their name and address.—ADV.

KINGDOM HOUSE BENEFIT TUESDAY A MUSICAL EVENT

Joint Recital by Pasquale Amato, Baritone, and Florence Macbeth of Metropolitan Opera.

A delightful musical event will be the joint recital at the Odeon on Tuesday evening of Pasquale Amato and Florence Macbeth, American soprano, for the benefit of Kingdom House, the social settlement. The famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House ranks with Caruso and Farrar in drawing power with New York audiences, and is at the height of his artistic success. Macbeth is one of the younger coloratura prima donnas, and has a voice of remarkable range and flexibility, with a warmth of color and tenderness. Tickets for the joint recital are on sale at the Famous & Barr Co. at prices usual for one artist alone.

The opportunity of hearing two such famous stars in so worthy a cause will no doubt be generally welcomed. The program follows:

(a) Beau Soir..................C. Debussy
(b) Trois jours de vendange—
(c) Fetes galantes..................R. Hahn
Mr. Amato.

CREDIT MEN'S ASSOCIATION REPORTS MEMBERSHIP GAINS

Festus J. Wade Addresses Members at Monthly Meeting on Loan to Allies.

At the monthly meeting of the St. Louis Association of Credit Men at the City Club Thursday night, W. J. Burton, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that 15 firms had become members since the last meeting.

J. W. Chilton, manager of the Adjustment and Reporting Bureau, announced that the central exchange bureau would be in operation Nov. 1 and that more than 50 bureaus would file copies of their reports with the central bureau.

Festus J. Wade spoke on the necessity of international credits. He said that if the United States bankers had not made loans to the European nations at war, their chests would have been emptied of all their gold and this country would not have had an outlet for its surplus manufactured merchandise.

The speaker paid a tribute to the bankers who raised the vast sums for these loans, saying that in so doing, they showed the highest type of loyalty to America's citizenship. He pointed out that heretofore all our operations involving money had been conducted with the pound sterling, francs or marks as the basis of exchange, mentioning that we paid bankers more than $25,000,000 on exchange annually, and calling attention to our opportunity to now obtain control of the finances and commerce of the world.

PECULIAR LAW THAT RULES AWARD OF VICTORIA CROSS

Gallant Act That Wins It Must Be Performed Without Orders—Why Destroyer of Bridge Did Not Get It.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Why the young navy officer who swam ashore from a British submarine in the sea of Marmora and blew up the Ismid Railway bridge in spite of the Turkish guard should receive only the Distinguished Service Order has astonished the public, since so many lesser heroes have received the greater honor of the Victoria Cross.

But the award was made under a rule that has long obtained in the services. Even Lieut. Holbrooke would have obtained merely the D. S. O. for taking his submarine through the mine field of the Dardanelles and sinking a Turkish warship had not the King himself intervened.

By the unwritten law of the service, the Victoria Cross is awarded for a deed of great gallantry performed without orders, and generally for saving lives under fire. The D. S. O. is for gallantry in following orders. Yet Lieut. Guy Hughes, in blowing up the Ismid bridge, acted on his own initiative from the time he left his boat until he was picked up again, and in popular opinion should have received the more coveted medal. It is a good deal like the case of Lieut. Warneford in attacking and wrecking a Zeppelin, which resulted in a V. C.

NATIONAL SECURITY LEAGUE WANTS 10,000 MEMBERS HERE

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis branch of the National Security League has made plans for a campaign to enroll 10,000 members. A mass meeting will be held at the Coliseum within the next three weeks.

The purpose of the league is to promote the national defense. A larger navy, more and better trained army officers and a larger body of trained citizens available for military service are some of the measures advocated.

Membership in the league is of three kinds. Life members pay $25, contributing members $5 a year, and popular members $1 a year. William H. Brewster, field secretary of the national body, who organized the local branch about three months ago, was here yesterday.

WATER INSPECTOR CONFESSES PART IN WHOLESALE GRAFT

Robert Mahon Tells Collector Koeln Inside Workings of Syndicate Organized to Rob the City and Describes How the Money Was Pooled Each Day.

REGULAR MEETINGS HELD IN SALOON

Collected License Fees at Premises Where Books Showed Water Had Been Turned Off—Will Make Clean Breast to Harvey Tomorrow.

Organized graft in the city water department has been discovered by Collector Koeln and as the result of his investigation the past week, four inspectors were summarily dismissed yesterday and evidence will be submitted tomorrow to Circuit Attorney Harvey of the wholesale peculations. It will include the full confession of one of the four inspectors, who revealed how the graft was organized and how the "syndicate" pooled its thefts, the members meeting in a saloon near the city hall to report on the day's "pickings."

This inspector confessed to Collector Koeln that he and others in the syndicate pocketed payments by water consumers and concealed the graft by juggling entries in the office records.

The investigation conducted by Koeln during the past week so far disclosed irregularities in only one of the 12 districts, and he said Inspector Robert R. Mahon, 1718 Missouri avenue, has admitted that his share of unlawful collections under the July due period, amounted to between $50 and $100.

Mayor Hears Story.

Mayor Kiel, who returned unexpectedly in the morning from Excelsior Springs, heard a part of the confession made by Mahon to Collector Koeln and City Counselor Daues in the Collector's office in the afternoon.

Mayor Kiel previously had announced that he would send a special message to the Board of Aldermen Friday asking for an appropriation sufficient to enable the city official auditor to audit every fiscal office in which the city has an interest, including the offices of the Sheriff, Collector and Circuit Clerk.

The Mayor, after a conference with Water Commissioner Wall, also announced that no successor to Claude B. Burton, deposed Supervisor of Water Rates Assessment, a $3000 place, would be appointed. Instead, Commissioner Wall will place the division in charge of a chief clerk at $125 a month, William T. Kercheis, who is temporary head of the division since Burton's dismissal for having borrowed $250 from the cash drawer which he is said to have loaned to John B. Owen at 6 per cent interest.

Sattell Is Dismissed.

Ferdinand J. C. Sattell, cashier in the water division of the Collector's office, was dismissed yesterday by Collector Koeln, as a result of his admission that he allowed Burton to take $250 from the cash drawer. Sattell denied any transaction of the kind at the time he admitted that John B. Owen, Deputy Collector in charge, had pyramided a personal post-dated check to $2000 in nine months, drawing that amount from the office till.

Owen was indicted under an embezzlement statute last Wednesday by the grand jury, which has heard testimony regarding the Burton transaction, and will resume this phase of the investigation tomorrow.

Koeln yesterday dismissed besides Sattell, the following inspectors: Frank S. White, 2737 Tamm avenue; Robert H. Bensel, 2647A St. Vincent avenue; John F. Klockmann, 4521 Natural Bridge avenue, and Frank M. Watts. Collector Koeln said the four men were dismissed for the good of the service and that he had not discussed the dismissal with any of the men who were dropped.

The investigation which led to the admissions by Mahon that he had been pocketing the money of water consumers which should have been turned into the city treasury, grew out of a request from Mrs. Elizabeth Evans that her water license be transferred from one house to another in the 4900 block, Forest Park boulevard, when she moved last week.

Mrs. Evans called at the city hall and asked a deputy to make the transfer instead of exacting additional payment, as both houses were of the same number of rooms and the license for each would be $5.50 for a six-month period.

Record Proves False.

The office record showed that the water had been "shut off" in August at Mrs. Evans' previous home, for "non-payment" of a license due in July. The clerk referred Mrs. Evans to Collector Koeln when she insisted that she had paid the license at the old place. Collector Koeln asked her to produce a receipt if she had paid, and Mrs. Evans returned in an hour or so with a printed notice to pay, on which had been written "Paid—R. R. Mahon."

POST-DISPATCH INQUIRY SHOWS GREAT BUSINESS REVIVAL IN ST. LOUIS

Dry Goods Firms Have Increase of $3,000,000 In Sales for September and October Compared With Same Months Last Year.

INQUIRY by Post-Dispatch reporters into business conditions in St. Louis reveals that there has been a remarkable revival and a complete restoration of confidence in almost every line of business and industry during the past two months.

The wholesale dry goods houses have had an increase of approximately $3,000,000 in sales for September and October over the same months of last year; the business of the International Shoe Co. alone, among the great shoe houses of the city, shows an increase of $1,100,000 over October of last year.

The clothing manufacturers and distributors say that they are overwhelmed with orders, are operating all their plants at full capacity and giving employment to every experienced workman they can get, one firm having advertised last Sunday for 250 garment workers.

The hardware, steel, hat, hotel, millinery, railroad, express and other lines of business are all in a flourishing condition, and business men and manufacturers say that conditions were never better for a period of unexampled prosperity.

The officials of many firms report the greatest business they have ever known. The business revival began in August, gained great headway in September, and showed unexpected gains in October. Orders were flowing into practically every wholesale, manufacturing and distributing house in great numbers yesterday, indicating that November business will open tomorrow with a rush not equaled in recent years—certainly not since the great business of 1906 and 1907.

The greatest disturbing factor in local business is inability to get or manufacture goods to meet the extraordinary demand for merchandise. Clothing manufacturers and distributors are hard pressed on account of the scarcity of dyestuffs, and the withdrawal of 16 of the 40 mills of the American Woolen Co. from domestic business to manufacture 5,000,000 yards of woolen goods at $1.60 a yard for the Russian Government has cut down the supply of woolen cloth; while hardware merchants and the distributors of other finished steel and iron products are having great difficulty in getting goods on account of the European demand for war supplies.

The bank clearings of St. Louis show an increase of $43,000,000 for September and $77,000,000 for October over the same months of last year. The bank clearings for October were $379,076,429. As the clearings represent only 35 per cent of the actual business transactions of the city, it will be seen that the business of St. Louis amounted to more than $1,000,000,000 for the month of October alone, and approximately $950,000,000 for September.

Prosperity Wave General.

Business men who have made careful and critical study of conditions throughout the country say that the wave of prosperity is not local to St. Louis, but is general throughout every section of the United States; that in the South especially the famine of last year has been turned into a feast of prosperity never before equaled; that wonderful crops in every part of the country have created billions of new wealth during the past 12 months; that these crops have been marketed at high prices, and that the farmers are spending their money freely for merchandise of every kind.

Wholesale and distributing houses have increased their sales and clerical forces 30 per cent to handle the new business. Here is what representative business men and manufacturers say:

Jackson Johnson, president of the International Shoe Co.: Business from Aug. 15 until today is greater than at any previous period with our company. We will show a gain of approximately $1,100,000 for October this year over the same month last year. Friday's business was $40,000 in excess of that of the same day last year.

The International Shoe Co. is employing 8917 people, which is 3000 more than last year. Business is great. It is caused by good crops, restoration of confidence, more employment of labor than last year and the increased demand for products of all kinds.

Ernest W. Stix of Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co.: Our business for September and October was by far the greatest in the history of our firm. Buyers are flocking to St. Louis from all parts of the country to get merchandise; our three factories in St. Louis are being operated on full time; we are producing 100 per cent more goods than ever before; we are employing every experienced garment worker that we can find and need more of that class of help.

During the last two years merchants throughout the country let their stocks run down, and they bought conservatively during the market season—that is when they came here two or three months ago to get their fall stocks. The crops have now been harvested and sold at high prices, and there is a demand for merchandise that is nothing short of remarkable. Our salesmen on the road are sending in big orders for immediate and spring delivery; in fact, our advance orders are far ahead of anything in previous history.

The only difficulty we are having is getting enough goods to supply the demand. The mills are cutting down their contracts for spring delivery on account of the shortage in dye stuffs. In fact, the only big stocks of goods to be found anywhere now are in the hands of the jobbers, who prepared themselves for the business which they saw coming. We have had to increase our sales and clerical forces 30 per cent to take care of the increased business.

Otto Sonnenburgh, manager Jefferson Hotel: We entertained 5000 more guests this October than October last year. Our business has shown an increase of 75 to 100 per cent. We have always a waiting list on our registers. There have been more merchants, salesmen and tourists in St. Louis this year than I have ever known. Salesmen coming here tell me that they had never seen such wonderful business, and that it is no trouble whatever to sell goods.

E. J. Marx, president of the Marx-Haas Clothing Co., manufacturers and distributors: I never saw such business in all my life. Our firm has been in the clothing business for 32 years, but we have never had anything equal to the present demand for goods. If the weather was cold we could not begin to fill orders. Our October business was 100 per cent better than that of last year, and our advance orders are the largest we have ever had. Our factories have been operating every day since last April, and they are now at full capacity.

Shelby H. Curlee, president Curlee Clothing Co.: We are employing 1500 people in our eight factories, and taking all the experienced help we can get. I advertised in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday for 250 hands. Our business showed a gain of 270 per cent last week. September and October business was the best in our history. We have more than 40 salesmen on the road, and all are sending in good reports about business conditions.

An official of the Wells-Fargo Express Co. said that it was employing many extra wagons and automobile trucks to handle its increased business. Both the ingoing and outgoing business has shown a remarkable increase, and the company is having great trouble in getting the required storage space to take care of its business. Its wagons loaded with outgoing express are jammed around the station every night.

Roy T. Langenberg, president of the Gauss-Langenberg Hat Co.: This has been the best October in the history of this firm and November will be better. Our sales have increased 50 per cent over those of a year ago.

Max H. Jolly, president Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co.: Business is better because of a return of confidence by people in general, good prices for cotton and other staples in territory supplied by St. Louis. This company has made a substantial gain this fall over last fall's business, and our last spring's season was only 10 per cent below that of 1914. Collections are better, there are more mail orders and we are doing a larger volume of business than this time last year, though the quality of certain goods are not as high as some merchants formerly asked. We expect this to be the greatest season in our history.

Steel Industry Booming.

An executive official of a steel corporation, when asked for a statement of business conditions in his line of trade, said that an order had been issued by Judge Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, that minor officials should not discuss business conditions.

He said, with the understanding that his name was not to be used, that the steel business is booming and that the business in the West is good. The big business he attributed to good crops, restored confidence and demand for building materials.

Judge Gary yesterday gave out an official statement on the iron and steel industry, applicable to the entire country, in which he said:

"At the present time the demand for pig iron and for various lines of steel is in excess of the producing capacity of the furnaces and mills of the United States. The manufacturers are unable to make deliveries entirely satisfactory to the purchasers with respect to a large majority of the different kinds of finished steel.

"There is nothing to indicate that there will be a decrease in the demand for any of these products for some time. While prices received are still low, they have been and are increasing and apparently will go higher so that fair and reasonable profits may be expected.

"Of course, these very satisfactory conditions are more or less affected by the war business, so-called, yet it is undoubtedly true that there is a better

3000 U. S. TROOPS GO INTO TRENCHES AT DOUGLAS, ARIZ.

"I Do Not Propose to See an American Town Shot Up," Announces Gen. Davis.

GEN. VILLA WITH HIS ARMY

Battle Expected to Occur Tomorrow—Carranza Reinforcements Reach Agua Prieta.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 30.—Three thousand men of the Sixth United States infantry brigade were placed in trenches today within a few feet of the Mexican boundary, ready to interfere if an attack on the Carranza garrison of Agua Prieta, Sonora, by the Villa army, expected tomorrow or Monday, should result in shooting into American territory.

Brigadier-General Thomas J. Davis, brigade commander, said he would take every precaution to prevent any firing into Douglas.

"I do not propose to see any American town shot up," he said.

Villa's advance guard, under command of Col. Thomas Franco, reached San Bernardino, 20 miles east on the border today. Col. Franco gave the first definite information that Gen. Villa himself was with the army. He said Gen. Villa would arrive at San Bernardino tomorrow, indicating a battle would occur Monday.

Gen. P. Elias Calles, commanding Agua Prieta, also received reinforcements late today. The first of nine trains bearing troops and equipment from Laredo, Texas, arrived. It bore equipment consisting of field guns, ammunition and vehicles of all sorts from taxicabs to an old-time Tilbury. Other trains were expected tonight and tomorrow.

Villa Has 18,000 Men, 60 Guns.

Col. Franco declared Villa felt friendly toward Americans and desired to avoid all trouble. Villa, Col. Franco added, had 18,000 men and 60 80-millimeter or 3.14-inch field guns. Previous reports credited Villa with 7000 men and 28 guns.

The movement of the American troops from the camp, two miles east of Douglas, to points along the border, began this afternoon. The Twenty-second Infantry moved to a station directly south, a few yards from the barbed wire fences separating Mexico from the United States. The Eighteenth took a position west of the Twenty-second, while the Eleventh Infantry was assigned to a position directly facing Agua Prieta. The Twentieth Infantry and part of the Seventh were ordered into reserve at the camp.

Americans Have 30 Machine Guns.

The entire forces began intrenching and their work provided emplacements for about thirty machine guns if they should be needed.

As the Eleventh Infantry swung down the road running through the American town and on into Agua Prieta, virtually the entire garrison and population of the Mexican town crowded against the barbed wire barrier to watch as American picks and shovels went into action, ripping into the hard earth to form protective works on the Douglas border, the first time in the history of Mexican warfare on the boundary line.

The American trenches begin at a point a few feet west of the United States customs house and within less than twenty yards of the Carranza trenches at the rear of Amarieta. Mexicans working in these trenches dropped their picks and shovels and joined the throngs of gesticulating Mexican men, women and children watching the work of the American troops.

STOCK SPECULATOR ENDS LIFE

New York Man Said He Had Lost Heavily in War Securities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Richard H. Reid, 49 years old, a stock broker of 52 Broadway and until recently reputed to be a millionaire, killed himself this afternoon at his home at Williamsburg. He told his wife before he ended his life that he had lost heavily on war stocks.

Reid was found lying dead on a table in the butler's pantry. He had attached a tube to a jet and turned on the gas. Then he drew over his head a heavy pillow case and took the other end of the tube between his teeth. He made a pillow of his overcoat.

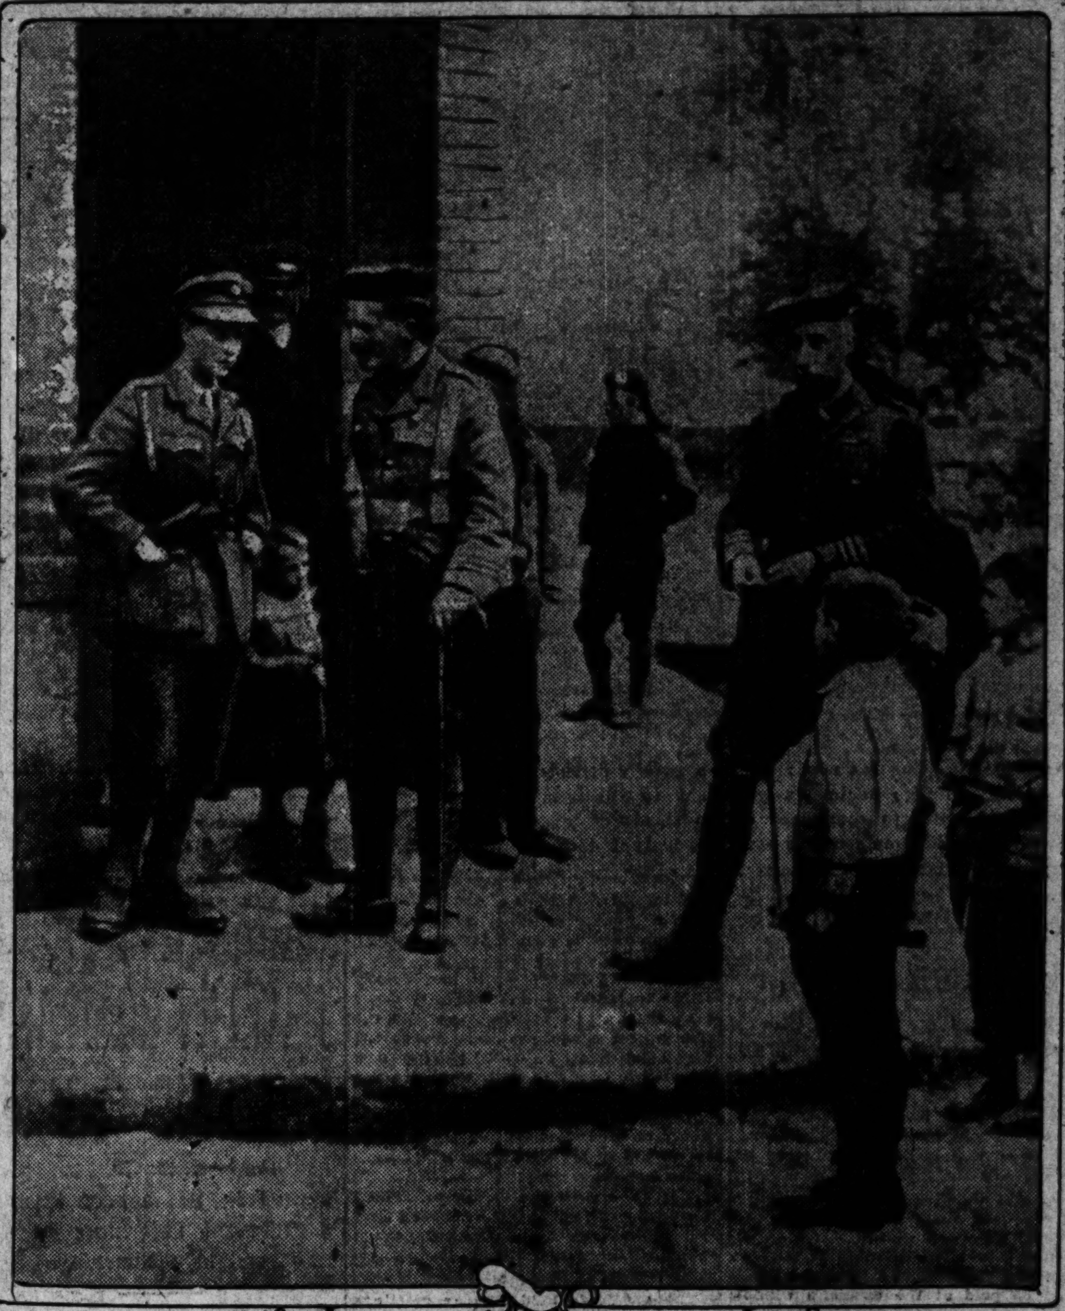
Prince of Wales Photographed in France



The Prince of Wales, who in the picture is seen talking to an officer of a Scotch regiment, arrived at Buckingham Palace in London Friday on leave from the front, where he has been for some time. It was presumed that he went to England to assure Queen Mary that King George had not been seriously hurt when his horse fell during the King's inspection of British troops in France Thursday morning. The Prince was 21 years old in June. He was promoted to a lieutenancy last year.

St. Louis County Judge Grants Divorce to Army Officer Whose Picture Is "the Plaintiff."

Sidney S. de Costa of Webster Groves, a Lieutenant in the United States army, stationed in the Philippines, was divorced in Judge Wurdeman's court at Clayton yesterday without being present except in the form of a photograph, which was shown to the Judge and was made a part of the record of the case. Mrs. Edna Ruth da Costa, from whom he was divorced, was not present either. It is the first time in the recollection of court attaches that a divorce decree has been granted without the plaintiff appearing in court.

Lieut. da Costa, in his petition, which was filed Aug. 13, sets forth that the marriage took place in Wilmington, Del., Jan. 15, 1912, and that his wife left him April 15 of the same year.

Served in Baltimore.

He alleged that she afterward contracted a bigamous marriage and that she was the mother of a child of which he was not the father. She was served in Baltimore with a copy of the petition.

The evidence was all documentary. The marriage certificate was introduced to show Da Costa's marriage to Edna Ruth Plunkett, who was 18 years old. Another marriage certificate showed that Neil Hughes, a student, and Edna Plunkett were married at Alexandria, Va., Aug. 31, 1914. The deposition of Hughes, taken in Baltimore, set forth that he met the defendant in April, 1914. He learned later that she had been married, but she told him that her husband had died in the Philippines. Two months after their marriage he learned that she had a husband living and left her.

Child Was Born.

A certified copy of a vital statistics record of Baltimore showed that a child was born to Edna Plunkett on Oct. 9, 1913. The name of the father was not given.

Herman da Costa, a brother of the plaintiff, told a reporter that the case was brought in St. Louis County because Sidney da Costa makes his home at Webster Groves when not in the service. He has been in the army eight years.

NEW YORK WOMEN END CAMPAIGN BY 26-HOUR MEETING

Leader Declares Suffrage Will Win Tuesday by 547,146, to Be Precise.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—New York's campaign for woman suffrage closed tonight in a blaze of glory. Rousing meetings were held as a climax to the greatest fight ever waged for the ballot.

Leaders are confident of victory at the polls and believe the men will keep their pledges to grant equal suffrage.

At 12 o'clock the New York women fighting the ballot closed in Columbus Circle the longest political meeting in the history of the campaigns.

It opened at 10 o'clock Friday night. For 26 consecutive hours without a moment's rest the earnest voices of the suffragists pleading with voters to grant them the franchise at Tuesday's election echoed through the historic circle. They were interrupted only now and then by the stirring note of fife and drum calling more auditors to the long meeting.

Both last night and tonight hundreds returning from the theaters were attracted to the meeting.

Thousands of women who have all but exhausted themselves in the long fight heard the farewell of the campaign spoken with stronger hopes than they had realized before.

"Suffrage will win by a majority of 547,146," declared Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman of the Empire State Campaign Committee.

"I know you'll laugh because I say '146' instead of merely '140,'" she said, "but you know that's just like a woman. Did you ever hear of the housekeeper who calculated her meal down to half a bean? Well, thats the way I made up this estimate."

Mrs. Catt has calculated the majority of 547,146 will be contained in a total vote of 1,737,036 for the whole State. She sets a majority of 20,267 in a total vote of 667,672 for Greater New York.

BLANCHE WALSH NEAR DEATH

Actress Is Suffering From a General Breakdown.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Blanche Walsh, 10 years ago one of the leading actresses of the country and in later years a vaudeville star, is dying in the Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland, O., according to word received tonight from her husband, William Travers, who is at her bedside.

Miss Walsh is suffering from a general breakdown due to overwork.

ROAD TO ART TO BE MADE SHORT FOR A FEW TODAY

Experimental Bus Line to Museum Hill Will Carry 32 Persons Each Half Hour.

The public, up to the number of 32 persons every half hour, will find the way to the appreciation of art made easier by the new Art Hill bus line, which is to run from the Lindell and King's highway entrance to the museum, beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A nickel fare will be charged. Preliminary trial trips were made yesterday.

The bus line is an experiment, approved by Park Commissioner Cunliff. The line will run four Saturdays and Sundays, leaving the Lindell entrance on the hour and the half hour on Saturday afternoons, and all day Sunday after 9 a. m.

One bus will hold 32 persons, but Cunliff hopes, if the single vehicle is well supported, that he will be authorized by ordinance to purchase two busses and charge a fare of 5 cents or less. A difference of opinion about this matter exists in the Board of Aldermen at present, but a success in the present enterprise, Cunliff believes, would convince those who now doubt.

Park Commissioner Cunliff said last night that the bus carried more than 100 passengers in its eight round trips yesterday, of which about 20 per cent visited the Art Museum. Many passengers remained on the bus for a sightseeing round trip, while others got off at the bird cage, the boating lake, the hockey grounds or the Jefferson Memorial.

Commissioner Cunliff said the first experiment was satisfactory, and indicated that busses would be a great convenience to the public if enough are operated to accommodate the crowds at the busiest periods. He said the busses are successfully operated at Belle Isle, Detroit, on a 5-cent fare, and that it may be possible to make them pay here on that basis.

$175,000 FOR TWO PAINTINGS

Westerners Buy Masterpieces by Reynolds and Ferdinand Bol.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Mrs. W. W. Kimball of Chicago has purchased for $100,000 Sir Joshua Reynold's portrait of Lady Sarah Banbury, and C. G. Conn, Elkhart, Ind., paid $75,000 for "The Burgomaster," by Ferdinand Bol, the celebrated Flemish master who was coached by Rembrandt.

Art dealers in Chicago say that the long-awaited influx of valuable paintings from war-torn Europe has actually be

NAVAL BATTLE IS REPORTED IN BLACK SEA

Goeben and Breslau and Another Turkish Ship Said to Have Engaged Russian Battleships, Cruisers and Destroyers.

Large Muscovite Force Rumored to Be on Way Across Black Sea, Destined for Bulgaria.

Petrograd Makes Guarded Reference to Departure of Troops — Germans Still Advancing in Servia.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 30. (By wireless to Tuckerton)—The Overseas News Agency tonight gave out the following:

"A dispatch from Athens reports that the Entente troops have begun to retire from Saloniki. Gen. Hamilton (Gen A. B. Hamilton, one of the British commanders at Saloniki) communicated the fact to Prince Nicholas of Greece, who ordered the Greek authorities to help the Anglo-French staff in the task of retirement."

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. sends the following:

"A private message received in Berlin from Bucharest says the Turkish warships Breslau, Goeben and Hamidieh attacked in the Black Sea a Russian squadron of three battleships and several cruisers and destroyers. The result of the battle is not known."

Earlier dispatches from Bucharest told of the departure of great fleets of transports from Odessa and Sebastopol bearing Russian troops for the invasion of Bulgaria. They stated also that Bulgaria's Black Sea coast was again [illegible] shelled to open up a way for the landing of troops.

Goeben Powerful Vessel.

The powerful battle cruiser Goeben, now the Sultan Selim, probably outclasses any warship in the Russian Black Sea fleet. The Goeben and the Breslau, re-named the Midullu, were formerly German cruisers. Their speed enabled them to keep away from the British Mediterranean fleet early in the war. They took refuge in Constantinople and it was later announced in Berlin that they had been sold to the Turks.

The Goeben has several times been reported in battle in the Black Sea. She is of 23,000 tons, carries 10 12-inch guns and her complement is 1100 men. The Breslau of 4550 tons carries 12 4.1-inch guns and 370 men and can steam 25½ knots. The Hadidieh, an English-built protected cruiser, is of 3800 tons and is armed with two six-inch and eight 4.7-inch guns. Her complement is 302 men and her speed 22 knots.

The Russians had six old-style battleships in the Black Sea at the beginning of the war, ranging from 12,800 to 9000 tons, and carrying four 12-inch guns each. The full Russian strength in the Black Sea is greater than any the Turks can oppose to it. The Russians have controlled the sea throughout the war.

The rumored movement of Russian troops to aid Servia is generally credited in England and given the most prominent place in the late editions of the London evening newspapers. A guarded reference to the undertaking was made in a Petrograd dispatch printed this morning, which referred to the Russian Emperor "journeying south to give a send-off to large forces of all arms."

Servian circles in London are still making urgent appeals to the allies to rush troops to their country's support.

Neither of the great battle fronts in the east and west has furnished any marked developments. Petrograd reports tonight that the Austro-Germans are evacuating Volhynia, leaving a vast quantity of ammunition and supplies.

Continued progress for the Teutonic forces invading Servia is reported in today's official statement from Berlin. One thousand Servians have been taken prisoners and three cannon captured. The Bulgarians pressing in on the eastern line are continuping their pursuit of the retreating Servians.

Regarding operations in Russia, the Berlin statement says:

"Northeast if Mitau (in the Riga district) our forces, which advanced on the northern bank of the Missa, near Plakanen, repulsed two strong night attacks and then withdrew in the face of another attack, into the main position on the southern bank.

"Army of Gen. von Linsingen: West of Czartorysk a Russian position near Komorov and the town itself were taken. A Russian counter attack by night was unsuccessful. Kamienucha, Huta, Lisowska and Bielgov were stormed. We took 18 officers and [illegible] men prisoners and captured two machine guns."

155 MEN LOST WITH BRITISH WARSHIP

LONDON, Oct. 30.—One hundred and fifty-five men are reported missing following the sinking of the British auxiliary sweeper Hythe, a 500-ton vessel, after a collision with anoth

British warship off the Gallipoli peninsula. An official statement from the Admiralty says:

"During the night of Oct. 28-29, H. M. S. Hythe, an auxiliary sweeper, Lieutenant-Commander Arthur Bird, was sunk after being in collision with another of His Majesty's ships off the Gallipoli Peninsula.

"At the time of the collision she had on board about 250 men in addition to her crew.

"Later information received concerning the foundering of the Hythe gives the following number of missing: One warrant officer and nine men; military, two officers and 143 men."

Germans Reoccupy Several Positions Northeast of Neuville.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—The official communication issued by the War Office tonight says:

"Violent engagements took place in the course of the day at several points on the Artois front. In the Bois en Hache we made further progress in the course of a struggle, foot by foot, with grenades.

"To the northeast of Neuville-St. Vaast the enemy succeeded in reoccupying by a surprise attack several parts of the trenches which he recently lost and in which we had established our advanced line. His progress was immediately arrested by the fire of our supporting trenches."

Precautions Against Submarines Taken at Saloniki.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Saloniki correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. sends the following dispatch:

"The concentration of the troops of the entente allies at various points with the object of relieving the pressure on the Servians is proceeding. More transports are expected soon, and since the recent torpedoing of the British transport Marquette in the Gulf of Saloniki the precaution against submarines have been increased.

"Shipping has been safeguarded in the port of Saloniki, which represents an animated appearance.

"The large number of refugees from Servia and the influx of strangers, together with many officers belonging to the allied armies, and the Red Cross units, have tended considerably to increase rents and food prices and there is a shortage of several necessities, especially flour."

King of Greece Said to Have Arrived at Saloniki.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—(By Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.)—The Overseas News Agency tonight gave out the following item contained in a dispatch from Athens:

"King Constantine of Greece has arrived at Saloniki. He was received by Prince George and the authorities. The general staff of the entente troops was not present, in accordance with the King's desire.

Mexican Activities Controlled From Point Near Capitol, Senator Says.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 30.—The activities of both the Carranza and the Villa factions in Mexico have been inspired and controlled from a place within the shadow of the White House, United States Senator William A. Smith of Michigan asserted at a Republican rally tonight in criticising the administration policy in Mexican affairs.

"I tell you," he said, "that the movements of Carranza and Villa, those bandits, received their inspiration within five minutes' walk of the White House and the work has gone on without an arrest being made."

Germany Denies Prince Von Buelow Is On Peace Mission.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The Foreign Office today denied that there was any truth in the story that Prince von Buelow is on a Spanish mission of peace or any other peace mission. The Prince went to Switzerland with his wife on account of the Prince's health. The Foreign Office emphasizes the statement that Prince von Buelow is traveling only as a private citizen.

Ambassador Gerard refuses to say a word about his audience with the Kaiser. Before the audience took place it was agreed with the Foreign Office that anything that was discussed should not be made public. The audience was kept secret here.

King George Is Improving; Pain Is Growing Less.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—King George, who was injured on Thursday by being thrown from his horse while reviewing troops in the field, continues to improve. An official statement issued today says:

"The King's condition shows further improvemnt. There has been some sleep and the pain is diminishing. Temperature and pulse are normal.

"ATHONY BOWLBY,
"BERTRAND DAWSON."

Von Tirpitz Reported In Disgrace With Emperor William.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 31.—The Rotterdam newspaper, Maasbode, says that Admiral von Tirpitz, German Minister of Marine, has fallen into disgrace with Emperor William.

BRITAIN TO LABEL ITS MEN

Distinguishing Marks for Those Fit and Unfit for Service.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A unique and picturesque plan for labeling by means of khaki brassieres bearing the royal crown those fit and unfit for military service is announced by the War Office tonight. Armlets which are now being prepared will be distributed soon to the following:

First, the men who enlist and are placed in groups waiting the call to join the colors; second, to men who offer themselves for enlistment and are found physically unfit; third, to those who are invalided out of the service as unlikely, for medical reasons, to become efficient again.

MORGAN HAS GOOD DAY

Banker's Condition Is Satisfactory, Doctor's Bulletin Says.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—J. P. Morgan spent a comfortable day following the operation on him for appendicitis, according to a bulletin issued by his physicians at 9 o'clock tonight. The bulletin follows:

"Mr. Morgan has had a comfortable day and his condition is satisfactory.

"J. W. MARKOE.
"H. H. M. LYLE."

British Machine Gun Squad, Awaiting Attack From Germans, Protected From Gas Clouds

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

TRENCH fighting has now assumed a ghostly appearance. Entire regiments go about shrouded in masks or helmets to counteract deadly clouds of gas. A British machine gun squad is seen here in back of the first-line trenches ready to resist the combined attacks of gas and German infantry. In a recent German attack the French troops were so well protected against gases that when the Germans advanced, expecting no resistance, they met a curtain of machine gun fire.

Water Inspector Confesses Part in Wholesale Graft

Mrs. Evans departed and Mahon was summoned from his district by Collector Koein, who showed him the receipt and asked him if he had collected the money. Mahon said he recognized his signature, but could not remember having collected the money.

Under the rules of the office, an inspector is not permitted to accept any money in payment of bills and all bills must be paid at the cashier's window at the city hall or by check through the mails.

Asks for Time.

Mahon asked for an opportunity to call on Mrs. Evans to refresh his memory. Collector Koein said he dismissed Mahon on the spot, and the next day he received a telephone message from a woman who said she was Mrs. Evans, stating that she was mistaken about having paid Mahon and would mail a check for $5.50 to cover the old and the new residence for six months.

Collector Koein tried to induce the woman at the other end of the telephone to visit his office, and offered to send his auto to fetch her, or to call at her home, but she declined to accept any of these offers, and said she would mail a check. A check had not been received at close of business yesterday.

Collector Koein says he then decided to investigate Mahon's district, which lies in the central west portion of the city, to see if any similar conditions existed. He noticed that a saloon and restaurant on South Vandeventer avenue was marked "shut off" in August, and sent an inspector to investigate with orders to shut off the water if he found it turned on irrespective of any objections the proprietor might make.

The water was turned on when the inspector arrived and he followed out his instructions despite the statement of a woman who said she was proprietor, that the water license had been paid in advance. The woman telephoned to Collector Koein and complained about the water stoppage. Koein invited her to call at the office at once with her receipt, stating that the office records showed the water had been shut off in August for non-payment of a bill due in July. The woman called the same afternoon and displayed a notice to pay a bill of $29.50, on the back of which were some arithmetical calculations in pencil.

Tells of Her Deal.

The woman first said the bill had been paid to Mahon, and later said that she had paid Mahon $19.60 upon his agreement to accept that in full settlement for 6 months. She explained that $19.60 was Mahon's calculation of two-thirds of the amount due, made in pencil on the back of the printed notice. Collector Koein said he informed the woman she had made herself equally liable with Mahon for depriving the city of the money due under the law, and she agreed to pay the full amount at once. She paid $29.50 to the cashier and the water was turned on.

Mahon visited Koein's office the next day, Friday, and after an interview with Koein, admitted that he took the $19.60 from the woman on South Vandeventer avenue, and went to East St. Louis, gambled with it and lost all, Koein said. He said Mahon pleaded that he was tempted by the woman to compromise the bill, and denied that there were any other instances of the kind in his district, other than the two Koein had discovered. Koein continued his investigation of delinquent shutoffs and found six others who said they paid their bills in full to Mahon.

Mahon returned yesterday to Koein's office and when confronted with the evidence of the six new cases, admitted them all, and said there were other cases of the kind. Mahon then denied that anyone else in the office was a party to the frauds that had been discovered. Koein told him that he had found entries in the window books, marking these places "shutoff," that were in the handwriting apparently of another inspector.

Mahon then broke down, Koein said and admitted that he was operating with a number of other inspectors on an agreement to pool their earnings by this practice.

Koein said Mahon went into details of the transactions, and said they dated back only a few months. He said the men in the conspiracy were under the impression that as soon as the new system of office records was installed by men working under the direction of Comptroller Player, the old records would be thrown aside and there would be no check by which the peculations could be discovered.

Men in a position to do so, would doctor the office records to cover secret collections that he and others would report, Mahon said.

Held Regular Meetings.

The syndicate held regular meetings at a saloon on Market street, across from the city hall, Mahon said, at which the members would tell what they had brought into the pool. He said he became suspicious that the others were holding out on him lately, and in retaliation, he had failed to account for all that he had collected improperly. Mahon said it was hard work making the collections in many cases, and he frequently spent as much as he collected in making repeated calls on poor-paying customers. It was his custom to accept payment in installments when the amount could not all be had in full, Mahon said.

Most of those who made payments to him did so innocently, thinking that he was authorized to collect for the office. The woman on South Vandeventer avenue is the only one that withheld part of the total bill, Mahon said.

Mahon has been drinking heavily for several weeks, according to his own statement, Koein said, and when he asked Mahon to promise not to drink a drop before Monday so that he could appear in a sober state before Circuit Attorney Harvey to make a full statement of his affairs, Mahon replied, "I am guilty as hell, and will be perfectly sober before I get through with this. You ask Harvey to figure how much time I ought to do, and start me in next week."

Mahon communicated with Mayor Kiel yesterday through a city official whom he knew, and attempted to make a statement to the Mayor in the office of City Counselor Daues. Daues insisted that Collector Koein should be present, and a conference was held secretly after the city hall had closed, in the office of Collector Koein.

Koein Consulted Harvey.

Collector Koein consulted Circuit Attorney Harvey last Wednesday when he obtained the receipt given Mrs. Evans by Mahon. The report of his interviews with Mahon Friday and Saturday were transmitted by Koein to Harvey yesterday, by mail, and Mahon will appear before Harvey to make a full statement, he has agreed.

Collector Koein told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he is investigating conditions in the water rates division thoroughly and will not stop until he has gone to the bottom of it.

An investigation of the meter records in the water assessment division under Commissioner Wall is being conducted by six expert accountants employed by Comptroller Player. There have been discovered already discrepancies that indicate the city has not received all of the meter bills that were due, but the investigators have not reported the details of these faulty records.

Inspectors Benzel and White, who were dismissed by Collector Koein yesterday, were witnesses before the grand jury last week in connection with the investigations of Owen and Burton. The two inspectors were observed by a negro janitor in Burton's office three weeks ago, at 6:45 a. m., and in an affidavit the negro said they were looking over the meter books.

Not In Cash Books.

Benzel said he had been requested by Arthur O. Heisel, president of the Grand Motor Car Co., to verify a water bill that had been sent the company, and not being on friendly terms with Burton, he had asked White to visit the office before hours to help him look the item up. The account of the Grand Motor Car Co. shows that the last two bills submitted are marked paid in the ledger, but there is no record in the cash books of a return to the Collector. The bills were for $19 and $21.25.

MANAGER OF LARGE JEWELRY COMPANY MISSING 3 DAYS

Samuel E. Bamber, of 3730 Sylvan place, Kenwood Springs, secretary and manager of the Hess & Culberson Jewelry Co., has been reported missing from the store and from his home since Thursday morning and is being sought by his wife, it was learned last night. His employers said he left the store about 9 o'clock Thursday morning without saying where he was going.

He did not return and nothing was heard from him. Later Mrs. Bamber telephoned the store trying to locate her husband. The officials of the jewelry company, as a matter of course, then began an investigation of Bamber's books and of the condition of the stock. Up to last night nothing wrong with the books had been found and the stock was found to be intact.

When a reporter called at Bamber's house last night, a maid opened the door. She said Mrs. Bamber had gone away in the afternoon and left her with the children, Ruth, 12 years old; Louise, 10; Helen, 5, and Samuel Jr., 3. The maid said Bamber had not been home Friday night or all day Saturday. She did not know about Thursday night. None of the neighbors could be found who had seen Bamber since Thursday.

Friends of Bamber said he had been acting queerly of late, being subject to moody spells, when he would pass acquaintances without speaking. They said he had been going out in the evenings often. He is a tall man, well built, smooth shaven, wears glasses and is slightly bald.

The Bambers have lived at their present home about eight years.

NEW YORK EXPORTS FOR WEEK AMOUNT TO $80,000,000

Statistics Show Shipping Has Been Increasing by Great Bounds Recently.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—New York this week established a world's record in the export trade.

Up to noon today, when the customs house closed for the week, an approximate total of $80,000,000 of cargo for the foreign trade had cleared from this port in the preceding six days.

Never before in the history of New York or any other port has such a tremendous volume of trade in shipping been handled in the same period. In the six days there was an average of over $12,000,000 for exports every day.

This is the heyday for the exporter in every line of trade. Not only is the export of war munitions swelled to almost unbelievable proportions, but iron and steel, automobiles, cotton and wool, foodstuffs and general merchandise are likewise included in the great upward trend.

The last available statement of exports from New York for one week issued by the customs authorities put the total at $67,000,000. For the preceding week the total was $54,000,000. For the week preceding that the volume was $29,000,000.

B. & O. Buys New Equipment.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad today placed an order for 30 locomotives of the heaviest type. The company also increased its order for steel hopper cars by 2000, making a total of 4000 freight cars now under order for subsequent delivery. The cost of the new equipment is approximately $8,000,000.

HOW SUBMARINES CHANGE RELATIONS OF NAVY'S UNITS

Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett Analyzes Effect of Undersea Warfare on Big Ships.

DESTROYERS AT FRONT

Tremendous Service Rendered by Them in the Operations in the Dardanelles.

By ELLIS ASHMEAD-BARTLETT.

(Who was designated by the British Government to represent the official press bureau at the Dardanelles on account of his military knowledge, great experience in war and high character.)

THE DARDANELLES, Oct. 1.—Fourteen months of naval warfare with the submarine as the new and active factor has entirely altered the relations of the different units composing a great naval fleet. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, scouts and torpedo boats are still necessary, but none of them under the new conditions is used as it was designed.

Battleships can no longer command the sea by mere strength of numbers and weight of armament. But battleships and battle cruisers are still the final court of appeal between nations. It is to her strength in these capital ships, and not to her destroyers, submarines and scouts that England now owes her command of the sea. Germany has shown early in this war larger submarines than any other nation ever had. She has used them with great skill. But they do not give her command of the sea.

The battleship with invincible armor has been hitherto regarded as the protector, not only of the nation, but of the cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats. But the submarine has changed that.

The battleship is not the protector of the lighter craft. The lighter craft are now the protectors of the battleships.

The torpedo boat was intended as the most offensive weapon against dreadnoughts. But modern gunnery has become so efficient that the torpedo boat is almost useless for that purpose.

Destroyer Deadly Foe of Submarine.

Under all ordinary conditions and with skillful gunnery on big ships, torpedo boats have been put out of business. But the destroyer, on the other hand, has become the only effective antidote to submarine attack—the destroyer and the aeroplane. The aeroplane is able to detect a submarine by sight when no ship can see it. From the air the submarine is seen 25 feet below the surface. The destroyer is the only weapon that can then be used to destroy the submarine. It can watch until the submarine comes up and it can use nets.

In short, the destroyer is the only foe the submarine really dreads, for the destroyer has four or five times the speed of the submarine, three or four times the deadliness of fire on the surface and it can turn in its own length to strike a blow or to parry one.

Nothing has impressed me more in this war than the splendid work of the destroyers in the Mediterranean. The public has little comprehension of it. Their first job was to watch the Adriatic fleet. Then they patrolled the entire Adriatic and eastern Mediterranean, acting as scouts, as cruisers, as commerce destroyers and as the eyes of the big high sea fleet.

Incessant Patrol Off Dardanelles.

Throughout the winter months it fell to their lot to keep up an incessant patrol of the Dardanelles and along the Asiatic coast. Those months will never be forgotten by those who took part in these operations. In all weathers tossed about by terrible gales, with their decks never dry for weeks at a stretch, they kept up their incessant vigil on the straits, Adriatic coast and neighboring islands.

At times, issuing from under the lee of Tenedos, they would steam to the entrance of the Straits in howling storms which blurred everything from view a hundred yards away.

Once in the mouth of the channel the four-knot current and east wind would sweep down with such force that they were only able to maintain their stations by steaming 10 knots ahead, such was the force of the combined elements.

Lying in the trough of the sea, these small craft would roll and plunge until even the most experienced seamen became sick from sheer exhaustion. The decks were continually swept by huge seas, no one on board could keep dry, and the galley fires could not be kept alight.

The bitter cold frequently covered the decks and bridge with sheetings of ice and froze stiff the oilskins of the crew. Nevertheless in spite of these awful conditions, the destroyer flotillas and their gallant crews never for a moment released their grip on the eastern Mediterranean and on the Dardanelles.

On the day of the great attempt of the navy to force the Dardanelles, without waiting for the army to come to aid, the destroyers did splendid work, sweeping ahead of the battleships, clearing off mines, and when the Irresistible and the Ocean were sunk by the terrific fire of the forts, the destroyers took off all the crews of the two ships under heavy fire, saving more than 1500 lives, and escaped without serious damage.

Great Service on Landing Day.

The next great service rendered by these craft was on the historic day of the landing of the army. Their role was to carry close inshore the infantry to support the first landing party. No one that saw it will ever forget the sight at dawn on that early summer morning when scores of these long, low craft, packed with khaki figures, crept in closer and closer to the shore, coming under shrapnel and rifle and machine gun fire, losing men before even their own guns came within range of the enemy.

But the flotilla never hesitated, but came steadily on, with terrific swiftness, only stopping suddenly to discharge their living cargoes into boats, close to the shallow inshores of the Dardanelles.

A destroyer is a friend to everyone in distress in a fight at sea. She can move so quickly, twist and turn so quickly, and when necessary even put a pall of black smoke between a dreadnought and the enemy, completely hiding the former.

One day two of our transports locked together close to the beach in the Dardanelles were suddenly opened on by the Turkish concealed battery. The steam winch of one of the big transports became jammed. She could not raise her anchor. It looked as if all on board must perish, when a destroyer dashed in, placing her frail form between the transport and the enemy and emitting such great clouds of black smoke from her funnels as to make a perfect screen against the enemy's guns.

The anchor was finally got up and the transport hobbled away, unseen in the cloud of smoke made by the little destroyer which the big guns of the Turkish battery could not hit.

Lowered Boat for Soldier.

This destroyer did more while she was saving the transport, perhaps 1500 lives on board. She actually lowered a boat to pick up one panic-stricken soldier who had jumped overboard from the transport.

The arrival of the first German submarine at the Dardanelles increased incalculably the work of the British destroyers. Before that Briton's dreadnaughts had been able to lie off the coast at anchor, cruise from point to point without danger, a safe haven for men and munitions.

But the first German submarine changed all that. The best battleships had to be immediately sent away to a harbor of safety and the older battleships and cruisers kept incessantly on the move, with destroyers moving round and round them day and night, searching every yard of water for the first suspicious ripple of a torpedo or the top of a periscope.

We had many of these exciting moments in those early days, but in spite of every precaution and the incessant vigilance of the destroyers, it was impossible to save either the Triumph or the Majestic, which were sunk.

What a sight it was to see the destroyers dashing from all directions at top speed to the assistance of the stricken battleship. Pouring clouds of black smoke from their funnels and blotting out the horizon, they closed in on her at amazing speed and were able to rescue the majority of the crew.

These disasters necessitated a change in our naval tactics. The battleships which had so long chaperoned the army and the thunder of whose guns was so beloved by the lonely soldiers in the trenches, had to be withdrawn to protected harbors. It must not be supposed that the battleships retired altogether. They merely sought shelter when they were not required, and when they came forth it was the destroyers which protected them against their unseen foe.

I have never seen a destroyer at anchor anywhere for more than a few hours at a time. They remind you of a pack of hounds going through coverts when a submarine has been sighted or reported. Suddenly they break into full cry, with their muzzles glued to the ground peering beneath the surface for the hidden foe. Then after a long chase backward and forward they force him to earth and then sit down outside his lair to wait until he comes up again in search of a fresh victim. There is something peculiarly fascinating in watching these long, low, black craft at work. The way they can turn is amazing. A destroyer going at top speed will suddenly swing round in her own length, almost raising her bows out of the water, just like a racing automobilist, who lifts his front wheels right off the ground when turning a corner. Having these craft everywhere about gives everyone a great feeling of confidence.

Whether patrolling the coast, or examining sailing craft for oil and arms, or dashing up the Dardanelles, or chasing a submarine, or protecting transports, or bombarding the enemy's trenches they are always the same. Speed and efficiency is their motto.

Stand Like Sentinels.

When millions at home are comfortably sleeping in their warm beds, when hundreds of thousands of soldiers will be crouching in the trenches trying to obtain some warmth and shelter, our destroyers in the Mediterranean will be standing like sentinels before the mouth of the straits, washed by enormous seas, tossed to and fro like corks, encrusted with ice and exposed to the full force of wind, rain and snow.

A horrible life, which only men of iron can stand. But their crews will never complain.

Every time a shivering Turk looks over his parapet from Europe or Asia he will see these grim sentinels shooting forth their long streak of white light, and perhaps at length come to realise how hopeless it is in the long run to contend against a nation that possesses undisputed command of all the seas and oceans of the world.

ALLIES' MOVEMENT TOWARD SOFIA THREATENS TRUNK LINE TO CONSTANTINOPLE

Hilaire Belloc, Military Authority, Shows How French and English May Frustrate Aim of Teutonic Campaign.

This article was written two weeks ago. Since then the movements of both the Austro-Germans and the Allies in the Balkans bear out many of Professor Beloc's conclusions.

BY HILAIRE BELLOC.

One of the Foremost Military Writers in Europe.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The nature of the Austro-German campaign in Servia is now clear enough.

Roughly speaking, what Servia has left of effectiveness is being attacked by an equal or slightly smaller number of effectives from the Austro-Germans across the Save and the Danube front.

The Austro-Germans could not hope to achieve a decision even against the Servians alone in this quarter in their present condition of exhaustion in effectives, but some months ago, probably when their success was most striking and when even sober calculation of the future was outweighed by the immediate results of the Polish campaign, they obtained a promise of aid from the King of Bulgaria and the Bulgarian forces available outnumber those of Servia.

Even with the aid of Bulgaria they are unlikely to obtain so much as a local decision—so much as the destruction of the Servian army—but they are likely to obtain with that aid a certain immediate strategic objective, which is in the possession of the International Railway which runs from their own territory across the Save to Belgrade, thence through Nish, the old capital of Servia, across the frontier of Bulgaria to Sofia and so to Constantinople.

Want Corner of Servia.

While they also desire to obtain possession of that little northeastern corner of Servia which cuts them off from direct communication, even by the river Danube and an avenue of supply second in value only to the railway from their Bulgarian ally, and through Bulgarian territory to Constantinople.

In order to get hold of the Danube route all they have to do is to get the Servians out of the little district, the size of a medium or rather small English county, which forms the Servian angle separating Bulgaria from Hungary.

But meanwhile there are two other forces at work. The first is the comparatively tardy advance of the northern enemy, the reasons for which will be discussed in a moment. The second is the presence at Saloniki of what are already considerable bodies of the allies, French and English, and the beginning of the advance of the vanguard of these to the aid of the Servians.

The Austro-Germans have a great mass of heavy pieces with their munitionment accumulated for a special effort. The Servians, and for that matter the Bulgarians, lack heavy pieces with which to meet their enemy's distant fire.

The German progress has been exceedingly slow and has been at a rate almost directly controlled by the openness of the ground. But for all this slowness of the Austro-German advance—and certainly it has been held up quite unexpectedly—the pressure of the Bulgarians on the east would seem to make it certain that the northeastern corner of Servia would be abandoned.

Vulnerability of Line.

One of the strategical elements on the Bulgarian boundary is the valley of the Timok River, while another is the vulnerability of the line from Nish to Saloniki, especially where the Bulgarian frontier approaches it in the Strumitza bulge and near Kumanova.

It is precisely in these places that the Bulgarian troops, to the number of perhaps ten divisions or more, are attacking. We may conjecture that the chief effort would be made in the north, across the Valley of the Timok. The invaders had by last Sunday crossed the frontier ridge, come down the slopes to the neighborhood of Knaizevac, crossed the River Timok and, according to the German account, carried hill 415, which stands to the west of Knaizevac, dominating that plain and standing immediately above the village of Glojovaca. This is that hill which the communique, by some error in translation or in the original text put east of Knaizevac. It is really due west of the town and dominates the whole of the valley and railway here.

Northeast Forces Threatened.

It is self-evident that if the Bulgarians have mastered the middle Timok Valley and occupied the heights to the west of Kniavezac, their further progress will endanger very seriously the Servian forces in the northeast of the state.

Meanwhile the vanguard of the allied forces which are landing in Saloniki have crossed the Servian frontier and are reported officially from France to have taken possession of the road over the first pass into Bulgarian territory and to have occupied the town of Strumitza.

It is clear that if the actual force of the allies were to march directly by Strumitska, which is quite close to their base at Saloniki, and on to the main road of the Struma Valley, they would, with every mile of their advance, more and more threaten Sofia and the central plain of the Bulgarian state. The Bulgarians could no longer act independently upon the Servian frontier and the diversion would change the whole situation, for any threatening of Sofia would also threaten that avenue of communication with Constantinople which the Germans are fighting to obtain.

Everything, however, depends upon the numbers which the allies can here bring into play.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH BREWERY IS INDICTED IN INDIANA

Corporation and 30 Men Are Accused of Conspiracy and Corruption in Election.

SULLIVAN, Ind., Oct. 30.—Charging a conspiracy to commit a felony in the "wet" and "dry" election here last May, thirty men, including high officials of brewing companies and a Justice of Peace, were indicted by the Sullivan County Grand Jury here today.

Separate indictments were returned against the Terre Haute Brewing Co. of Terre Haute, the F. W. Cook Brewing Co. of Evansville, and the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association of St. Louis, charging corruption in connection with the election.

ST. LOUIS' CHANCE FOR CONVENTION GOOD, HILLES SAID

"Return of Republicans to Chicago Might Revive Depressing Memories of 1912."

Letters written last July to Thomas K. Niedringhaus, member of the Republican National Committee, by other members of the committee, in which the latter said they favored holding the 1916 convention of their party in a city of the Middle West, have been turned over by Niedringhaus to the committee of the Business Men's League in charge of the campaign to get the two big political conventions for St. Louis, to be used in the campaign.

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the National Committee, wrote that he believed Chicago would not have the sentiment of the committee for the convention because a meeting there might revive depressing memories of the 1912 convention, when the party split and the Progressive Party came into existence.

The letters were received by Niedringhaus in a poll of the committee, following the announcement in Chicago that enough pledges had been obtained from the committeemen to assure Chicago the convention in 1916. The sentiment of the committee, Niedringhaus found, was no more favorable to Chicago than St. Louis.

The Business Men's League committee announced yesterday that it has enlisted the aid of Missouri's Senators and Congressmen and other prominent individuals in a campaign to influence members of the Republican and Democratic national committees favorably to St. Louis as the conventions city. Jacob L. Babler, chairman of the Republican State Committee, also is organizing a committee for this purpose.

Many prominent business men of wide acquaintance over the country have pledged themselves to work for the conventions as individuals. The active campaign to raise the $200,000 sought by the committee will be started Nov. 8. Approximately $32,000 of this amount has already been pledged.

"SAMMY THE GOOK," RACETRACK MAN, NEVER BET OWN MONEY

Died Penniless Though It Had Been Reported He Had Made Fortune by Gambling.

Nathan Samuels, known to his associates as "Sammy the Gook," whose funeral was held in Granite City Friday, did not find horseracing a paying game, despite many reports that he had at one time made a fortune at the tracks. He died penniless and was buried by relatives. Now his old associates are telling stories to the effect that, although he was popularly supposed to be a plunger, he never bet on the races on his own account.

"Sammy was a good boy, never went back on a friend, and was well liked," said Henry ("Kid") Becker, bookmaker, by whom Samuels was formerly employed. "We didn't bury him; his folks did that, but we chipped in to raise enough to make his a swell funeral. He certainly got lots of flowers."

Although constantly associated with gamblers, Becker said, Samuels never bet on the races or games of chance, was never wealthy, and probably never had more than $2000 of his own at any one time.

Samuels was formerly a floor walker in a department store, quitting his job there about 10 years ago to accept a position as commissioner for a bookmaker at one of the local racetracks. He remained a bookmaker's commissioner until forced to quit work two years ago by ill health. Since then Becker and other friends had contributed toward his support.

DETECTIVES IN WOMEN'S ATTIRE GET 51 NEGROES AT CRAPS GAME

East St. Louis Night Police Chief Adopts Halloween Ruse to Make a Successful Raid.

A clever Halloween ruse arranged last night by Night Chief of Police Hickey of East St. Louis, resulted in the successful raiding of a big craps game and the arrest of 43 negro men and eight women.

The Night Chief had long suspected that a craps game and wine room was being operated in the rear of a negro saloon at 807 Walnut street, but several raids had netted nothing. Last night Hickey had two negro detectives dress in women's clothes and put on Halloween masks.

This made it easy for the detectives to gain admittance to the saloon back room, where they found many others in costume. Pushing their way through the crowd the detectives leaped upon the dice table, covered the players with guns and scooped up the money and dice. A detail of white detectives then rushed in and patrol wagons were called. There were five loads of the negroes.

BIG SLUMP IN BEER SALES THIS MONTH OVER OCT. 1914

State Inspector Will Probably Cut Office Force to Reduce Expenses.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 30.—An examination of the records in the Beer Inspection Department today revealed that the receipts for beer inspection were $[illegible] less for October than they were in October, 1914.

The total fees collected during the first 10 months of last year was $[illegible] more than the amount collected for the same length of time in 1915. In other words, there were [illegible] fewer barrels, or [illegible] fewer gallons of beer sold in Missouri for the first 10 months of 1915 than of 1914.

State Beer Inspector Speed Mosby said today that the cold, wet summer and the extension of dry territory were responsible for the falling off in beer receipts. He also said his department probably would dismiss some of its employes to reduce expenses, because of the falling off in the receipts of the department.

PROGRESSIVES TO JOIN DEMOCRATS, M'COMBS SAYS

Fight in 1916 Will Be Straight One Between Two Major Parties, Chairman Declares.

"WILSON THE NOMINEE"

Refuses to Discuss Reports That Marshall Will Be Supplanted on Ticket.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—National Chairman McCombs has issued a call for the Democratic National Committee to meet Dec. 7 when the convention and the campaign will be discussed. At present Dallas has to be beaten for St. Louis to get the convention for the Texas City has offered to pay the expenses of the convention and donate $100,000 besides. Chicago also is after the convention.

"President Wilson will be the Democratic nominee and will win," asserted McCombs in an interview today. "The contest will be a straight out and out fight between Democratic and Republican candidates in contrast to the three-cornered battle of 1912.

"The Progressives will not figure in next year's campaign; I do not believe they will carry a single state.

"The reasons for the dissolution of the Progressive party I gave in an interview shortly after the 1912 election, in which I said the 1916 fight would be between the Democratic and Republican candidates. The Progressives simply lacked party machinery. The Republicans were beaten, badly beaten, but their organization was still intact and they survived.

"The majority of Progressives will be found voting with the Democratic party in 1916. Some, of course, who voted for Col. Roosevelt because they were strongly attached to him will be back in the Republican fold.

"In some states third party men will continue to vote the Progressive ticket in 1916. This will make it difficult for the Republicans to capture electoral votes, though, of course, not to the same extent as in 1912.

"But, nevertheless, I realize that we will know next November that we have been through a real fight."

Chairman McCombs' attention was called to reports that possibly Vice President Marshall would be supplanted by another Democrat at the next convention.

"It is too early to discuss reports of that kind," he said. "This is an unusual pre-election year. The European war has blanketed interest in the details of politics. There are many matters to be worked out."

Democrats to Hold Convention Early, Probably Before Republicans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The general belief among politicians in Washington is that the Democratic national committee, when it meets here Dec. 7, will decide on an early date for the national convention, probably before the second week in June.

For many years the Republicans have held their national conventions about the middle of June. According to the precedents, the Democrats next year should hold their convention in advance of that of the Republicans, the party in power almost invariably holding its convention first. Republican leaders are inclined to follow precedents next year, waiting until the Democratic convention formally announces, through its platform, the main issues of the coming campaign, hoping thereby to gain some tactical political advantage. This has been the rule of the opposition party for many years.

It was learned today that President Wilson was consulted by Chairman McCombs before the latter issued the call for the Democratic national committee meeting here Dec. 7. According to the politicians, this indicates that Mr. Wilson is in favor of the Democrats holding an early convention next year. Democratic and Republican leaders in Congress are disposed to push the legislative program as rapidly as possible in order that Congress may adjourn by June 1 or shortly afterward. In 1912 much confusion was occasioned by the fact that Congress was in session when both big political conventions were held.

BOY CAUGHT BETWEEN CARS

Rolled Into Street and Is Severely Injured.

Walter Goodwin, 15 years old, of 6003 Michigan avenue, was caught between two Bellefontaine street cars at Virginia avenue and Bates street at 7 p. m. yesterday.

According to the police report, the boy was hanging to the outside of a northbound car, about the center. He had ridden two blocks, when the car met a southbound car, and the boy was rolled between both trolleys. He was taken to a nearby doctor, where it was found that he had suffered lacerations of the face, scalp and left side and internal injuries. His condition was pronounced serious.

St. Louisan Arrested at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 30.—Arthur E. Brinkmeyer, 21 years old, who says he is the son of a wealthy retired St. Louis feed merchant, was arrested at a hotel here tonight charged with fraud. He is said to have confessed that he obtained $5 each from numerous men on a promise to obtain a job for them with a mythical concern.

U. S. IN NO HASTE TO TRY FAY FOR HIS BOMB PLOTS

Prisoner's Associations, Purchase of Explosives and Source of Aid to Be Investigated.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Although the cases of Robert Fay, the confessed German bomb plotter, and four other men charged with conspiracy to destroy steamships bearing supplies to the allies probably will be taken before the Federal Grand Jury next Wednesday, United States District Attorney Marshall said today the Government would not hasten prosecution.

"Fay's associations, his purchases of explosives, experiments with bombs and his sources of financial aid, together with his previous standing in Germany," Marshall said, "are to be made the subject of minute inquiry.

"Fay's arrest, after he had been watched for weeks, was ordered because it was found he was on the verge of making use of the bombs which he had prepared," said Marshall, "but now that we have him in custody the Government will deliberately continue to investigate all the ramifications of the plotting, if there were any ramifications. So far we have no evidence to show that Fay acted on other than his own responsibility. Only the most complete verification of all that Fay has said in his confession will determine whether or not there are to be more arrests."

Stories that, besides disabling merchant ships bound for the allies' ports, which he confessed was his purpose, Fay intended to attempt to disable British war vessels near New York were without any support in evidence obtained by the Government, Marshall said.

Fay in London Apparently Was Harmless Seller of Salts.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Evening News says it has obtained an intimate record of the life in London of Robert Fay from July to Setpember, 1913, when, the News says, he went to America. During the time mentioned Fay apparently was a harmless seller of medicinal salts. He never disguised the fact that he was anti-British and accepted every opportunity of proclaiming his German nationality. Finding his business poor he sailed for America to join his brother-in-law, Walter L. Scholz.

700 Employes of Packers Strike.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Employes of a majority of the meat packing companies in the Wheeling district struck tonight. The men demand a 10 per cent increase in wages. About 700 men are affected.

STEEPLE JACK IS KILLED WHEN HE FALLS 60 FEET

Old Smokestack in Granite City Buckles Under Weight of Self and Fellow Worker.

Harry Shaw of 1721 O'Fallon street, steeplejack and chimney repairer, was killed yesterday by a fall of 60 feet, at the American Steel Foundry in Granite City. He was 54 years old and had a wife and nine children.

Shaw and James Graves of 2200 North Twelfth street, went to Granite City to demolish an old iron smokestack, 100 feet high, on the foundry premises. A scaffolding was built around the stack to enable them to remove it in sections. They reduced its height to 60 feet, lowering the sections by a pulley as they detached them. Then, to get at the fastenings of one section more conveniently, they made use of a swing which was dependent on the stack itself.

As the burden of their weight came upon the old and rusted iron tubing, the stack buckled in the middle, and Shaw fell. Many of his bones were broken, and he was dead a moment later. Graves caught a rope attached to the scaffold, and drew himself to safety.

TWINS, 84, HAVE A PARTY

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 30.—A remarkable birthday party, that of James M. and Joel Cheatwood, twin brothers, 84 years old, was celebrated at Fairmount, in Leavenworth County, recently.

The Cheatwood brothers are among the early day settlers of this county. While young men they started farming in Fairmount Township and retired a few years ago.

Skin Sufferers—Read!

We want all skin sufferers who have suffered for many years the tortures of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain to read this.

We, as old-established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. FRIENDS BELIEVE PRESIDENT MAY WED NEXT MONTH

Action of Mr. Wilson's Aid in Canceling Speaking Date Gives Rise to This Supposition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—After having spent an ideal autumn day motoring in Maryland, President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, his fiancee, returned to Washington shortly before 6 o'clock this evening and went to the Galt home. The presidential party had motored to Annapolis, lunching at Carvel Hill.

Contrary to expectations, the President and Mrs. Galt did not attend the football game between the Naval Academy team and the North Carolina "Aggies."

It was announced today that Mr. Wilson and his fiancee will motor from New York to Long Branch, N. J., next Friday with Col. E. M House, and inspect "Shadow Lawn," the McCall country place, which will be occupied next year as the summer capital. This announcement gave rise to the suggestion that the honeymoon of the President and Mrs. Galt may be spent at Shadow Lawn.

May Wed Next Month.

It became known today that Dr. Cary T. Grayson, naval aid to the President and White House physician, had called off an engagement to address a gathering of physicians at Dallas, Tex., early in November. Dr. Grayson is credited with having been largely instrumental in bringing President and Mrs. Galt together and the canceling of his Texas engagement had the effect of further convincing those who believe the wedding date has been advanced for some time before Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Galt will go to New York early next week on a shopping expedition with her mother. On Thursday, she will be joined by the President, who, that evening will address the Manhattan Club on national defense.

Mrs. Galt Fond of Salads.

The cooks in the White House are busy thinking up new dishes to serve to their future mistress, whose ability at housekeeping has filled every employe there with awe. Mrs. Galt is said to be particularly fond of salads, and whenever she is a luncheon guest at the White House there is always some new kind of salad for her to try.

It was recalled today that in the case of the two previous White House weddings during the Wilson administration the announcement of the date was not made until a week or 10 days before the ceremony took place.

When Miss Eleanor Wilson was married to Secretary McAdoo no invitations were sent out. The guests were limited to a few close friends. It is stated on good authority that there will be no more than 50 guests at the Wilson-Galt wedding.

SAWMILL ENGAGED IN FILLING ORDERS FOR ALLIES BURNS

Liebke Company Officials Say Heated Journal Causes Fire—Employes Report Explosion.

Fire destroyed the sawmill of the C. F. Liebke Hardwood Mill and Lumber Co., on Second street, near Angelrodt street, early yesterday morning. The officials of the company said it was caused by a heated journal. The mill has been running overtime to fill orders for the Anglo-French allies, 700 men being employed in day and night shifts.

Assistant Fire Chief Hillenkoetter, who arrived shortly after the alarm was given at 3:15 a. m., found the whole mill in flames. He reported that several employes told him the fire was preceded by an explosion. Officials of the company said the explosion may have been due to heated sawdust. They declared they had found no evidence of incendiarism.

The stable of the C. A. Olcott Lumber Co., adjoining the Liebke plant, was destroyed. Six horses in this stable and 25 in the Liebke stables were rescued. About 30 men were in the sawmill when the fire started. All escaped.

The company had about completed a contract for $400,000 worth of lumber for the allies and had entered into a new $200,000 contract. Joseph F. Liebke, president of the company, said that the contracts called for rough boards, which were to be shipped to Hull, England. He did not know what use was made of the boards. Much lumber has been purchased in America for trench building. He said the sawmill would be rebuilt without delay. The company is capitalized at $1,000,000. It carried about $200,000 insurance. Liebke estimated the loss at about $75,000.

PAINT PIGMENTS IN TIN "PICKLE"

Liquid Heretofore Washed Found to Have Considerable Value.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—"Pickle," which heretofore has been allowed to go to waste after it removes the scale in the manufacture of tin plate and galvanized wire, has been found to contain paint pigment colorings.

Experiments here have proved the waste liquid to be so valuable it was announced today that one of the large tinning plants will construct a laboratory for the recovery of the acids and the manufacture of coloring pigments from the solids derived. The various tints of color are attained by subjecting the material to different degrees of heat.

Charless School Patrons to Meet.

The Charless School Patrons' Association will hold their regular monthly meeting in the Charless School building tomorrow evening. Members are requested to attend, as the association desires the co-operation of all the parents in this school district.

AMERICAN ANTHEM SUNG BY 10,000 AT WAR BAZAR CLOSE

United Bands Play Star Spangled Banner and Coliseum Crowd Joins in Chorus.

Just at midnight last night the combined bands that have been entertaining the crowds in the Coliseum at the War Relief Bazar during the last week played the "Star Spangled Banner" and about 10,000 voices joined in the refrain. This marked the official close of the bazar. This afternon motion pictures will be taken of the bazar officials and later all goods not sold during the week will be put up at auction. In the evening there will be a band concert.

Officials said that the attendance last night was a Coliseum record. Door attendants counted 617 parked automobiles at the closing hour and said that this exceeded by at least 100 the number parked at the time of the last Veiled Prophet's ball.

The total attendance at the bazar for six days was estimated at 50,000, and the ottal receipts at about $84,000. Of this amount $60,000 was received from sales at booths and admissions. About $15,000 was donated to the fund which will go for the relief of widows and children of soldiers in Germany and Austria.

May Reach $82,000.

Officials of the bazar believe that the Sunday sales will considerably increase this total, and they are sure of exceeding $82,000 gotten by a similar bazar in Chicago, which was open for 16 days.

Officers of the bazar received a donation last night of $25 from the Societe Francaise de St. Louis. G. V. R. Mechin, president of the French society, wrote that "humanity knows no nationality, race or creed," and he added that the $25 sent for the relief of widows in Germany and Austria would have been larger but for the heavy demands being made upon the funds of the French society.

Prizes in the baby contest were announced as follows:

Boys—First prize, Widmann Wehmiller; second prize, Victor Hugo Dietz.

Girls—First prize, Monica Brinkman; second prize, Edna Keller.

In the infants' class the prizes were awarded to Emily White and Hope White. It was announced that the infants are not related.

The receipts for the week without including the figures for last night, which had not been computed accurately were: Monday, $6659.89; Tuesday, $8257.65; Wednesday, $12,183.75; Thursday, $12,910; Friday, $13,920.

Expenses Not Determined.

Officials said that the expenses have not as yet been determined.

Mayor Kiel was one of the visitors last night. The program included an exhibition of artistic grouping upon ladders by members of the Frankfort class of the International Gymnastic Tournament in Germany, 1908, directed by A. E. Kindervater.

Just before the bazar closed Mayor Kiel was taken before the kangaroo court and fined $5 for "reaching for a bottle." City Counselor Daues was fined $5 for "practicing law without a license," and Martin Collins was fined $5 for "looking cross-eyed at a woman."

A Buick automobile was won by Morton May of the Famous & Barr Co. A Ford was won by Mrs. Mary Ball of 3722 Arkansas avenue. A player-piano was won by Mrs. W. F. Muenninghaus of 5216 Minerva avenue.

MADE $6000 A MONTH SELLING PAMPHLETS ON TUBERCULOSIS

Milwaukee Agent of an Organization in New Mexico Ordered to End Business by District Attorney.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 30.—District Attorney W. C. Zabell has ordered stopped the sale in Milwaukee of a pamphlet treating of tuberculosis in children. This is a monthly publication by an organization with headquarters in New Mexico.

The agent here for the publication told the District Attorney that he had been receiving $6000 a month, or more, through the sale of these pamphlets in Milwaukee.

The District Attorney says the agent hired on a commisison basis many women and girls to sell the pamphlets, the agent receiving 40 per cent of all revenues and those making the sales 20 per cent, 40 per cent being forwarded to the New Mexico office.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How to Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.—ADV.

Wabash Has Greatest Day in Its History; Typical of Eastern Roads

THE Wabash Railroad, Sept. 25, handled 8695 loaded cars of freight. This was the greatest business day in the history of the road. The day before, Sept. 24, it handled 8434 cars, and Oct. 21, 8571 cars.

The record of the Wabash while it is somewhat better than that of the other St. Louis railroads, is typical of railroad conditions East of of the Mississippi.

Until the great business of September and October, the greatest previous business day in the history of the railroad was Oct. 30, 1912, when it handled 8462 cars of freight. For the week ending Oct. 21, 1912, the railroad handled 7735 cars, and the previous week 7723 cars.

The earnings of the road for the third week of October showed an increase of $117,673, or 17.05 per cent, over the same week of last year.

The business of the road began to show an increase the second week in August, the first week showing a decrease of $61,526, or 10.5 per cent, as compared with the same week last year, but the second week the gain was $14,330, or 2.87 per cent; the third week it was $17,832, or 2.74 per cent; the fourth week, $29,938, or 3.26 per cent; the first week in September showed an increase of $75,235, or 11.31 per cent; the second week, $22,514, or 3.49 per cent; the third week, $53,739, or 8 per cent; the fourth week, $65,690, or 7.35 per cent; the first week in October, $77,687, or 11.54 per cent, and the second week in October, $113,692, or 16.77 per cent.

St. Louis Having Big Revival in Business

feeling throughout the iron and steel trade than has been experienced for some years past."

Crops Have Broken All Records.

The Simmons Hardware Co., which has branch houses in many of the large cities of the United States, and traveling men in every State, keeps in close touch with business conditions throughout the United States. A. W. Douglas, one of the vice presidents of the company, is an expert on the subject of business conditions. George W. Simmons, the president, when asked for a statement on the subject, referred the reporter to Douglas, who said:

"Broadly speaking, the crops this year, with the exception of cotton, have broken all records. There never was in the history of the United States so much forage for live stock and so much food for man in the shape of vegetables, fruits and kindred things as there was this year, after harvest. On top of that, the pastures everywhere in the great ranges of the West, from Mexico to Canada, are in the best of shape from the abundance of moisture.

"The corn crop this year will approximate 3,000,000,000 bushels. Can you comprehend that? If this crop was loaded into cars, 40,000 pounds to the car, and the ears were coupled together, they would extend 1½ times around the globe.

New Wealth Created.

"All this means wealth created out of the elements of the earth and the air—wealth that was not available for our use before. It means that the farmer, who is the greatest consumer in the world, has money to spend. He is getting good, remunerative prices for his crops. Fruits and vegetables have been cheap this year on account of the great abundance, but other crops are bringing high prices.

"We are feeling the effects of the distribution of this newly created wealth in a greatly increased business. Stocks of merchandise all over the country were exceedingly low, and have to be replenished.

"The orders for munitions of war created great scarcity in many lines of metal goods. So the manufacturers of domestic goods are having a great deal of difficulty in finding raw and finished material for making up their own goods.

"The manufacturers, almost without exception, are refusing to take orders for shipment beyond the first of the year.

"The operation of the factories on full time means that a great many more men are employed, and that unemployment is being reduced. Also, factories are getting higher prices for their output on account of the scarcity and the big demand.

"Missouri, in 1913 and 1914, had two hard years in succession, on account of bad crops. Missouri had a good crop this year, and things are in much better shape—business is better, collections are better, everything is better.

South Self-Supporting.

"Now take the South, which is so important to St. Louis from a business standpoint. The South this year raised, generally, all the food that is needed for man and beast. This is the first time that has ever been done. The Southern farmers have more cattle and hogs than ever before. The are more self-contained, and in a great many sections where they used to buy meat, and grain for thmselves and their cattle, the money is being kept at home for other purposes. While the cotton crop is 51 per cent shorter than last year, the producers are getting 50 per cent more for it.

"The South raised 35 per cent of our 3,000,000-bushel corn crop. The South raised 15 per cent of all the wheat in the United States. Texas, this year, raised more corn than Ohio—a remarkable thing—and more than Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota put together. Arkansas raised as much as Pennsylvania and Georgia more than Pennsylvania.

"With all the mines of the country, except those of coal, being operated at full capacity, there has come another contribution to our prosperity.

"The lumber business is a good barometer of business conditions. Within the last 30 days the lumber trade has taken a sudden change, especially in yellow pine, which is required for building operations. The railroads also have started to buy lumber, and there is a large export demand.

"The feeling of hopefulness and optimism is general everywhere in the United States. Everyone seems to feel that we have come to the end of the long lane of our troubles, and that there is a long era of prosperity ahead of us.

Confidence a Strong Factor.

"Of course, that kind of confidence is a very strong factor in the improvement of business.

"One of the elements bringing about this condition is that we have, in the new Federal reserve bank system, the very best currency system in the world."

"Do business men really feel that way," he was asked.

"They certainly do, and so does everybody else. They know they have a solid financial foundation upon which to do business.

"In the hardware business, the demand for winter goods, such as stoves, is very good, and much larger than last year. The demand is also good for builders' hardware and edged tools. Business in these lines had been slow for several years.

"The demand for Christmas and holiday goods has also increased wonderfully, and is in marked contrast with conditions this time last year.

"Another interesting thing in the hardware business is the enormous sale of automobile sundries. Of course, the automobile business itself is separate from the hardware business, but we handle the accessories and the demand is wonderful.

"Just one other thing; the peach crop of this country, that is the part of it that found its way into the market, put $25,000,000 into the pockets of the people, and the apple crop $150,000,000. I understand the watermelon crop of five or six Southern Missouri counties brought over $6,000,000.

"With all this new wealth in the land, we can have nothing but prosperity."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

SALOON KEEPER SCUFFLING WITH CUSTOMERS IS SHOT IN KNEE

Injured Man Says Disturbance Followed His Refusal to Sell Men More Drinks.

Arthur Piper, 24 years old, was shot in the knee in his saloon at 1900 Belgrade avenue at 8 o'clock last night after an argument with a crowd of his customers.

At the city hospital Piper told the police he had refused to sell the men more drinks, when one of them attacked him.

A general scuffle followed and Arthur Gerber of 1825 Belgrade avenue went behind the bar and got Piper's revolver. He dropped it, Piper said, and William Gerber, his brother, picked it up. Several shots were fired, one of the bullets striking Piper.

The crowd escaped, but later a third Gerber brother, Harry, and another man were arrested. They denied knowledge of the disturbance.

BURNED ROASTING POTATOES

Girl 3 Years Old Badly Injured in Walnut Park.

While roasting potatoes with her playmates on a fire in a vacant lot next to the home of her parents, at 6229 Garische boulevard, Walnut Park, Genevieve Shaughnessy, 3 years old, was severely burned when her clothing was ignited at noon yesterday. Tevita Watts, 6207 Garasche boulevard, saw the little girl's clothes burning and beat out the flames with his hands. She suffered serious burns of the hands, face, body and limbs.

WAR GOODS PILE UP IN EAST FOR LACK OF SHIPS

Suggestion Made That They Be Sent to Canada to Relieve Congestion in America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Exporters of the country, according to a leading traffic authority of Wall Street, are confronted with a scarcity of ships to carry the enormous volume of munitions and other supplies to Europe which are piling up at terminals here and at other ports.

According to railroad officials, this congestion has no parallel in the history of the roads entering New York. All roads centering in Hoboken, Jersey City and Communipaw are building miles of temporary tracks to store cars. It is feared the situation may become worse in November, when a great many of the big war orders will reach the delivery stage.

The suggestion is being made that shippers relieve the pressure by sending their freight for European delivery to Canadian ports. It is expected that the British Government will assist to solve this problem by sending some of its fleet auxiliaries to Canada to act as carriers.

The great eastern movement began to make an impression on railroad earnings in July, but its influence was greater in August, when, according to a report just issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the eastern roads gained $35 a mile in freight earnings over August, 1914, against $13 a mile for southern roads, and a loss of $19 a mile of western roads. Western roads, however, gained $13 a mile in passenger earnings, due to the travel to the Pacific Coast expositions, against losses for the east of $18, and for the south of $23.

Freight Embargo at Galveston Is Lifted by Santa Fe.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—The embargo on California freight via Galveston to New York has been lifted by the Santa Fe Railroad, it was announced today while the freight department of the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. said that freight destined for New York by water from Galveston was still being refused.

The embargo was declared about two weeks ago, when congestion resulted at Galveston with the re-routing of water freight originally billed through the Panama Canal.

HIS NAME IS "RAGS" AND HE RESENTS NAME OF "BUSTER"

Bulldog, Identified by Mistake as Long-Lost Pet of Woman, Bites Her on Lip.

Mrs. Emma Schneithorst, 55 years old, of 4512 Scott avenue, was bitten yesterday afternoon when she made a mistaken identification of a bulldog which she believed to be her long-lost pet, Buster.

Mrs. Schneithorst's dog disappeared in November, 1913. Since then she had been searching for him. Yesterday she told a policeman she had found the dog at the home of Leo Gass at 4344 Gratiot street. She said she would know her "Buster" anywhere.

Gass insisted that he had had his dog more than two years and that its name was "Rags."

"That is Buster, and he'll recognize me in a minute," said Mrs. Schneithorst, as she entered the yard of the Gass home. The dog did not answer to the name Buster. Instead of welcoming Mrs. Schneithorst, he rushed upon her and bit her lip.

Mrs. Schneithorst would not go to the dispensary. She said she would have her family physician dress the wound. On leaving the Gass home she admitted that she had been mistaken in her identification of the dog.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER DIES

OTTAWA, Ontario, Oct. 30.—Sir Charles Tupper, venerable Canadian statesman, died in England today. He was 94 years old, and a former Premier of Canada.

From the establishment of the Dominion of Canada in 1867, in which he played a prominent part, up to within a few years ago, Sir Charles Tupper was so prominent in Canadian statesmanship that upon his retirement he, like the late Lord Strathcona, was called "Canada's Grand Old Man."

U. S. DECLINES TO ADVISE CHINA TO DELAY MONARCHY

Great Britain, Russia and Japan Fail to Win Either Approval or Disapproval.

FRANCE ALSO HESITATES

Washington Not Informed as to Germany's Attitude and Not Likely to Inquire.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Great Britain and Russia, as well as Japan, it became known tonight, have made unsuccessful efforts to enlist the aid of the United States to prevent the establishment of a new monarchy in China and the abandonment of the present republican form of government. Conversations between Secretary Lansing and the ambassadors of those Powers failed to elicit from the Washington Government any expression of approval or disapproval of the proposed change in China. The United States takes the position that it cannot with propriety express an opinion on the internal concerns of a sovereign state and that the Chinese should be left free to work out the problem.

It was represented to the State Department by the allies that the question involved a possible upset of the political equilibrium of the Far East, since a revolution was certain to follow such a change. Any convulsion in China, it was pointed out, in view of the disturbed political conditions of the world, might prove embarrassing.

May Advise China if Asked.

The fact that the American Government had lent its support to the republic when it was created, being the first to extend recognition, was relied upon by the Powers as likely to influence the United States to interest itself in the present situation. While the United States would not interfere at this time, its attitude does not preclude the possibility that if the Chinese Government itself asks for American views or advice, it would be given.

As a matter of fact, official sentiment has not crystallized definitely here as to the merits of the change. In some quarters close to the Administration, the view is held that a decision can be postponed with no disadvantage to China, but the opinion also is held that a monarchial form of government with a liberal parliamentary system would aid in the development of national unity in China.

That the subject is likely to develop more importance as the November date for the assembling of the citizens' convention in China approaches, is evident from the efforts being made by the allies to persuade President Yuan Shi Kai to issue a decree postponing a decision of the question indefinitely.

France Not Unsympathetic.

In allied quarters here it is denied that France is unsympathetic with Great Britain, Russia and Japan in the movement to prevent a change of government in China. The question arose because the French minister at Pekin did not join the British, Russian and Japanese envoys in their recent presentations on the subject to the Chinese Foreign Office. The theory was advanced among diplomats representing the allies here that China is being influenced indirectly by Germany in the hope that the political situation in the Far East will be again disturbed and Japan's attention concentrated on a possible revolutionary outburst in China, with the resultant suspension of ammunition shipments from Japan to Russia. Russian armies felt it severely when the Japanese-Chinese negotiations were at a critical state last winter and Japan was hoarding her war munitions against emergencies.

There is nothing to indicate Germany's attitude toward the change of government in China. So far as known, there has been no conversation on the subject with the German Ambassador, and officials not only are unadvised as to what the views of the Berlin Government might be, but they are not likely to inquire, as the United States Government is disposed to avoid any entanglement in the controversy.

Japan Asks that U. S. Advise China Against Monarchy.

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—The Japanese Government has requested the American Government to give its support in the representations which are being made at Pekin for the purpose of postponing reestablishment of a monarchy in China until the European war is ended.

Japan's policy was decided upon after consultation with Great Britain. The conversations began while Baron Ishii was in London, several weeks ago, on his way from Paris, where he had served as Japanese Ambassador, to Tokio, to assume the Foreign Affairs portfolio.

There is much interest here in the attitude of Germany in regard to the form of China's Government. Contradictory reports have been received here concerning the position taken by German diplomats at Pekin.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED WHEN CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish, or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

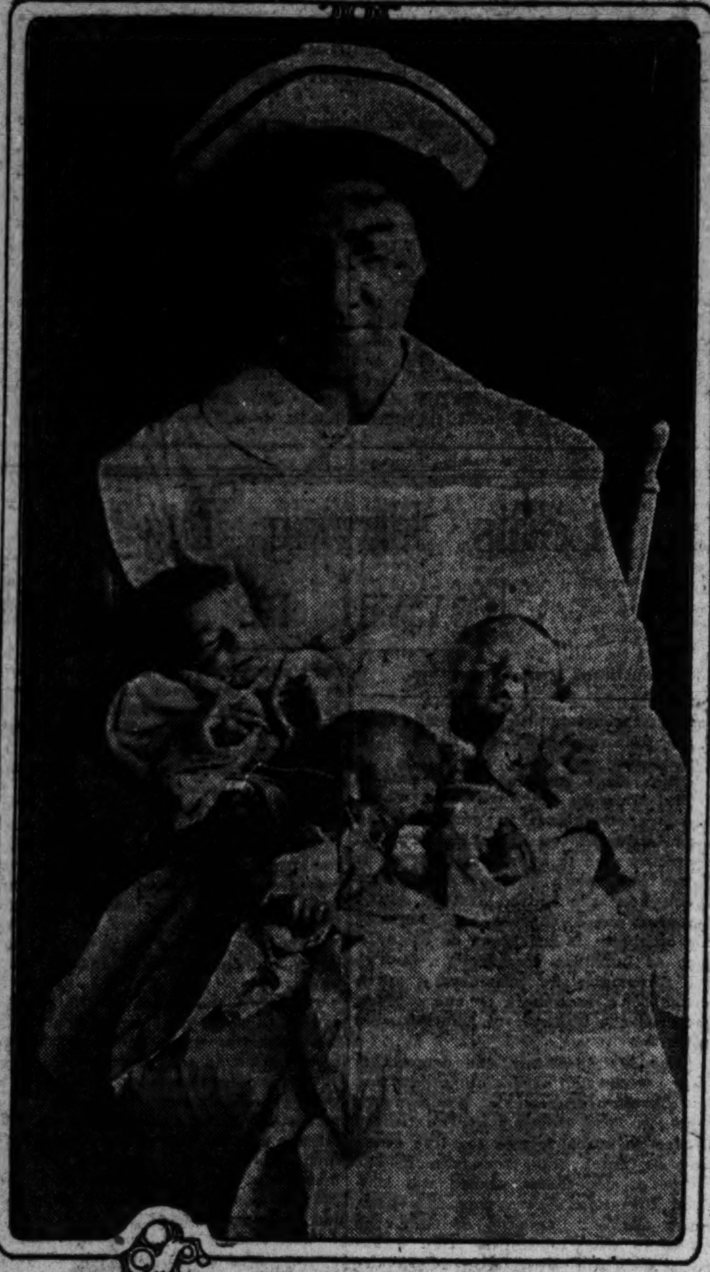
Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to give health consideration and attention, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—ADV.

Triplets Born to Mother Who Has Nine Children



MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 30.

THE Reeves triplets, 6 days old, posed Thursday for their first picture for the Post-Dispatch. The one in Nurse McCas's right arm is a boy, the other two are girls.

Their mother is Mrs. James Reeves, the wife of a laborer, who lives on the Enterprise road, about 12 miles from Meridian.

When born the boy weighed eight pounds and the girls seven each.

The mother, Mrs. Reeves, has nine more children at home. She is just 38 and is also a grandmother, having five grandchildren, the oldest 6 years. She married when she was 16. Her first child was a daughter, who also married when she was 16.

The surgeon at the Matty Horsee Hospital, Dr. K. T. Klein, says the children are as fine and healthy as any he ever saw.

WHITECHAPEL MUSEUM HAS A WORLD-WIDE TOY LAND

Collection Has Been Gathered From All Parts of the Earth.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—A most interesting and instructive collection of toys is to be seen at the Whitechapel Museum. Manager Lovett has made toys his hobby and has collected examples from all over the world. The present exhibition contains only toys exemplifying locomotion, everything is there from a presentation of the ark to the submarine, and from the one-wheeled Chinese wheelbarrow to the motor car. The way in which each thing has been adapted to its peculiar use can be traced; the Kayak from Greenland is cunningly made so as not to smash when it bumps up against the hard surfaces peculiar to that region. There is a curragh from Connemara, a coracle from Caermarthen, an umiak from Labrador, all adapted to the work required of them.

There are sledges from Iceland and a model of the Belgian milk cart drawn by big dogs. This exhibition contains only one of the 10 section of Mr. Lovett's collection, the dolls and animals, the machinery and houses are still to come.

$22,750,000 British Gold for Morgan.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Two hundred cases containing $5,000,000 in British sovereigns were received at the assay office today for the account of J. P. Morgan & Co. Late yesterday more than 100 cases, containing $2,750,000 in sovereigns, were delivered at the assay office by the Guaranty Trust Co. It is understood that $25,000,000 additional British gold will come from Canada for Morgan & Co. next week, making the total shipment $22,750,000.

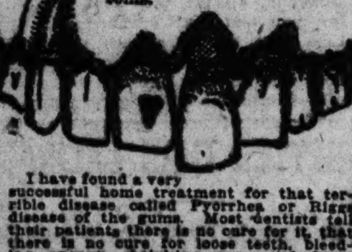
Entertainment for Children.

About 600 children, with many grown-ups, attended the entertainment given for them in the tearoom of the Famous-Barr Co. yesterday afternoon. The atmosphere of Halloween was borne out in the decorations and the costumes and acts of the players, most of whom were children, among them Helene Higgins, Dorothy Craig and Irene Skinner. After the entertainment and luncheon each child was presented with a Halloween souvenir box of candy.

Loose Teeth Sore Gums

(PYORRHEA)

I am a Dentist of 25 Years Experience. I Have Perfected a Most Successful Home Treatment for Pyorrhea, the Terrible Tooth and Gum Disease and all its Symptoms.



I have found a very successful home treatment for that terrible disease called Pyorrhea or Riggs disease of the gums. Most dentists tell their patients there is no cure for it, that there is no cure for loose teeth, bleeding, spongy, shrinking gums and dropping out of teeth; but many who have used my home treatment say there is, AND PROVE IT.

Don't have those teeth pulled. You may save every one of them—make them good, firm, healthy, sound teeth again.

Hundreds of patients say Dr. Willard's home treatment stops the teeth from being loose or wobbly and that it has done so in cases where the patient could almost pull his teeth out with his fingers, where the gums were soft and spongy, bleeding and shrinking away from the teeth. You may make these conditions positively and absolutely disappear and end your Pyorrhea. There is no pain, or fussing, no waste of time.

The letters I will send you from people in all parts of the country will tell you that the torture and expense of dentist's work—all its grinding, whirring, jamming and nerve-touching agony are gone forever. No more plates and bridges. They enjoy good teeth, good chewing and a good stomach once more. If you had any of the symptoms mentioned, then Pyorrhea, sometimes called Riggs disease, is on the way—you are bound to lose your teeth and have to wear those awful false teeth if you don't find a cure for it now. Simply send your name and address on coupon below and I will tell you all about this dreadful disease and why my simple home treatment may save your teeth, without pain or expense of the dental chair.

BOGY TO RELY ON RAPIER OF FACT IN SWORD CANE CASE

First, He Says, Crawfish and Not Lobster Was the Dish When Trouble Began.

Bernard P. Bogy of 5843 Maple avenue, president of the Pageant Theater, announced yesterday that he meant to thrust the gleaming rapier of fact through the tissue of fiction and fancy which, he said, has been built up around his sword cane. The only actual facts in the case which have been stated thus far, he said, were that he had a sword cane, that John Cafferata, cafe proprietor at Delmar boulevard and Hamilton avenue, had it later, and that Chief of Detectives Allender has it now.

In days of old, men were bold, and the weapons law was not as strict as now; sword sticks were quite the thing for gentlemen, Bogy said. His grandfather, Lewis V. Bogy, a United States Senator, carried one, and Bogy said it descended to him as an heirloom.

This is important, Bogy declared, because it shows that he did not buy the stick recently, because of labor difficulties at his theater or for any other reason.

How Cafferata Got Cane.

This cane, he said, stood behind his office safe, and was shown to callers occasionally. On Oct. 2, he said, a man employed at Cafferata's told him there had been talk about the sword, in connection with pickets who were in front of the theater. It was then, Bogy said, that he took the cane to Cafferata, and left it in his care. He partially explains the trust he placed in Cafferata by saying Cafferata used to call himself the "Mayor of the West End," and to say that nobody could touch him.

Two days later, Bogy related, he met Cafferata, Roger Gray and Dan Marble, the latter two being comedians at the Park Theater, at dinner. Here is another important correction of the accounts hitherto given. It was not a lobster dinner, Bogy solemnly avers, but an ordinary crawfish spread, at 25 cents a plate.

Bogy said Marble made remarks to him which he was unable to classify as belonging to any particular kind of comedy. So he hit Marble, he said, and Marble came in sudden contact with the floor. Then, Bogy said, he found a triple alliance of Gray, Marble and Cafferata attacking him. All this time, he said, the sword stick was behind the bar, or wherever Cafferata had placed it.

Even the casual reader will be able to see, Bogy hopes, how this plain, unvarnished tale differs from the one which, he declares, Cafferata has given to the public through his press agents. This story was to the effect that Bogy carried the cane into the cafe, and unsheathed it when the trouble with the comedians and the proprietor arose; and that the three men disarmed him.

Blames Cafferata Press Agents.

Bogy remarked that Cafferata was well provided with press agents. To them he attributed the suit which Cafferata filed against him yesterday in Justice Slater's court for $5.10 on a dinner bill. He said he had never left a meal unpaid for, to his remembrance. Cafferata alleged in the suit that Bogy objected to paying $3 for a bottle of wine, saying the price should be $2.50, and that when Cafferata knocked off the half-dollar, Bogy still refused to pay

CARRANZA WANTS EUROPE TO DEAL WITH HIM DIRECTLY

State Department in Accord With General's Plan for Handling Foreign Matters.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Carranza has made it clear through the Foreign Office of his Government that he does not desire to deal with European Governments through the United States, and officials of the State Department are in accord with his course. Some of the European Powers which have not yet recognized the de facto Government have been transmitting representations through American officials in Mexico. Gen. Carranza now desires that foreign Governments deal directly with him in future.

This policy is expected to hasten recognition of the Carranza government by the Powers of Europe. Thomas B. Hohler, Charge d'Affaires of the British legation in Mexico, is now in the United States. He will start in a few days for Mexico to extend the recognition of Great Britain. Austria already has recognized Carranza and there have been indications that Russia, France and Japan will do so at an early date.

Affects Routine Matters Chiefly.

Gen. Carranza's action is not understood here to apply to matters of vital consequence in which the United States as the nearest neighbor and friend to Mexico, would continue to exercise its good offices. It refers to routine representations which are now accumulating with reference to foreign claims and the general status of foreign properties in Mexico.

While the State Department was in no way concerned with Gen. Carranza's action, officials felt a relief that he had taken the step, for it will remove much of the burden from American consular representatives who are busily engaged in caring for American interests in the reconstruction work now proceeding in Mexico.

The State Department's summary today of conditions in Mexico reveals that Americans in Sonora are not in as great danger as had been reported, assurances having come from Villa officials that there would be ample protection for them.

Villa Representations Friendly.

Lorenzo Perez, consular representative for Gen. Villa at Naco, has arrived at Cananea and informed the American consular agent that while he can no longer perform the duties of consul, he is willing to do everything he can to protect American and other foreign interests at the same time continuing to be friendly toward his faction. He said Gen. Urbalejo at Cananea intended to protect foreigners and foreign property.

"Since the arrival of Urbalejo," the statement continues, "persons, who were reported to be alarmed on account of certain statements said to have been made by Acting-Governor Randall, have been calmed and quiet prevails now at Cananea. It is further reported that Gen. Urbalejo has personally given assurances that Americans will be protected and that he had stated that they have nothing to fear."

Conditions in Mexico Improve.

The confidential agency here of the Carranza Government made public tonight the following message from Mexico City:

"Railroad communication between Mexico City and various interior points as well as the border is rapidly assuming normal conditions. The mails are now arriving at the national capital from New York and other points in the eastern section of the United States in six days. This has not been known for nearly three years past and is greatly appreciated by the business community. American newspapers are arriving within one week of the day of publication, while heretofore more than a month has been required for the transmission of this class of mail matter.

"With a view further to facilitate the restoration of normal conditions in commerce and transportation First Chief Carranza has issued orders to the military chiefs to turn back all railway cars no longer actually needed in the campaign.

Gov. Millan of Vera Cruz has taken drastic steps to put an end as far as possible to speculation in the national paper currency, the value of which has been driven by speculation to a point far below its actual value. Gov. Millan's decree provides for the closing of all money exchanges and establishments opened since April, 1914, and transactions in exchange of this sort are hereafter prohibited except through old and established concerns which have arranged to pay proper taxes."

The rate of exchange on Oct. 29 was given at 7.90 to 1.

Leader of Border Bandits Reported to Have Fled Into Mexican Interior.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 30.—Luis Delarosa, alleged leader in recent bandit troubles on the lower Texas border, has abandoned his men and fled into the interior of Tamaulipas, according to an official announcement in Matam Koros today which revealed that Carranza soldiers had been engaged in an energetic pursuit of the outlaws. The announcement by Gen. Eugenio Lopez, the youthful commander of the Matamoros garrison, was the first official admission by the Mexican authorities that Delarosa had been on the Mexican side of the border.

AT THE 'FLEA CLUB' CABARET 25 CENTS SEES YOU THROUGH

You Pay as You Enter, Get All Beer and Sandwiches You Want and Help Entertain.

A quarter of a dollar will provide anyone with his own cabaret at the weekly frolics of the Flea Club, a new society which holds sessions in the old Theatrical Club rooms of the Regent Hotel, Fourteenth and Chestnut streets.

A Post-Dispatch reporter who heard about the existence of such a club, attended the session early Saturday, and found that that 25 cents provides beer, sandwiches, music and dancing on the bummelkasse plan.

Shortly after 1 a. m. a crowd of men and women streamed through a long corridor leading from the Fourteenth street hotel entrance to the club room, a long, narrow, badly lighted room, with a bar on one side and a piano platform at the rear.

The majority of the members carried little tin buckets, for it is considered good form to drink lager out of the bucket, as glasses are always scarce. A woman, who acted as sponsor for the evening, stood at the entrance and collected the admission fee.

By 1:30 a. m. at least 30 couples had passed in. Among these were cabaret singers, vaudeville artists, circus people and outsiders seeking a touch of Bohemian life.

Girls Drink at Bar.

The bar was soon lined with persons who passed their buckets over to the bartender and asked for beer and sandwiches. Young girls, apparently not more than 16 years old, pushed through the crowd to the bar, and with one foot on the rail, leaned over and drank their beer the same as the men.

The club was called to order by an announcer at 1:30 a. m., who stated that the first number on the program would be a dance. He requested that all wall flowers give the dancers room to step to the latest rag-time melody.

Men and women took the floor and the "professor" at the piano adjusted his stool in readiness to play.

"Off to the races," someone shouted, and the music began. Each man made a leap for his partner and grabbed her by the waist, with a movement which greatly resembled the hop of a flea—and the Flea Club frolic was on. The floor was soon crowded by couples dancing the Frisco fizz.

When the number ended the thirsty again thronged to the bar. The announcer went through the crowd requesting various persons to oblige with a song or dance.

Cabaret Artists Take Platform.

Two cabaret artists were then called to the platform and gave their hit of the evening. A sallow-faced, emaciated young man attempted to impersonate a woman by putting a tam o'shanter on his head and singing in a shrill, cracked soprano of his desire to be a fireman.

Another dance was called, and it proceeded with a wilder abandon than before. Though resembling the Frisco fizz it was even more bizarre. Several men leaned over and kissed their partners, and then lifted them from the floor and swung them around.

A dirt-begrimed sign on the wall said:

NO IMPROPER DANCING.

Another dance followed and the excitement was at its height. While the "professor" played "I Want to Be in Tennessee," dancers sang the words, some shouting at the top of their voices. Men and women on the side lines shouted encouragement and stamped time on the floor and pounded upon the bar with empty beer glasses.

While the dancers rested more vocalists entertained with popular airs, and men and women crowded together upon the few benches and joined in on the chorus of the songs. Occasionally someone jumped to the floor and executed a few impromptu steps. The policeman on the beat walked in and remained until the close, seemingly enjoying the affair.

When the barrel of ber ran out, about 3 a. m., the last dance was called. At its close the announcer called through his megaphone:

"This ends the Flea party. Everybody come back next Friday and bring a friend."

HOUSE BUILT BY BROKER FOR HIS BRIDE-TO-BE IS BURNED

Samuel A. Boales Slightly Injured in Trying to Save Money and Jewelry.

A five-room frame house in Overland Park, recently built and furnished by Samuel A. Boales, a produce broker of 4119 Westminster place, as a home for his prospective bride, was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon.

Recently Boales had been spending most of his time at the new home. He was sitting on the front porch about 3 p. m. when he detected smoke. Running to the side of the house he found the upper floor in flames.

Boales raised a ladder and attempted to kick in a second floor window to get money and jewelry. The flames drove him back. In going down the ladder his leg was wrenched and his face was burned. He is under treatment at his St. Louis home. The house and furniture were not insured.

Boales' mother, Mrs. W. S. Boales, today verified the report that the house was built for her son's prospective bride, but refused to divulge the young woman's name.

Cadillac "8"—The Demonstrative Successful V-Type Motor

A Few Fair Facts on Performances Versus Promises

It is only a year since the first Eight Cylinder Cadillac arrived in St. Louis, and today a score of makers are advertising cars with V-Type motors. That is pretty quick work to be really sound; the Cadillac engineers experimented nearly two years before the Cadillac "Eight" was announced.

But the pressure from dealers is terrific. The public has tasted the marvelous sweetness of this new type and more demand it every day. Everybody saw it coming. So, without waiting for the Cadillac to prove itself in public—just relying on the soundness of Cadillac engineering—these other makers jumped into the band wagon last fall. By quick work they are "ready" today—only a year behind the Cadillac.

Now stop and think. Get the facts straight. If any one of these new hurry-to-catch-up-with-the-Cadillac cars has been driven 10,000 miles, it would be interesting news. The first Cadillac "Eight" was driven 60,000 miles on most abusive tests before it was even decided to market such a car. The Cadillac engineers' policy is to do their own experimenting. Will you pay your money to do some other manufacturer's experimenting?

Think again. If the management of any factory whose car you would consider purchasing—if the engineers of that concern are willing to blindly follow the Cadillac engineers into a field explored only by the Cadillac organization—isn't that the final proof that Cadillac engineering leads the industry? Which engineers are safest for you to bank on—those who lead or those who follow?

Think again. Supposing demonstrators are kept tuned up to "do everything the Cadillac can do"—so far as you can judge as a passenger—does that prove reliability and endurance? Does that satisfy you—compared with the performance of the 16,000 Eight Cylinder Cadillacs whose wonderful success has stampeded the rest of the industry into producing a host of "just as goods"?

These facts are strongly—but fairly—stated. FOR A YEAR THE CADILLAC HAS STOOD THE ABUSE THAT IS ALWAYS THE PENALTY OF LEADERSHIP. Now those who abused it most are trading on its reputation—pointing to what the Cadillac "has done" as evidence of what their cars "will do." But shrewd buyers as always prefer the car that "has done"—and that car is the Eight Cylinder Cadillac.

GERMANS SAID TO HAVE SHOT 9 MORE SPIES IN BELGIUM

Ten Other Persons, Including Three Women, Reported Sentenced to Penal Servitude.

21 ARRESTS IN 2 CASES

Espionage System Alleged to Have Been Managed by Wife of French Officer.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Nine persons who were convicted on Monday of espionage in Belgium were executed by Germans yesterday, according to the Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., who says this information was received in an official telegram from Berlin. Ten other persons, including three women, were sentenced to penal servitude, it is stated. The dispatch follows:

"An official telegram from Berlin states that in the last few days two additional important espionage cases have been detected in Belgium and Northern France. In Belgium 21 persons have been arrested.

"It is alleged that after having confined their energies for some months to obtaining news by espionage and sending it to France by way of Holland, they became bolder in September, planning to dynamite railways and buildings, besides assisting persons of military age to escape from Belgium to France. Among those arrested are four women, the principal charge against them being that they were endangering the safety of the German army.

"The espionage system reported to have been discovered in France is alleged to have been managed by the wife of a French officer. It is charged that she received her instructions direct from the French military authorities. Two other women were also under arrest and, according to Berlin, the extent to which the system of espionage is organized is indicated by the fact that the arrested persons figure prominent in the French secret service list."

The guilt of the accused, it is stated, already has been established.

Nine persons, the message adds, were tried for espionage in Belgium on Monday. All were found guilty and were sentenced to death. The sentence was executed today. Ten others, including three women, were sentencd to penal servitude.

Gerard Told That No Belgians were Executed at Liege Recently.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Ambassador Gerard at Berlin has transmitted to the State Department a report he has received from the German Foreign Office which states that no Belgians have been condemned to death recently at Liege and that the Belgian Government was in error in its report to that effect.

The Ambassador's inquiry was made at the instance of the Belgian minister here and he was instructed to use his good offices in behalf of about 30 Belgians, reported to be under sentence of death at Liege. The matter came up days age, subsequent to the execution in Belgium of Miss Cavell, the English nurse. The executions reported tonight in advices from Amsterdam, it was believed, had no connection with the report as to the 30 sentences imposed at Liege.

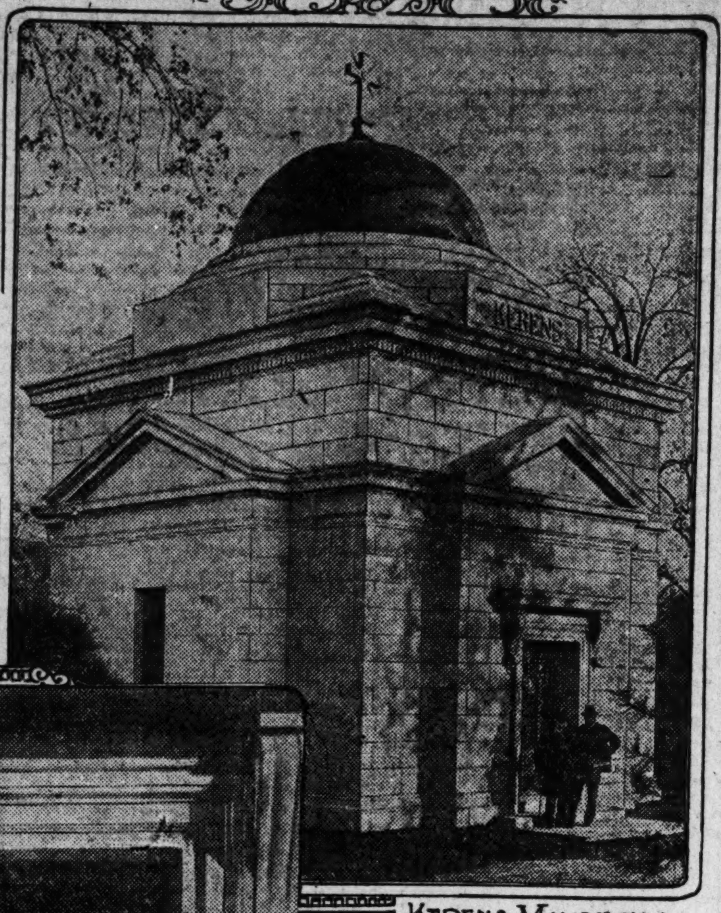
$50,000 KERENS MAUSOLEUM IN CALVARY FINISHED

New Edifice, Built Over Smaller One, Said to Be Finest West of Mississippi.

FOUR DOORS OF BRONZE

Eighteen Granite Vaults in Walls; Has General Resemblance to Tomb of Napoleon.

Kerens Mausoleum in Calvary and Artistic Bronze Doors



KERENS MAUSOLEUM, CALVARY CEMETERY

CAST BRONZE DOORS

The Kerens mausoleum in Calvary Cemetery, which is said to be the finest structure of its kind west of the Mississippi, was turned over to Richard C. Kerens yesterday by the builders. It is planned to hold a dedicatory service tomorrow afternoon, with Archbishop Glennon officiating. but this will depend on the Archbishop's other appointments. He has been out of the city, administering confirmation.

The new mausoleum is built over a smaller one, which cost $10,000, and which is made a part of the new edifice. The whole represents an expenditure of $50,000. The old edifice, which was of Missouri red granite, now forms part of the lower portion of the new building, which is of white New Hampshire granite. As the mausoleum stands on the side of a hill, there is access on the road level to both the upper and lower parts.

The mausoleum is surmounted with a bronze dome. George D. Barnett, the architect, regards the four bronze doors as perhaps the finest samples of that class of work to be found in this country.

In the lower part of the building are 18 granite vaults, nine upon each side of a wide aisle. A circular well leads to the upper floor, the well being surrounded by a white marble balustrade. The entire interior of the upper floor is in white marble, and the architect throughout has adhered to a rigidly dignified, classic style. The general design resembles that of Napoleon's tomb in the Invalides, Paris.

Upon the upper floor is an altar. The stained glass windows in this chapel are artistic and costly. The one to the right of the entrance is of two women bending over a grave and signifies the entombment. To the left is a figure of Christ typifying the Resurrection, while just behind the altar is a second figure of the Christ typifying the Ascension.

AMERICA ASKED BY GERMANY TO ADMINISTER RELIEF IN POLAND

Commission Told That 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 Are Destitute—$30,000,000 a Month Needed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Germany has asked the American Commission for relief in Belgium to undertake in Poland relief measure similar to those taken in Belgium.

Officials of the State Department have been informed that the commission has been told that between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 of people in that part of Poland occupied by German troops are destitute. To care for them adequately would mean, it was said, an expenditure of approximately $30,000,000 a month. Substantial negotiations are said to be proceeding, despite great difficulties.

In addition to the financing of such relief measures, it was pointed out today that the commission would have no trouble in regard to transportation and distribution of supplies and colthing. All danger of having relief supplies confiscated by men under arms, or of supplies never reaching their destination, was said to have been overcome. The arrangement would be the same as that which prevailed in Belgium.

The State Department will not have to be consulted should the commission finally decide to undertake the work. Germany and Russia are reported willing that such work should be placed in the hands of Americans.

GAS CO. SUED FOR $10,000,000 ON STOCK THAT COST $75,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Alleging that stock certificates of the Peoples' Gaslight & Coke Co. of Chicago, purchased for $75,000 in 1858, are now worth $10,000,000, the company was sued today for the latter sum, which includes unpaid interest and dividends, by Fred D. Foss.

The bill recites that the certificates were lost track of in the great Chicago fire in 1871, and were not found until 1901. The case went to the State Supreme Court several years ago, but was withdrawn later because the plaintiffs had failed to explain why suit had been so long delayed.

Foss, a photographer, obtained the stock from the estate of his uncle, Robert H. Foss, who was president of the company in 1858.

The defendant has a monopoly of the gas business in Chicago and the original capital has multiplied many times.

Among the speakers during the convention, which will start Nov. 15, will be Festus J. Wade, B. F. Bush, John C. Reid, E. St. Elmo Lewis, L. M. Tolman, F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York; William Bayne, president of the New York Coffee Exchange, and Edward Hidden, president of the Business Men's League.

St. Louis Couple Married at Edwardsville.

A couple giving their names as Taylor Wells Meloan and Edith Florence Graham, both of St. Louis, were married yesterday afternoon at Edwardsville by the Rev. Robert Morriss, pastor of St. John's M. E. Church. Meloan said he was an office manager at 113 North Second street.

WAR RAISES PRICE OF QUININE FROM 14 CENTS TO $2.50

100-Ounce Cans of Malaria Preventive Show Increase of $2.36 Per Ounce.

OTHER DRUGS HIGHER

Carbolic Acid, Glycerin and Derivatives From 4 to 15 Times Costlier to Retailers.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The United States faces a situation in its drug and medical chemicals market which is without parallel since the closing years of the Civil War.

The American supply of many staple drugs and chemicals is depleted to a point where there is no possibility of meeting a normal domestic demand. Of certain of these the supply is entirely exhausted. They must be done without for months to come, for no means of producing them in the United States has yet been found and war embargoes have put a stop to importations.

This week saw the wildest drug market the United States has known in 50 years. Prices of "war drugs" sped upward, pyramiding until the close values were ranging from two to 15 times quotations in the normal times of several years ago.

New Orders for Quinine Not Filled.

American manufacturers of quinine are attempting only to fill those orders already made, and supply old customers. Last Saturday quinine at retail was selling for $2.50 an ounce. A few years ago it could be bought in 100-ounce cans for 14 cents an ounce. No retail druggist may purchase over three ounces a week.

Carbolic acid and all its derivatives, glycerine and its derivatives, opium and synthetic medicines, have leaped to from four to 12 times their normal cost, and dozens of other necessary drugs for everyday use are hitting the upward trail.

Potash and potash salts and all foreign botanical drugs are bringing comparatively enormous figures, and even that well-known household friend, peroxide and its derivatives, has doubled or more in price within the past week.

Recent regulations adopted by wholesalers provide that to no retail druggist shall more than one ounce be sold on any one day nor more than three any one week.

Fakers Seize Opportunity.

In this crisis medicine fakers have launched into the market so many fake or spurious drugs to substitute for those now almost unobtainable, the Department of Health for this city has rushed warning to manufacturers, druggists and consumers warning them against these and threatening all who can be held responsible with criminal prosecution.

Three main causes are given in explanation of the present drug crisis: The demand for medical supplies in unheard-of quantities for the warring armies; the embargo on exports by the allied nations, combined with the blockade of the central Powers of drugs and chemicals, which, with their products, are largely used in the basic manufacture of drugs and medicines, are imperatively needed in larger quantities than it is possible at present to produce them for the manufacture of explosives.

Belligerent nations are constantly in the American market for drugs and medicines of all kinds, European production having largely decreased since the beginning of the war.

Blockade of Germany Main Factor.

The British blockade of Germany is considered the most important factor in the drug crisis. Germany is the nation from which America draws in normal times her great drug medicine imports. Moreover, Germany owns large numbers of medicines in this country through patent rights. They export them to the United States in preference to making them here because they have found it cheaper. Aspirin is manufactured in Albany, N. Y., although the patent rights are owned in Germany. Patented medicines and patent medicines are not to be confused.

American manufacturers are considering the question of urging upon the next Congress passage of a law to provide for the forfeiture of patent rights of foreign owners if the latter fail to provide the United States with adequate supplies of these medicines.

100 CHILDREN AT HOSPITAL MADE HAPPY BY GOBLIN PRANKS

Internes and Nurses Entertain Little Folks Who Cannot Leave Beds or Chairs.

More than 100 little children, who could not leave their beds or their wheel chairs to bob for apples and to put tick-tacks on doors, were made happy by a Halloween party given by the physicians and nurses yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis Children's Hospital.

The big medical ward of the hospital building, which is one of the Barnes Hospital group, was converted into a goblins' cavern by drawing the shades and covering the lights with tissue-paper pumpkins. The internes, in white and yellow robes, crept about as ghosts or hopped about as goblins, and the nurses with peaked caps, were effective witches.

When the goblins and witches had made their rounds and each child had received a toy there was a program which included phonograph music, a dance by one of the "witches," a violin solo by one of the physicians and a Charlie Chaplin moving picture film.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS A RUSH CAMPAIGN TO RAISE MONEY

Leaders Have Not Yet Decided on Amount to Go After Nov. 15 to 25.

The Young Women's Christian Association is planning a whirlwind money-raising campaign to take place between Nov. 15 and 25. The Y. W.'s placed their goal at $50,000 at a tea given to all board and committee members at the residence of Miss Carrie Ferguson, 5287 Westminster place, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Miss Harriet Taylor, of the National Board, gave suggestions and impetus to preliminary arrangements and will address the mass meeting to be called in the Central Y. M. C. A. this afternoon.

The campaign program is not complete, but a downtown headquarters will be established and canvassing teams will be organized by leaders, among whom will be Mrs. U. J. McCluney, acting president since the resignation of Mrs. Chivvis; Mmes. Selden P. Spencer, W. K. Bixby, H. H. Tittman, E. H. Semple, W. R. Compton, Albert Terry, B. E. Bradley, H. W. Soper, John S. Green, J. J. Fisher, J. H. Hoskins, J. Porter Tyrell, Misses Jane Spangler, Nellie M. Curtis, Nettie Thomson. Many neighborhood teas are planned and Miss Eleanor Stafford Millard, well known nationally for her work in religious fields and greatly beloved by local Y. W.s, will be on hand as the hour grows more critical to lend inspiration.

The following have already been appointed to serve as team captains: Mmes. James McCluney Jr., C. C. Rainwater, W. J. McKittrick, W. J. Fischer, William A. McCandles, Peter Freyermouth and Roe Horton.

THREE MEN ARE CHARGED WITH THEFT OF HORSE AND WAGON

Granite City Chief of Police Says They Confessed and Claimed Purpose to Return Animal.

The antiquated crime of horse theft is charged against three St. Louis young men who were arrested yesterday morning in Granite City, and who, according to Police Chief Henry Hahn, confessed yesterday afternoon, but said they didn't mean to keep the horse. They were placed in jail at Edwardsville.

The prisoners said they were Melvin Colick, George and Charles Hoyer, all of 1434 North Twenty-second street, St. Louis. They were arrested before daylight for driving through the streets without a light on their one-horse wagon. Later a message of inquiry for a stolen horse and wagon came from Peter Grebel, a coal dealer in Wood River.

Chief Hahn said Colick admitted that the horse and wagon were stolen from Grebel, for whom he formerly worked, and that he intended, when they got the wagon and harness home, to take the horse back and "lose" him on the East Side, trusting that he would return to Grebel.

ENLISTS BY UNIQUE TRICK

English Offender Gets Another to Plead Guilty for Him.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The report of the Prison Commission shows that in 1914 sentences were imposed on 114,2[illegible] persons in the United Kingdom, a decrease from the previous year of more than 37,000. The change is ascribed mainly to enlistments, with the restriction of the sale of liquor and the great demand for labor as contributory causes.

The report chronicles two curious incidents in connection with enlistment. One man who had offended against the law procured by a cash payment a sub who said he committed the crime, enabling the real culprit to enlist. Another man stole a bicycle in order to ride to a recruiting station 20 miles away.

AUTOS KILLED 47 PERSONS IN ST. LOUIS SINCE JAN. 1 139 IN PAST THREE YEARS

Chief Henderson's Machine Runs Man Down, and Severely Injures Him—Coroner Issues Warning.

Charles Armbruster, 38 years old, of 6607 Vermont avenue, who was injured by Fire Chief Henderson's automobile at Grand avenue and Henrietta street at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was in a critical condition last night at the city hospital. He is a contracting carpenter, and has a wife and two children.

According to police reports, 1325 persons have been hurt in auto accidents since Jan. 1. In that time 47 persons have been killed.

Chief Henderson was not on his way to a fire, but was being driven downtown by his chauffeur, Michael Fahey, when the accident occurred. The automobile was running north on the east side of Grand avenue at a speed, the chief later said, of 12 miles an hour. George Walldorf of 3810 Blaine avenue, the only witness near to the accident, said the speed was from 12 to 15 miles an hour.

Two Men in Road.

Armbruster started across Grand avenue from east to west, to hail a southbound street car. Walldorf started across the street in the other direction and met Armbruster near the car track. Walldorf said he had thought the machine was going to turn into McRee avenue, which is opposite to Henrietta, and that for this reason he was not on his guard and came near being hit himself. He believes that the driver swerved to avoid him and struck Armbruster.

Armbruster was knocked to the northbound street car track, and two wheels of the auto passed over him. His skull and his left leg and left arm were fractured, as well as three ribs on the right side.

Fahey stopped the machine, and the injured man was carried to the hospital. Chief Henderson remained at the hospital for a time. Capt. Wilson of the Magnolia Avenue Station did not order an arrest, as he said he knew where to find Fahey or the chief at any time.

Girl Dies of Injuries.

A statement made to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, by Mrs. Mel Schaffer of 1454 Warren street established the fact that Gertrude Kowazek of Silex, Mo., who died from injuries caused by a plunge from an automobile at Grand and Clark avenue, Thursday night, leaped out purposely, to escape the attentions of the driver, John Wilkinson of Clayton, beside whom she was sitting.

This removes the Kowazek case from the regular category of automobile fatalities, where injuries are incurred involuntarily. But Coroner Padburg included Miss Kowazek's name in a list of automobile deaths which he issued yesterday, in connection with an appeal for greater caution on the part of automobilists. This list showed 12 automobile deaths in October, including Miss Kowazek's, and 47 since Jan. 1.

Leaped From Auto.

Mrs. Schaffer said that after she and Miss Kowazek accepted the invitation of Wilkinson and Bernard J. Foley of 3406 North Fourteenth street to go riding, Foley told her they were going to a place from which it would take a long time to get back. She demanded that the car be stopped, and this was done, but it started again and south of Olive street, on Grand avenue, the speed was increased.

Wilkinson, she said, was arguing with Miss Kowazek, and swore at her when she repulsed his advances. At Clark avenue Miss Kowazek leaped from the machine and fell to the street, fracturing her skull. The two men and Mrs. Schaffer were arrested. They are under bond to appear at the Coroner's inquest.

The death of Henry Stiff, 30 years old, of 4119 Westminster place, at the city hospital Friday afternoon from injuries he received early that morning when an automobile he was driving skidded on Wells drive in Forest Park and overturned, revealed that he was to have been married in the spring to Miss Mae Hewitt of 5021 Columbia avenue. Miss Hewitt and Stiff's father told yesterday of the engagement.

Peter Bohn of 1506 South Grand avenue, Thomas Pickett of 3322 Parnell street and Albert C. Wilson of 1646 South Grand avenue are in the city hospital, suffering from injuries inflicted in the same accident. Bohn is in a serious condition.

Coroner Padberg Makes Suggestions to Avoid Accidents

CORONER PADBERG yesterday issued a statement, showing the number of persons killed by automobiles in St. Louis for nearly three years. He included with the list of fatalities which come officially to his notice, a statement taken from police records as to the much larger number of accidents which cause personal injury, but do not immediately cause death.

The Coroner's figures show that 139 persons have been killed in St. Louis, in automobile accidents, since Dec. 1, 1912, and that 47 of these fatalities have been since Jan. 1 last. The number of deaths for October is 12. These figures include Miss Gertrude Kowazek, who died Friday from injuries caused by leaping out of a speeding automobile.

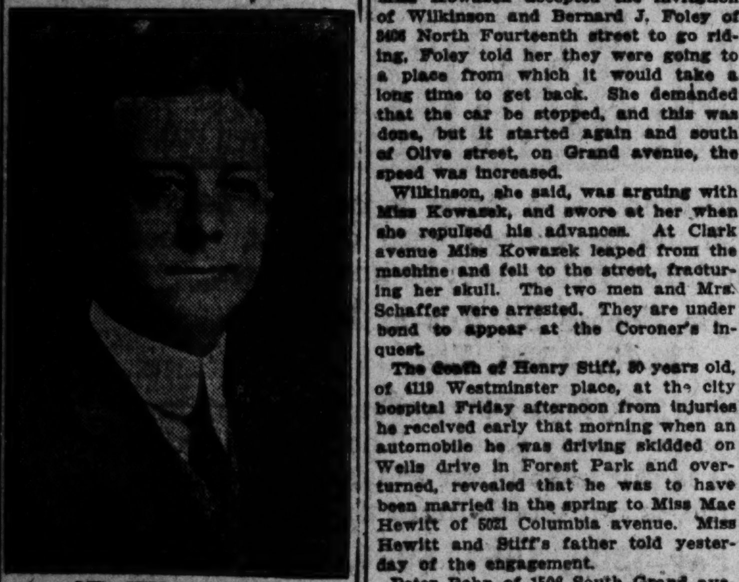
Since Jan. 1, according to the nearest figures the Coroner can obtain from the police, 1325 persons have been hurt in automobile accidents in St. Louis. The total number of accidents in the same time was approximately 3000, showing that in more than one-half of all automobile accidents no one is hurt.

ANALYZING the list of fatalities, the Coroner finds that about one-half the accidents have occurred at street crossings. He urges stricter enforcement of laws governing drivers, and says the ordinance requiring autos to stop behind street cars should be rigidly enforced. Children should be taught to stop, look and listen before crossing a street, he said, and drivers should use horn and cut-out when near school buildings.

Man Steps in Front of Auto and Is Run Over.

Bernard Janning, 59 years old, of 8025 Alabama avenue, was knocked down and seriously injured yesterday afternoon in front of 8106 Ivory avenue, by an automobile belonging to Fred C. Murphy, 5738 Cates avenue and driven by Arthur Wilson of 4024 Finney avenue. Wilson, who was arrested and released upon bond, told the police that he was driving at a moderate speed north on Ivory avenue when Janning stepped in front of the car. Janning was taken to his home, where two physians said he was suffering from internal injuries and bruises upon both arms and legs.

In the car with Wilson were Elwood Stewart of 5370 Vernon avenue, and eight boys between the ages of 10 and 12 years. None of the occupants of the car were hurt.



President Maxine & Westport Shoe Shops

MR. WM. A NOBEL

Mr. Nobel, who has been prominently identified with the downtown shoe trade for a number of years, recently resigned his position with a well-known department store and is now president of the Maxine & Westport Shoe Shops, 914 Olive St.

He wishes to announce to his many friends that he is now better able to supply their shoe wants.

In speaking for the Maxine & Westport Shoe Shops, Mr Nobel stated it is their purpose to give the best values, and as St. Louis became the largest shoe center in the world by giving the best values, it is but natural that this store feature St. Louis made shoes.

He is highly pleased to be identified with the makes he is now showing—Maxine fine Shoes for women, Westport fine Shoes for men and Buster Brown Shoes for boys and girls; all Brown make—St. Louis made.

Mr. Nobel is anxious to see all his old friends and assures them of a continuance of the Nobel brand of courteous service and correct shoe fitting.

He will be pleased to give them his personal attention and believes that once they try a pair of the above nationally famous makes they will continue to favor these made in St. Louis Shoes.

U. S. TO MAKE NO REPRESENTATIONS IN HESPERIAN CASE

Report That It Is Expert's Belief Ship Was Torpedoed to Be Sent to Berlin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—While the report of the Navy Board which found the fragment of metal forwarded from London as evidence in the case of the steamer Hesperian could only have come from a torpedo will be forwarded to the Berlin Foreign Office as a matter of information it will not be accompanied by any representations on the part of the United States. A link is missing in the chain of evidence upon which the Washington Government could found a statement that it was convinced that a torpedo sent the ship to the bottom.

The fragment was turned over to Ambassador Page by the British Admiralty with the statement that it was found on the Hesperian's deck after the explosion and during her fruitless struggle to reach port before she sank. No sworn statement by the finder, however, accompanied the bit of metal and until that gap is filled, it was indicated today that no representations would be made to Germany, which has consistently maintained that the steamer was not torpedoed by a German submarine.

Germany has made to the United States a qualified disclaimer of responsibility for the attack on the Hesperian. In a note to Ambassador Gerard on Sept. 14, the Foreign Office said that on the face of the evidence then at hand, Germany was satisfied that the Hesperan was not sunk by a German submarine.

The fragment of metal examined by the Navy Department experts was said to have been picked from the deck of the Hesperian after the explosion. The Hesperian sank early in September off the Irish coast while making her way to port after being disabled by the explosion. The fragment was made of polished steel, and was about nine inches long. It was sent to the State Department by the American Embassy at London.

The State Department heretofore had been in doubt regarding the direct cause of the sinking of the Hesperian. A number of affidavits from passengers and officers of the ship have been received by the State Department. The signers swore that the ship had been torpedoed. The fragment of metal was sent along as proof that the statements in the affidavits were true.

Two Americans Aboard Saved.

The Hesperian was declared to have been in regular passenger carrying service. The State Department has been informed there were no troops aboard at the time of the sinking, but some wounded Canadian soldiers were traveling on individual tickets as passengers. Two Americans were passengers, but they were saved.

FIREMAN HURT WHEN WAGON AND STREET CAR COLLIDE

Two Passengers Are Cut by Broken Glass and Two Horses Injured So Badly They Have to Be Shot.

The hose wagon of Fire Engine Company No. 39 collided with a street car last evening at the corner of Sixth and Spruce streets when answering an alarm caused by the burning of some brush in a lot on Clark avenue near Fourteenth street. William Slottmann, a pipeman, riding upon the rear platform, was thrown into the hose cart and one rib was fractured. The legs of both fire horses were broken. They were shot.

The hose cart was going west upon Spruce street when it collided with a southbound Cass Avenue car, the tongue of the wagon was broken and William Drain, the driver, and Lieut. William O'Connell were thrown to the street, but escaped without serious injuries.

Miss Ida Hirsch of 4417 Belleglade avenue, and Mrs. Carrie Langhney of 2323 South Ninth street, passengers upon the car, were cut upon the hands by broken glass.

JUSTICE KNOCHE INJURED

Thrown From Buggy; His Collar Bone Is Broken.

G. H. Knoche, Justice of the Peace of Bonhomme Township, St. Louis County, was thrown from his buggy and suffered a broken collar bone yesterday afternoon when his horse became frightened at a threshing engine. A neighbor, William Bailey, who was also in the buggy when it overturned, was not injured.

The accident occurred on the Olive street road at Creve Couer almost in front of Justice Knoche's home. He was about to turn into his private driveway when the horse wheeled.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR COAL COMPANY IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

Joseph Taylor Firm, Which Operates Three Mines, Has Property Valued at $275,000.

E. H. Smiley, a banker of O'Fallon, Ill., at Belleville yesterday was appointed receiver for the Joseph Taylor Coal Co. of St. Clair County and for Joseph Taylor. The appointment was made by Judge George Crow of the Circuit Court, who also entered a restraining order forbidding any of the creditors of the coal company from entering suit against the concern without permission of the Circuit Court. This was done, it was explained by the Court, to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

The property involved in the suit is valued at approximately $275,000 and consists of three coal mines—the St. Ellen, the Joseph Taylor and the Ridge Prairie—five pieces of residence property in O'Fallon, a store building, an opera house and 275 acres of farm land, owned by Taylor personally. The coal company owns the mines and, in addition, 84.75 acres of land owned in fee simple; 79 acres of surface land, 23 acres of leased surface lands, 994 acres of coal land owned outright and 331 acres of leased coal land.

Receiver Smiley said the suit was of a friendly nature. Taylor and all the officers of the Taylor Coal Co. entered their appearance in court and made no protest against the naming of a receiver.

The suit was instituted by George W. Tiedemann, as trustee for Charles T. Smiley, C. E. Tiedemann, G. W. Tiedemann, W. R. Dorris and Dr. H. T. Bechtold, who own $30,000 worth of first mortgage bonds on the coal company property.

The debts of the coal company are placed at about $50,000, of which all but $4700 are secured by mortgage. The creditors who are thus secured are: First National Bank of O'Fallon, $7000; National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, $10,000; W. R. Dorris, O'Fallon, $5000; Charles Tiedemann Milling Co., O'Fallon, $10,000; Julius A. Schalter, $6000.

While it had been known to a few business men that the company was in financial straits, the news that the company had been put in the hands of a receiver created much excitement in O'Fallon, where Taylor was known as the city's "richest man."

"It is a case of not having enough capital to conduct all his business," said E. H. Smiley, in discussing Taylor's affairs shortly after he had been named receiver. "There is plenty of property, but the general business depression of the last few months, especially in the coal industry, has put Taylor in a position where he could not keep going. There is no danger of anyone losing any money. All the debts will be paid dollar for dollar."

The Joseph Taylor Mercantile Co., a concern in which Taylor is largely interested, is not involved in the suit.

DRAKE SCORES 3 TOUCHDOWNS IN FOURTH QUARTER

Sudden Shift to Open Style of Play Beats Pikers After Game Is Apparently Won.

DES MOINES, Io., Oct. 30.—Drake switched from the old-style to the new game in the final quarter of today's football struggle, scoring three touchdowns in rapid succession and defeating Washington University, 26 to 16. The Drake reversal of form and play was so pronounced that it seemed to catch the Washington players completely unawares, with the result that Drake gained at a rate of 10 to 20 yards to a play in this quarter.

Before the final big drive Drake had played a litless game and seemed outclassed. Washington had been able to hold the Drake backs time after time at critical points and the nine-point lead seemed perfectly safe.

But in that final quarter Drake turned loose a volley of forward passes that succeeded three times out of four, each netting 20 yards or more. Alternating with these were line bucks and end runs that thrust the ball down the field for ten yards at a play. Twice forward passes swept the ball over the Washington goal and finally a Drake man broke through the line for 50 yards and the last touchdown. Washington seemed bewildered by the sudden Drake spurt and the once unyielding line was punctured with ease.

Penalties Prove Costly.

Drake lost heavily in the first quarter through penalties, 60 yards being given Washington for holding by Drake in this period. Penalties brought the ball to within 35 yards of the Drake goal near the middle of the period, and Berry and Martin advanced it 30 nearer by line smashes. Then Touchstone crept through for a touchdown.

Drake did not threaten in the second quarter and Washington added three more points on a goal from the 18-yard line by Lewis. Lewis tried two more kicks for a goal later on in this quarter, but missed by a wide margin each time.

The Drake team seemed a bit stronger on offense at the opening of the second half and soon carried the ball to within a yard of the Washington line. Here Washington held. But Touchstone was able to kick out but 20 yards. Three line bucks brought the ball to the 5-yard line and Brown went over on a smash through left tackle.

Drake used the forward pass in an erratic way when play was resumed and Washington soon had the ball on the Drake 45-yard line. Here Busick broke through for a run the remaining distance to the Drake goal line. Lewis kicked goal, bringing the score up to 16 in 7 in favor of Washington.

Pikers Fooled by Passes.

Drake got the ball right after the opening of the final quarter and unloosed a maze of forward passes. Three attempts, two successful, sent Warnock over for a touchdown. Each of the sucessful forward passes was a good 20 yards. Hardly had play been resumed when Drake crashed through the Washington line for three gains of 10 yards each. Then Smith flung the ball back of the Washington goal posts, 30 yards away, the ball landing in Vanderwaal's arms for another touchdown.

50-Yard Run Yields Drake's Final Score in Last Two Minutes of Play

WITH but two minutes left to play Drake took a cautious turn and tried line bucking instead of forward flips. Two smashes carried the ball forward 15 yards at a time, but singularly each time a Drake man was holding and the gains were lost. Then with the ball in the middle of the field, Blodgett of Drake, broke through the line and, eluding three tacklers, carried the ball across for the last touchdown.

The game ended with Drake holding the ball in the middle of the field. Drake's effective use of the forward pass is shown by the statement that seven out of 16 attempts succeeded, netting in all 150 yards. Washington used the pass successfully once out of seven attempts, then for eight yards. Drake gained 367 yards in scrimmage to 162 for Washington. Drake's three punters averaged 29 yards for a total of 325 yards.

Touchstone's punts totaled 450 yards for an average of 42 yards. Drake was penalized 115 yards, Washington 40. Lewis, Busick and Berry did well for Washington, pounding the line many times for good gains. But the Washington ends in that last quarter seemed hobbled. Their slowness gave Drake plenty of chances for using the forward pass to good effect and contributed much to Washington's defeat.

Cornell Finds Virginia Poly Easy Foe, 45-0

Capt. Barrett of Ithacans Again Stars, Scoring Two Touchdowns.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Cornell piled up a score of 45 to 0 in defeating the heavy Virginia Polytechnic Institute team today and uncovered an aerial offense that proved a revelation. The big red team showed conclusively that its victory over Harvard last Saturday was not a flash in the pan, for today's game indicated that Coach Sharpe has built up first and second teams with a marvelous attack and defensive power.

Cornell scored her first touchdown soon after Capt. Barrett tore off a fake kick run of 30 yards. Collins, Shiverick and Mueller punctured the Virginia line, the latter making a 21-yard dash, until Barrett carried the ball over. The second touchdown in the first period was made in a similar manner. In the second period Virginia held Cornell for downs on the former's one-yard line, but Cornell soon rushed the ball back and Shiverick hit right tackle for 15 yards and a score. For the fourth touchdown, which came in the same period, Barrett hurled long forward passes with precision, Eckley finally hugging one as he sped over the line. Lineup and summary:

Cornell (45).	Positions.	Virginia (0).

In this play Flug is following his interferers, Weckenman and Thomas, in an attack on Arkansas' right end.

COLGATE WALKS OVER YALE FOR A 15-0 VICTORY

Elis Play Worst Game Ever Put Up by a Team Wearing the Blue Colors.

By Walter Trumbull.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—Colgate 15, Yale 0. This portion of Connecticut is not absolutely overflowing with joy tonight. The twilight that fell upon the field before the game was done and made it almost impossible to follow the plays, was no more tangible a thing than the inward twilight that shrouds the souls of the Yale rooters.

Persons may tell you that the result of today's battle is attributable more to the strength of Colgate than to the weakness of Yale. That is as you may look at it. Colgate has a powerful eleven. It is possibly the most finished and best coached aggregation that we have seen this year. The line charges low and hard; the backs start quickly and keep both their heads and their feet, the tackling is excellent; the men follow the ball like a tail light follows an automobile and the interference is absolutely splendid. Let there be no mistake about Colgate. Larry Bankhart has turned out a great eleven.

But why should we seek to excuse Yale on account of Colgate's strength? There certainly is just as good material at New Haven and lots more of it.

Colgate at its best never should be able to beat Yale at its best. It has beaten Yale twice in three seasons. The answer is therefore that while Colgate is strong for Colgate, Yale is weak for Yale. Colgate has a team that would be a good Yale team. Yale has a team that would be a good small college team—and not so good at that.

Yale Line Is Weak.

The blue's line is heavy and gives evidences of individual power. To us it did not appear that it charged as a unit; that its charge was low enough or fast enough; or that it was a line quick to diagnose an opponent's play. It is only fair to say that men for whose football judgment we have great respect disagree with us about this, but even they admit that the work of the forwards is not up to that of lines of the old Yale standard.

Many a Colgate play slipped inside or outside of tackle and more than once the center of the Blue's defense bent inward before the fierce plunging of the enemy. On other occasions the Yale forwards would tear through and get the runner, but they did not do it with any consistency. The highly efficient manner in which Colgate interferers took care of the secondary defense did not make the efforts of the Eli line look any better and the tackles were hampered by the manner in which the ends played their positions. These latter often waited just long enough for the interference to hit them and force them out of the play.

Yale was on the defensive practically all afternoon and if Colgate had possessed a drop kicker, the one point where the team was weak, the score would have been much larger. A Brickley, Mahan or Tibbott might well have been worth six to 12 points more.

Scovil Stars for Eli.

The best offense that the blue showed was the running with the ball done by Scovil. Here is a Yale back of the old type. Mainly through his efforts the Elis made six first downs by straight rushing to 13 for Colgate.

Against the Colgate defense the blues' forward passing didn't amount to a great deal and his lateral passing came close to being a joke. Yale's tackling was poor and the following of the ball was atrocious. On one occasion three Yale men had a chance at a fumbled punt before a Colgate man came up and fell on the ball. Even then he should have been blocked off.

More than this, once some Eli had a chance to snatch up a rolling ball and leave footprints on the sands of time. He usualy left an earmark in the turf, while the ball rolled on.

The visitors had plays that were well conceived and finely executed.

Lineup:

Yale.	Positions.	Colgate.
Moseley	Left tackle	West
Kent	Left guard	Goode
White	Center	Carroll
Sheldon	Right guard	Barton
Way	Right tackle	Bell
Wiedman	Right end	Nelson
Wilson	Quarterback	Anderson
Waite	Left halfback	Spencer
Higginbotham	Right halfback	Hubbell
Scoville	Fullback	Gills

Score—Colgate 15, Yale 0.

Touchdowns—Nelson, Anderson. Goal from field—Abell. Referee—Thompson of Georgetown. Umpire—Marshall of Harvard. Field judge—Bergin of Princeton. Time of periods—12m. and 10m. Substitutions: Yale—Blodgett for Moseley, Neville for Waite, Savage for Higginbotham, Taft for Savage, King for Sheldon. Colgate—Corning for West, Robertson for Spencer, Glick for Nelson.

Champion Illinois Eleven Misses Pogue and a Fine Chance to Defeat Gophers

Macomber's Failure to Kick Goal From Touchdown Gives Minnesota Team a Tie in Hard-Fought Gridiron Struggle at Urbana—12,000 See Contest.

By Ring W. Lardner.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 30—Minnesota missed Bernard Bierman and Illinois missed Harold Pogue. Also Bart Macomber missed a goal from touchdown. The result was a 6 to 6 tie in today's great battle between the Gophers and the 1914 chmpions of the Western Conference.

If Macomber had not missed the goal Illinois would have won and Illinois would have been lucky. For it looked to most of the neutrals as if Minnesota deserved anything but defeat.

The Gophers had three beautiful chances to score and several that were not quite so beautiful. The punch was always lacking, and but for a brilliant dash by a bird named Sprafka, Illinois' goal line would have remained inviolate.

Solon Is Badly Missed.

Every time Minnesota was held just short of a touchdown we looked over at Doc Williams and read his mind. It was a cinch. He was thinking about Bierman, his crippled captain, and he was thinking about Solon, his disqualified star. Either one is a terror to opponents when only a yard or two is needed. But neither one was in there today to gain the required yard or two.

However, the Gopher must not be given that alibi unless one also mentions that Pogue was not in the Illini lineup to tear off one of his sensational runs. He might not have scored. His record, however, is a touchdown or more against every team he ever faced.

The game will go down in history as a tie and one of the winter sports of Gophers and Illini will be guessing what would have happened if either or both had had their full strength.

Macomber Misses Goal.

One of the best things Macomber does is kick goals from touchdowns. It's his middle name. When he missed today the crowd could hardly believe it. Backers of the orange and blue cheered his efforts. They thought it had been a success. The scoreboard was the object of unanimous attention. When the extra point failed to appear, the crowd wondered why. Finally the truth was realized. It did not strike home as sharply at the time as when the game had ended and people realized what Bart's failure meant.

No Gopher shares Bart's acute misery, for no Gopher had a chance at goal. Sprafka's touchdown was made close to the sideline. The ball was punted out and no one caught it. In fact, no one got close enough to touch it. Whether this was the punter's fault or the prospective catcher's, we cannot say.

Capt. Watson's Bad Pass Is Almost Fatal to 1914 Conference Champions

THERE came near being a greater tragedy than Macomber's, with Capt. Watson of the Illini the victim. Late in the game the orange and blue battlers found themselves much too close to their own goal for comfort. The punt signal was given, Watson passed the ball. Not even his best friends can say it was a good pass. It was low and crooked and Macomber could not get in front of it.

Yards and yards toward the Illinois goal it rolled, and when one of Zuppke's men finaly clutched it only two white chalk marks were between it and the last trench. Worst of all, the bum pass was made on a fourth down, and even falling on it did not save the ball for Illinois.

Thirteen thousand people shivered, though the day as hot as July. They continued to shiver while the Gopher backs were tearing through for nine yards in three tries. With a yard to go for victory, Sprafka's signal was called. He started for the line, but suddenly the ball was seen to leap from his hands. Several Gophers were on top of it at once. But several Illini were immediately on top of the several Gophers. Referee Magidsohn dived to the bottom of the heap and there discovered the ball still a yard from the goal line. Watson's prayer changed in that moment to a hymn of thanksgiving.

Gophers Own Backfield Stars.

While on the subject of the Gopher backfield we beg to state that Wyman, Ballentine and Sprafka on their showing today are as nifty a trio as can be located west of Buffalo. Solon was a great football player. Bierman is one. But Ballentine, Wyman and Sprafka can be mentioned in the same breath with that famous pair without apologizing to the latter.

The day was too warm for the players, just right for the spectators and too cold for the newspaper men.

The Gophers pulled some occult preliminary stuff. Their coach led them out on Illinois' field in their street clothes and made them sit down for 15 minutes. This is to get them accustomed to the feel of the ground which is harder than that they play on at Minneapolis.

As the Illinois squad came on the field we compared watches and decided that the time was 1:50. Don't forget that. The crowd appeared to be about 2000 short of last year's record established at the Chicago game. In other words, there were about 13,000 folks in the stands when the time for starting the pastime arrived. But the pastime did not start on time, for the Gophers arrived late, and so did Gov. Dunne and two of his daughters.

Lineup and summary:

WILLIAMS FALLS BEFORE TIGERS' ATTACK, 27 TO 0

Princeton, After Poor Start, Puts Over Four Touchdowns on Rivals.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—The Williams College football team tried in vain to hold Princeton at Palmer Memorial stadium this afternoon. The Tigers rolled up 27 points without much apparent effort and held the visitors scoreless.

The Williams boys held the Tigers in the first quarter. This was due principally to poor leadership by "Snake" Ames. For an experienced football general he displayed poor headwork. It was not until late, when the third-string quarterback was put in, that the team showed any signs of strength.

The Tigers marched down the field for their first touchdown just a few minutes before the second period ended. With the ball in Williams' possession on her own 20-yard line the Tigers suddenly woke up. Setting the purple eight yards on the first two downs, Lamberton recovered a fumble on the third attempt and in two plays "Buzz" Law carried the ball over for the first touchdown, one minute before the half ended. Law kicked goal.

Law Carries Ball Over.

In an effort to keep the ball from her own goal line the Williams quarterback resorted to a kicking game in the second half, but he had the wind against him and it was not long before the ball was on his own 25-yard line in Princeton's possession. Here the Tigers began to fight hard and a series of line plunges, with Law in the leading role, placed the ball between the goal posts for the second touchdown.

Williams' team recovered for the moment and when the ball was again rushed to her own four-yard line she held Princeton for downs.

However, the visitors' line could not hold against the many fresh substitutes sent in against it and Billy Moore, the fastest man on the squad, easily scored two touchdowns in the last quarter. Almost single-handed Moore carried the ball from midfield on a series of line plunges for a touchdown and on a line buck he cleared himself from the field and placed the ball between the goal posts for another after a 40-yard run.

Lineup:

Princeton.	Positions.	Williams.
Gennert	Center	Welch
Hogg	Right guard	Weeks
Halsey	Right tackle	Parmalee

Substitutions—Moore for Law, Butterworth for Gennert, Love for Nourse, Latrobe for Parisette, Kauffman for Halsey, Dickerman for Shea, Smith for Wilson, Rahill for Lamberton, Heyniger for Hogg, Charles for Dickerman, Molthan for Jones, Keiser for Clifford, Garfield for Hubbell, Brewer for Parmalee.

Champ Willard Slightly Injured When Automobile Bumps Into a Street Car

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world, narrowly escaped death today when his automobile in which he and his manager, Tom Jones, were riding, crashed into a street car. Willard and Jones had just come from paying a call at the city hall. They rushed out in the automobile and struck the street car headon, the front of the automobile being badly damaged. Willard and Jones were badly shaken up and suffered some bruises, but neither was badly hurt.

Willard will meet local promoters Monday and discuss plans for a fight here in February, but says he first will visit his family in the West before again entering the ring.

RAZORBACKS HALT BILLIKENS' DRIVE ON ONE-FOOT LINE

Best Football Battle Here Since Cochems Day Sees Both Elevens Thwarted, With Victory Almost Assured.

By W. J. O'Connor.

IT was a toe-to-toe, give-and-take fight, fiercely fought and fraught with dramatic moments, a virulent struggle in the tide of battle ebbed and flowed with astonishing abruptness, but in the end it was a draw: St. Louis U. 0, Arkansas 0.

When the whistle sounded for the cessation of hostilities, the players of both sides were in such a frenzy that neither knew in which direction to leave the field. They stood there for a time dumb from exhaustion, but when Arkansas' acting captain, Davidson, finally bolted for the bench with the ball, Emil Flug, the Billikens' quarterback, dashed after him in such a belligerent manner that the spectators stopped, confidently expecting something in the way of a passage of arms.

No Fight, Just a Cheer.

It was a tense moment. Feeling had run high throughout the game and little was needed to inaugurate a donnybrook. However, it was at this delicate moment that the spirit of sportsmanship, which alone redeems the brutality of collegiate football, manifested itself.

After first offering to defend his illegal claim to the ball with his fist, Davidson had a second thought, relinquished the ball and immediately gave three cheers for St. Louis. The weary and worn Billikens, with their feet dragging, caught the spirit of the occasion, responded with a cheer for the Razorbacks, and called it a day.

And it was some day, friends. Not since the halcyon days of Eddie Cochems' commercialized reign at St. Louis U. has the followers of that school viewed a football struggle more replete with thrills. It was hard, earnest and at times wicked fighting. Both teams struggled to the very threshold of victory twice only to be tripped in their last, conquering step.

The breaks of the game were evenly divided, however, although St. Louis U. followers cling to the claim that the loss of Fullback Wynn and Left Halfback Corcoran in the first few minutes of play deprived the Billikens of a scoring punch that would have sealed the verdict in the first period.

The Razorbacks, on the other hand, plead that the officials were discriminatingly exact to their great detriment and offer the total yardage of penalties—75 in all—as the one big reason why they didn't take home the side of pork. St. Louis U. wasn't penalized an inch against this grand total of 75 assessed on Arkansas. And often it must be said that a penalty timely arrested the visitor's forced march to the Billiken goal.

But viewed from any angle it was a great game to watch, a game in which the Billikens' speed vied with the enemy's smashing tactics of elementary football and in the end it was a standoff.

Arkansas showed a better pai ends and they played a promi part in depriving Keogan's tea a triumph. The St Louis U. were weak, as they have been season, on the defense. Gleeson a Ferrenbach were boxed and carri out on almost every play, wh their downfield work was miserab in comparison to the enemy's. A kansas' ends were fast, big and dea ly tacklers. They covered Davidso punt splendidly and there was a of punting.

Then, too, Artie Thomas was n on his game—save for a few minut in the third period, when he gave brilliant exhibition of passing a running. On the whole, however, passing was a shade worse than has ever been, chiefly, however, b cause Arkansas' ends rushed him an put a premium on quick throw Once he deliberately grounded th ball to avoid a smashing. This men tal hazard always seemed to effec his throwing and for that reason th aerial attack was not what it shoul have been.

Thomas' Toe Saves Billikens Twice; Boots 55 Yards From Behind His Goa

BUT for what Thomas lacked on the passing end, he made up for in kicking. Twice in the dire pinch he delivered kicks that brought 4000 fans to their feet. Once with his back to the wall, behind his own goal line in the first period, he threw his whole 152 pounds into the pigskin—and did it in a hurry, as Carroll and Wilson were almost on top of him—and sent the ball 55 yards down the field with enough height to let his ends make the tackle in good time.

Again in the third period he kicked for 61 yards, over the Razorbacks' safety man's head, driving the battle into the enemy's danger zone after his own goal had been menaced. Ever so often he got away on a run that netted substantial gains, but with Wynn and Corcoran missing, he was overworked and wearied of his job early.

Flug Best Ground Gainer.

Withal, he' a star. So is Flug, who made more gains by rushing yesterday than did Thomas. And Welch is no slouch as a tackle, nor is Schopp anything but a game, sure footed guard. Stanislav is a good defensive tackle, but he didn't seem able to open any holes for his back on the short sorties inside or outside of his position. The weak spots in the Billiken team were the ends, although Gleeson still is a demon on the receiving end of the forward pass. That's what he's in there for and he made two catches yesterday that provoked applause from the non-partisan rooters.

However, Arkansas didn't come totally unequipped with individual stars. The visitors are a narly lot, lean and lanky and stronger than the Billikens. They held up better, too, and were much the fitter at the finish.

In Davidson they have a star that shone yesterday like the kohinoor in an enamel background. As a defensive halfback no one has shown here this season that even approaches him. He stands over six feet, runs high and fast and tackles viciously.

Time and again, yesterday, he would come up from his position in the secondary line, tear through the Billiken interference and dive into the runner before he had reached the line of scrimmage with such precision as to be uncanny. He made repeated gains on the attack and kicked well throughout. Hardin, the quarterback, is another finished p duct, fast and tricky in the ope

HOPPE WILL PLAY 500 TO COCHRAN'S 300 FOR CUE TITLE

New Handicap Scheme Gives siders a Chance in Fight r 18.2 Championship.

NDICAPS FOR 18.2 TITLE TOURNAMENT
William F. Hoppe	500
George Sutton	400
George F. Slosson	375
Koji Yamadi	375
Joseph Mayer	325
Welker Cochran	300

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Above is the official handicap for the 18—2 balkline billiard tournament to be held at the Music Hall of the New York Theater building from Nov. 15 to Nov. 23, inclusive. On the opening day only one game will be played and that will take place in the evening. Afterward until tournament is decided games will be scheduled for each afternoon and evening. The competitions will involve a series of 15 games. Should any ties develop they will be played off.

When arrayed against each other, the players receiving odds will compete according to their relative allotments. Thus Sutton will play 400 against 375 by Slosson and Yamada 400 against 325 by Mayer and 400 against 300 by Cochran. Inasmuch as the handicap basis is 500 points before each game begins nds conceded will be scored.

Handicap tournaments at 14—2 balk e this were conducted in the room of cob Schaefer at St. Louis in January, 18 7, and the corresponding month the following year. In 1890, Feb. 20 to March 1, at Chickering Hall, New York, a handicap of the same lines was staged. Slosson and Schaefer played 14—2 while Daly, Catton, Ives and Heiser were governed by 18—2. Slosson won, Schaefer second and Daly, Catton and Ives tied. That was Ives' first appearance in New York.

Central Musical Hall, Chicago, April 5 to 12, the same players again competed. The handicap, however, was one of points at 14—2. Schaefer and Slosson played 500; Daly 300; Ives 275; tton and Heiser 250. Schaefer won, e second and Slosson third.

The last public handicap at balkline k place at Central Music Hall, Chigo, Jan. 17 to 22, 1898. It was at 18—1. aefer and Ives played 400 points, Sut Catton and Spinks 300. Schaefer Ives tied and divided first and ond prizes. Sutton was third. Cat and Spinks tied for fourth prize. It s in this tournament that Schaefer raged 40 in 400 points and Ives, who ored a total of 1578 points, made a and average of 24.28.

Thus it will be observed that while the esent scheme of tournament is a radi departure from the methods em ed to establish balk line champion it is not an innovation. It is re as a necessity in the interest of onal billiards. With all the balk n the possession of William F. pe, the championships they repre ed no longer in existence and his remacy at the 18-1, 18-2 and 14-1 lines vincingly demonstrated the Bruns k-Balke-Collender declined to pro e any more events in which partici ts would have to play against each r on even terms.

ppe Is on Scratch.

e only alternative was a handicap. gested as a means to bring about ptual contests it was approved by everybody interested in billiards. Hence s adoption. Theoretically, it will give very participant an equal chance against every other. If practical application confirms the design of those who ranged the handicap announced, in the oming tournament, Hoppe who is on scratch," will have no advantage over ochran who has the "limit." Public opinion favors Hoppe, because of his resourcefulness, as the probable winner the first prize of $1000. It is, howr, generally conceded that if he gets he will earn it by an exposition of the st billiards of which he is capable.

Writing about the chance of the ennts who will oppose Hoppe, Charles Gray, the artist amateur of Washton, intimated that they are likely to rform better than if facing almost rtain defeat. His belief is that ev billiard expert, professional or amaur, will play better when he has a ssible chance to win than when engaging in an apparently hopeless contest. Assuming that this view is correct, Sutton, when in good form, always ked to make large runs, with his start 100 may be dangerous; the veteran losson and the spectacular Yamada nceded 125 will be worthy of respect consideration; while the former amachampion, Mayer, a brilliant exe favored by 175 and the Iowa boy, has been performing exceptionally at Chicago, at the room of William nsser, who vouches for him as the promising young expert in the orld, should prove important factors the outcome.

Benny McGovern, in Tilt With Trendall, Shows He Is Ready for 'Comeback'

St. Louis Featherweight, Who Fights "Young Abe Attell," Tuesday, Appears to Have Recovered From Appendicitis Operation Performed Early This Year.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

THOSE who think Benny McGovern "will never be the same" had best reserve their opinion until next Tuesday evening when he gives them an opportunity to sight their judgement at the Future City Athletic Club.

On that evening the popular local feather-weight boxer will exchange punches with Abe Sherman, better known, perhaps, around here as "Young Abe Attell."

It will be his first contest since the night he went down to defeat before Johnny Solberg, the bout being stopped in the fifth round to prevent his being knocked out.

On that occasion, March 30, 1915, McGovern entered the ring about two months after he had undergone an operation for appendicitis, and he failed to make good. Whether it was because he had had too little time in which to recuperate his physical strength, or was still suffering the tension of nervous shock, or was a victim of pseudaesthesia, or whatever it was, McGovern's performance that night gave out the impression that he was through. His pitiful collapse brought tears to the eyes of some who had watched him from the beginning of his career. There were no cheers for the winner, even though no one denied credit to the great Solberg. "McGovern's through!" was heard on every side as the spectators filed out, and there were few, indeed, who thought otherwise.

McGovern Plans Come-Back.

Then McGovern went to the country, away from the noise and hustle, away from the bright lights and the waking hours, and remained there all summer. When the fall season came on he returned to the city and said, "I feel fine." And he looked the part. Then he went to the gymnasium and again took up the sort of exercise that is good for a boxer. For the past month McGovern has been training in the same way he would have been had he been training for a bout in which he was already scheduled to appear.

It was not until last Wednesday morning, however, that he knew he was going to box next Tuesday night. He was told by his manager, Tony Ortel, that he had been matched with "Young Abe Attell," and McGovern replied that he was ready. For the past week he has been helped by Harry Trendall and Tom Burke, and they pronounce him fit.

On last Friday afternoon I saw McGovern boxing Trendall, and I doubt very much if he will be called upon to do any harder fighting in the ring next Tuesday night. Trendall tore into Benny hard, particularly about the body, and at the end of the bout McGovern was free of distress beyond what was naturally to be expected following so violent an exertion.

I am inclined to believe that if McGovern can enter the ring next Tuesday night free of nervous tension he will be good as ever, so far as his strength is concerned. Just how free he will be from nervousness is a condition that cannot be foretold, but if appearances, actions and a happy disposition count for anything, there is little reason for alarm.

McGovern O K, Doctor Says.

Dr. C. E. Dudley, who performed the operation for appendicitis, does not hesitate to give it as his opinino that McGovern will be as good as ever.

"McGovern," said Dr. Dudley to the writer, "made a perfect recovery. There was no drainage nor hernia following the operation and the abdominal walls have not been weakened. I see no reason for believing that McGovern will not be as strong as ever."

The match for next Tuesday night is at catchweights and McGovern will enter the ring weighing about 124 pounds. His opponent will weigh about 128. It will be their second meeting, McGovern outpointing "Young Attell" in an 8-round bout that took place December 28, 1912, before the St. Louis A. C. at the Coliseum. It was the same night Leo Kelly defeated Milburn Saylor of Indianapolis. Since that time McGovern and Attell have widened their experiences considerably.

Attell left St. Louis and was gone for more than two years. It is a coincidence that his last bout before going was with McGovern, and his first upon returning is with the same boy. While away Attell boxed his way from Philadelphia to the Pacific Coast and back again. Among his achievements were 20-round draws with Billy Alvars and "Kid" Leeders and a 10-round victory over Willie Purcell, the Cincinnati flash. Incidentally it may be mentioned that McGovern duplicated the latter feat.

Attell is quite well known here, having done his first boxing about four years ago. At that time he was outpointed by Will Madigan in four rounds, and afterwards boxed Madigan a six-round draw. Then he boxed "Kid" Peppers, and the latter was disqualified in the fifth round for fouling; afterwards they boxed a six-round draw. Attell was then twice outpointed by "Young" Keener (Charley Cain) in six-round bouts.

While the bout between McGovern and Attell probably will be a good one, unquestionably the greatest interest centers in how successful McGovern's "come-back" will be.

"Kid" Lewis, English Lightweight Star, Meets Saylor Next Tuesday

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Ted "Kid" Lewis, the English lightweight, who has made a big hit with the fight fans of Boston as a result of his many victories at the Atlas A. A., was signed up for another battle at the Triple A. Club on next Tuesday night. His opponent will be another one of the stars of the lightweight division, Milburn "Young" Saylor of Indianapolis, who recently boxed Charley White a draw at the same club. Lewis has been substituted for White, who is unable to meet Saylor on account of illness.

Gunboat Smith has another bout on in the West. Billy McVarney, who was authorized by Jim Buckley to clinch bouts for the "Gooner" out there, today wired Buckley that he has signed for Smith to box either Carl Morris or Jim Flynn at Oklahoma City on Thanksgiving day afternoon. This will be the fourth bout that Smith will engage in in the West next month.

Augie Ratner, the former amateur champion, who has won all his bouts since he joined the professional ranks, was engaged today by Billy Gibson, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, to meet Farmer Sullivan, the west side fighter, in the semi-final of 10 rounds to the big scrap between Jack Dillon and Charley "Young" Weinert in the Garden on Monday night.

Sam Wallach, who looks after the affairs of his brother, Leach Cross, is trying to induce Billy Gibson to stage a bout in Madison Square Garden between Leach and Ad. Wolgast, the ex-lightweight champion. Leach and Wolgast fought a slashing battle at the St. Nicholas Rink and Sam is of the opinion that another fight between them would be just as interesting.

Although Jack Dillon floored Jim Savage three times in a recent bout and gave him a bad beating, Charley "Young" Weinert is confident that he will beat him on Monday night. "When I fought Dillon in Philadelphia," said Weinert today, "I was practically a novice and, of course, was knocked out. I have improved since that fight and really believe that I will outpoint him this time."

WOMEN'S GOLF TITLE WON BY MRS. FRANK PIERCE

Mrs. Frank R. Pierce won the women's golf title of the Triple A Club, yesterday morning, by defeating Mrs. H. G. Niggeman in the finals round of the first women's championship tourney ever held at the Forest Park Club. Mrs. Pierce won the match, 1 up in 18 holes. She had a handicap of 22 strokes over her opponent, two strokes on holes 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 11, 12, 13, and 15 and one stroke on the other holes.

Mrs. G. F. Brueggeman (40) defeated Mrs. A. Brown (0) in the finals of the consolation class, 1 up in 18 holes. The putting and driving contests will be held tomorrow morning.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

BENTON'S 40-YARD RUN SAVES YOST'S TEAM A SHUTOUT

Many Fumbles Hold Down Syracuse's Margin of Victory to Seven Points.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 30.—A powerful but erratic defense and the weakness of the Wolverines' line gave Syracuse University a 14 to 7 victory over the University of Michigan football eleven here today. Syracuse made many fumbles, two of which came when the Easterners had started marches toward Michigan's goal.

Twice during the first period Syracuse suffered 15-yard penalties for holding. Despite these setbacks and fumbles the Eastern athletes worked the ball to Michigan's 49-yard line before the quarter ended.

In the second period, Syracuse began a whirlwind attack. Rose broke through Whalen and sprinted 40 yards for a touchdown. Wilkinson punted out and then made the goal.

The powerful Syracuse backs then asserted itself. In five minutes Michigan's goal line was threatened. A six-yard end run by Meehan around Staatz resulted in a second touchdown. Wilkinson again punted out and goaled.

The third period was a pretty fight with Syracuse claiming the margin. The ball was on Michigan's 18-yard line when Meehan fumbled and Benton recovered.

There was little to choose between the elevens in the last quarter until the closing minutes of play. The ball was generally near the center of the field.

Finally Syracuse added another fumble to an already large collection. Benton again grabbed the ball and a 40-yard dash resulted in a touchdown. Benton kicked goal. Lineup and summary:

HALF OF WARD ESTATE IS LEFT TO HIS WIDOW

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The unmarried children of Robert B. Ward, the Federal League baseball magnate who died at New Rochelle, Oct. 18, are to receive twice as much as those who have married under the terms of his will, admitted to probate today. About one-half of the estate, estimated at $5,000,000, is to be divided among the nine children.

One-half of the estate is left outright to Mrs. Mary C. Ward, the widow, three sixty-fourths is to be divided among charitable organizations to be designated by her and the remainder goes to the children.

BOUTS AGAINST MINORS DELIGHT OF AD WOLGAST

Ad Wolgast, ex-champion lightweight, seems to have a liking these days for the minor bouts in the small towns. Ad has had a number of them the last season, and the other night he met Bobby Waugh, the Texas lightweight, in a scheduled 15-round go at Shreveport, La. The contest went only six rounds, as Ad lost on an alleged foul.

The Michigan bearcat claimed it was not a foul, but a physician who was called in, stated that Bobby had been hit low. Wolgast is well fixed with the long green and really has no need of taking such minor matches. A few good ones of class in the larger cities would pay him much better and would be no harder to go through with than the supposed soft snaps against some of the alleged second raters.

PENNSY OUTPLAYS LAFAYETTE TEAM, BUT LOSES 17 TO 0

Philadelphians Gain Four Times as Much Ground as Foes, but Fumbles Hurt.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Pennsylvania lost to Lafayette today. It was Pennsylvania's third defeat this season. The score was 17 to 0.

Pennsylvania carried the ball about four times as far as Lafayette. Her power was almost irresistible; but she lost through fumbling and bad judgment in running off plays. The Pennsylvanians made 15 first downs in the game to Lafayette's four.

Lafayette scored early in the first period, when Pennsylvania fumbled and the Eaton team recovered. Lafayette, failing to make an impression on the line, Lake kicked a field goal from Pennsylvania's 36-yard line. In the second period Quarterback Berry of Pennsylvania fumbled a punt, and Scott of Lafayette, scooping up the ball on the run, sprinted 45 yards for a touchdown.

In the final period Bell, substituting for Berry, also fumbled a punt and Lafayette secured the ball in midfield. Lafayette failing to gain, punted for a touchback. Then Bell punted straight up in the air for no gain. With the ball in Lafayette's hands, Weldon, on Pennsylvania's 25-yard line, made a forward pass to Scott on the five-yard mark and the latter was over the goal line for a touchdown before a Pennsylvanian could intercept him.

Penn Makes Long Marches.

Pennsylvania repeatedly carried the ball down the field for long distances. Twice they lost it on downs and several times it was lost near Lafayette's goal on fumbles. Lineup and summary:

Lafayette (17).	Positions.	Penna. (0).

Schulte Sends Out Call for 100 New CrossCountry Men For Missouri Tigers' Team

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 30.—Following the defeat of Missouri's cross-country team at Ames last Saturday, Coach Schulte has issued a call for 100 new men, to report immediately for night work. He will institute the game of hare and hounds and plans on several weeks of easy cross-country running.

It appears that Ames, winner of the valley cross-country championship for two years, and last year took the honors in the Big Nine conference, has had 200 men out for cross-country, while Missouri has had only a score. The coach thinks no time is like the present for instituting a reform.

Each Tuesday and Thursday night there will be a hare and hounds run for a mile and a half, and at the end of 10 such workouts, prizes will be given to those who have showed themselves superior.

HERE'S HOW DONIE BUSH REBUKES THE ARBITERS

This happened during one of the Tiger-Brown games in September, at a time when the Tigers still were in the pennant fight and battling every inch of the way.

Umpire Hildebrand called a strike on Donie Bush and Donie roared. Donie fouled off the next and when the third ball floated over the plate Donie permitted it to go by.

"Strike thr-ee-e—you're out!" yelled Hildebrand.

"Out? Me out? Hey, whatse matter with you?" shrieked Bush. "Cantcha see?" And then, as an afterthought, Bush turned around as he was walking back to the bench and shot this at the umpire: "Say, Mr. Hildebrand, if I were a pitcher and you umpired all my games, I'd never lose one."

C. B. C. Center Intercepts Forward Pass and Dashes 100 Yards for Touchdown

Danny Murphy Stars as Brothers Eleven Romps Over the Southern Illinois Normals in Second Period of Contest —Visitors Appear in Poor Condition.

OUTSIDE of Danny Murphy, an alert center, there was little in the C. B. C. 33 to 0 victory over the Southern Illinois Normals at the Christian Brothers' College campus yesterday afternoon. Whenever the opposition tried a forward pass, Danny Murphy was in the way. Then when the Normals were on a march down the field, looking for a big gain, D. Murphy was right there to down the man. In fact, Murphy was just about everywhere on the field.

It was mainly due to the efforts of Murphy that the Brothers' were able to keep their slate clean. In the first quarter, Murphy was given no chances to shine. But in the second he got his chance and made the best of it.

With the Normals holding the ball on C. B. C.'s 2-yard line, having brought the ball there mainly through the line smashes of Lee, left halfback, D. Murphy got in his first piece of work.

The Normals tried a forward pass, because the locals' line held like an iron wall, with their goal threatened. It might have gone through for a touchdown but for D. Murphy. The center intercepted the ball and ran 100 yards, almost the length of the field, for a touchdown.

Murphy Intercepts Pass.

This was the real turning point of the game. Prior to the time Murphy intercepted a well intended forward pass, the Normals had been outplaying the Brothers. After Murphy made his sensational pass, they lost a lot of their pep and it was just one march to the goal after another for the purple and gold. Before the quarter was ended they had pushed three more touchdowns over the line.

When the Normals put the ball on the 2-yard line, it was the nearest any opposing eleven has come to scoring upon the eleven coached by Brother Sylvester this year. After this one brace, though, the Normals never had a chance to score.

While the doings of Murphy were easily the feature; another that stood out prominently, was the condition of the local kickers. Only twice were the locals forced to call for time. Once Fullback Hart wrenched his ankle and had to be taken out of the game. The other when C. Essman called for time, having had the wind knocked out of him in a scrimmage. On the other hand, most of the Normals were limping after the game, and there were no less than eight substitutions.

Normals Start Well.

When the game started it looked as if the Normals were going to run over the purple and gold. Left Halfback Lee had little trouble punching holes in the locals' defense, while the Normal line held like glue when the Brothers' held the ball. Neither team was able to count in the first period.

Opening the second, the Normals continued their march down the field. Then when they had the ball on the 2-yard line, a forward pass was called for and Murphy went down the field for the first score. P. Murphy kicked the goal.

It was not long after the teams had lined up again that McCracken recovered a Normal fumble and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. A 35-yard run by P. Murphy helped things along before the locals lost the ball on downs. P. Murphy again kicked goal and the score stood 14-0 favor the Brothers.

Mr. Danny Murphy was there once more when the locals counted their third touchdown of the period. Loudon attempted a forward pass, but Murphy grabbed the ball on the 50-yard line and ran the distance for the score. And once more the other Murphy, Paul, was there kicking the goal.

Fourth Touchdown Earned.

The Brothers' fourth and final count of the second period was earned. Line rushes by McCracken, Quinn and McGinnis brought the ball to the 50-yard line. Then P. Murphy made a 20-yard forward pass to McGinnis, who ran the remaining 30 for the touchdown. P. Murphy missed the goal and the half ended 27 to 0, favor the locals.

The rest between halves seemed to benefit the Normals and they held the Brothers scoreless in the third period, but in the fourth Walter Essman was pushed over for the final touchdown. Before this period, Essman had not carried the ball. In the fourth, P. Murphy called upon him and Walter never failed to gain. When he counted, he made 10 yards, with two Normal tackles hanging on him.

Left Halfback Lee, who was forced to get out of the game on account of an injured shoulder in the third quarter, was the real star for the Normals. He hardly ever failed to gain. In fact, he was about the only one who could gain through the locals' line. Hamilton at right guard also put up a good game for the visitors. About 500 rooters turned out for the contest.

The lineups:

C. B. C. (33).	Positions.	Southern Ill. (0)
Long	Left end	Biswell
W. Essman	Left tackle	Feller
McCracken	Left guard	Harris
D. Murphy	Center	E. Parker

Prejudice Shown by A. A. U. Heads in Kiviat Trial

By Robert Edgren.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Irish-American A. C. is still fighting the Abel Kiviat "professionalism" case. And there's some truth in the contention that the registration committee of the A. A. U. gave Kiviat a much harder deal than it has given some other athletes accused of professionalism.

Kiviat seems to have been much less tenderly handled than the famous Platt Adams. Kiviat was declared a professional because an up-State A. A. U. official testified that he had received a letter from Kiviat inclosing a slip of paper on which was a demand for excessive "expenses."

But he didn't produce the "slip of paper" with Kiviat's demand and signature. He said his wife had accidentally burned it up. Kiviat was declared a professional without the only piece of real evidence. There was nothing to show that even if a slip was received the signature on it was Kiviat's signature.

In the Adams case the witnesses produced the alleged prizes sold by Adams and the check given in payment, as well as much evidence of a less concrete nature.

The high officials of the A. A. U. who were so active in convicting Kiviat were entirely indifferent when Adams was on trial. There was no strenuous demands for a conviction then. In fact a mere outsider at the meeting might have thought the witnesses against Adams were on trial instead of the noted Platt, for they were bullied and browbeaten from start to finish and every effort was made to discredit them.

Even if it were admitted that Kiviat is and has been a professional throughout his "amateur" career, the I.-A. A. C. is right in its claim that the A. A. U. should apply the same straightforward methods in all cases of alleged professionalism.

Van Gent Issues First Call for Basket Players

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 30.—The first call has been issued at Missouri University for basket ball material, and no less than 65 men reported to Coach Van Gent last week. When the old regulars and substitutes and members of last year's freshman basket ball team are relieved from football work, the total of the basket squad is expected to reach a hundred.

Four "M" men are back at the university this year, Capt. "String" Wear, Jake Speelman, and Hyde, who will play for their third year, and Fred Williams, who played for his first time last year. Stars of the freshman team of last year who are back are Pittam, Rider, Shepard and Stankowski. All of these men, with the exception of Wear and Williams, are out for the varsity football team, Speelman being football captain.

Missouri's basket ball prospects are brighter this year than for many seasons. With four regulars and the four sophomores mentioned, Van Gent will have the nucleus of a fast and experienced team. Kansas, the greatest rival and the team which has won the Valley championship for several years, lost all five of its last year's regulars, and should be in a weakened condition.

This will be Coach Van Gent's second year with the quintet, and according to the way he improved it in his first year, Missouri should be able to take the same rank in basket ball in the conference which she has taken heretofore in football and track.

ST. LEOS MEET FOLEY'S MEN IN SOCCER FEATURE

10-Time Champions Will Have New Lineup in Battle With Innisfails Today.

Two interesting soccer battles are carded for today at Robison Field, when the Ben Millers take on the Missouri Naval Reserves in the opening clash with the Innisfails and the St. Leos furnishing the second and feature exhibition of the twin bill.

Manager Tate Brady of the Middies expects to have a different front today to go against the Millers, as he has made several changes in the makeup of the team. Cliff Brady will be working in the forward line, with Caesar and Willie Brady also getting a chance to show their ability. Pete Ratican, boss of the Ben Millers, announces he will use the same lineup that administered a crushing defeat to the St. Leos last Sunday.

With the poor showing made up to date by the former ten-time champions, Manager Bill Monahan intends to make a shift of his men to put them on a winning stride. Sucher, who has been working at fullback, will be shifted to half, while Boucher and Bill Abstein will be the fullbacks. Eddie Collins will be placed in the forward line. Monahan is also depending upon his star goal keeper, "Duke" Sheehan, to get in uniform.

The Innisfails will stand pat on the lineup which has put the team at the top of the heap in the race for the pennant. Kick-off promptly at 2 o'clock Paul McSweeney will handle both games.

Keogan's Eleven Within One Foot of Winning Game

line. Flug blocked it but Davidson recovered and another drive was started for victory.

Three shots at the line were weak and the Billikens took the ball on downs. Thomas went behind his own goal line for the kick, and as usual the Billiken line opened up and Carroll and Stansberry were on top of the Billiken kicker almost before he had the ball. However, he worked fast. He kicked right under Stansberry's nose and got 55 yards into the punt, which carried so well against the wind that Bain fumbled on his own 45-yard line.

Welch Is Hurt.

Then came the final thrill. Welch wrapped himself around Bain's fumble like a cobra. The Razorbacks piled on, however, and Welch was done for the day. He limped off and Galvin went in.

Thomas then shot a beautiful 15-yard pass to Gleason, who jumped and grabbed the ball with his back to the passer, and was thrown hard by Davidson, who never was gentle. Another pass, Thomas to Ferrenbach, netted six yards.

It was the Billikens' ball on Arkansas' 24-yard line. Thomas tried left end and circled away to the north side lines, turned and came back almost to the south side of the field before he was thrown. He shook off four tacklers in this chase and gained 13 yards and first down. The Billikens were playing fast and furiously and the Razorbacks were breaking ground with astonishing accord. It looked like a certain score. But again Weckenman's weakness for fumbling broke the spell. With only 11 yards to go, he was given the ball and made four, but fumbled and Campbell recovered for Arkansas.

This was the one time in the entire game, with the exception of the very first four minutes of play, that the Billikens seemed entirely superior to their adversaries. In advancing the ball 33 yards in this last drive, Keogan's men showed a versatility of attack and a defined scheme of play that really was meritorious. And there are those who will contend forevermore that a touchdown would have resulted had not Weckenman inserted his costly fumble.

Davidson kicked and the quarter ended with the Billikens in possession of the oval on their own 42-yard line. Play in the final period bespoke the desperate strain under which the warriors were. Thomas, however, repeatedly saved the day, especially when he uncorked a punt that traveled from his own 30-yard line to Arkansas' nine-yard mark—61 yards in all—and had such height that Stanislav was down to make the tackle.

Arkansas made 11 yards on the first rush, but a 15-yard penalty for roughing put them back close to their line and Davidson kicked. Thomas was over-anxious and made his first fumble of the day, losing a chance to lead a last desperate charge for the enemy's trench.

Howeevr, he ran two plays, then kicked and again gained on the exchange. Another penalty interrupted an Arkansas offensive and Davidson kicked to Tommy on his own 40-yard line. Here the Billikins, dying hard, foolishly tried two short passes. There was the chance of either being intercepted and a touchdown made. However, on the third down Thomas, from a pass formation, gave the ball to Flug, who circled the weak side of the line for 18 yards, putting the ball on Arkansas' 47-yard line. Another pass failed, but on the next throw Flug made 12 yards and first down. The enemy's line resisted two charges and Tommy dropped back to the 38-yard line for a last shot at a goal from placement. He kicked into the mass, however, and Arkansas recovered near its own goal. Two plays were run before the battle ended.

In the final analysis we find that St. Louis U. made more first downs by rushing, the count being 9 to 8, while the Billikens also gained more on forward passes, although they tried three to Arkansas' one. Arkansas, on the other hand, was infinitely superior in returning kicks, due to the poor downfield work of Gleason and Ferrenbach, while St. Louis gained little on the return of punts or kick-offs.

MAHAN SHINES AS HARVARD MACHINE BEATS PENN STATE

Strong Pennsylvania Aggregation Lucky to Escape With 13-Point Defeat.

CRIMSON HOPES REVIVE

Followers of Cambridge Eleven Now See Bright Future in Big Games.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 30.—Harvard's improving football machine defeated the strong Penn State eleven here this afternoon, score 13—0. A touchdown in the second period by Parson and a goal by Mahan, and a second touchdown in the third period made by the brilliant Harvard captain represented all the scoring. Crimson supporters are encouraged for the first time this year and Harvard's attacking power has begun at last to show. Pennsylvania State, who held Harvard to a 13—13 tie last year, were as strong an aggregation as a year ago, but Harvard since its defeat at the hands of Cornell has rounded into shape and Pennsylvania State found a different aggregation than the Ithacans.

Eddie Mahan atoned for the sins of last Saturday, and time and again brought the ball to within the shadow of his opponents' goal posts, only to see his team credited with only one touchdown that was the result of steady rushing from Harvard's 35-yard line.

Crimson Uses One Pass Only.

H[illegible]rvard resorted to straight football. The only forward pass that [illegible] attempted was successful, but [illegible] who received the pass, made [illegible]ree yards. When the Crimson [illegible] her attack working to perfection he decided to follow this course [illegible]as aided by heavy penalties in[illegible] against the Pennsylvania eleven.

[illegible] the second period, after Pennsylvania State had made three futile [illegible]pts at forward passing and lost [illegible] ball on downs, Mahan punted [illegible] his 36-yard line to Ewing, who [illegible]d on his own 15-yard line. The [illegible] carried by the wind, eluded [illegible]ng who, chasing it, gave it a [illegible]ht kick and the impetus sent the [illegible] over the goal line. Parson, who [illegible]e tearing down the field, fell on [illegible] ball and Harvard was credited [illegible] its first touchdown. Mahan [illegible]ed goal.

Harvard Defense Weak.

Harvard was weak before the on[illegible]ught of State's driving attack. [illegible]nsylvania State had thrown back [illegible] Crimson for heavy gains from [illegible]dfield until they reached the Crimson's 15-yard line. Here Berryman, skirting through tackle, crossed the [illegible]ne for a touchdown, but Pennsylvania state was holding and the [illegible]uchdown did not count, besides [illegible]ing penalized 15 yards. This was [illegible]e nearest Pennsylvania State came [illegible] making a touchdown. Enright, who had just returned to the game, after [illegible] three weeks' layoff, was carried from the field with a badly wrenched knee.

[illegible]ailure to Kick Goals Is Costly to Navy Players

[illegible]rth Carolina Aggies Defeat Middies, 14—12, When Kicks Go Wrong.

[illegible]ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 30.—North [illegible]lina Agricultural and Mechanical [illegible]ge defeated Navy today, 14 to 12. [illegible] the first two periods, when [illegible]id all their scoring, the Aggies [illegible] marked superiority over the [illegible]ies in defensive and offensive [illegible]k. Straight football gained the [illegible]itors' first touchdown. The sec[illegible] score in the second period was [illegible] when Bonner recovered the ball [illegible] Westphal of Navy, had fumbled [illegible] Aggie punt on his own 35-yard [illegible].

[illegible]Navy's first tally was made on a [illegible]covery of a blocked punt, Martin's [illegible] of the punt out for the first [illegible]al, and Blodgett's miss of the sec[illegible] goal lost the game for Navy. Secretary of the Navy Daniels witnessed the game.

Failure to Kick a Goal From Touchdown Spoils Wisconsin Title Hopes

Chicago University Eleven Wins by One Point Because Simpson's Kick Fails to Go Over the Bars—Game Raggedly Played by Both Elevens.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—In one of the greatest upsets of recent conference history, Chicago today, through the spirit and dash of its backs and the stamina of its line, claimed victory over Wisconsin's dreaded machine, 14 to 13.

A missed goal from touchdown, with Eber Simpson kicking, accounted for the one point difference, for each team scored two touchdowns.

The Maroons, outplaying the Badgers in the finer points and outkicking them, though Russell nearly offset these advantages by some of the worst fumbling ever seen on Stagg Field.

But the Badgers also fumbled and, except in one or two instances, failed to show the strong interference they have displayed previously.

Wisconsin had far the better of the forward passes. Albert Cahn, a newcomer in Midway ranks, distinguished himself at half and Stagg's latent power was shown in the speed of the other sub backs. Byers and Meyers were stars, but the middle positions were not as well taken care of as expected.

Some brilliant playing and some extraordinarily ragged work marked the first half. A costly fumble by Russell paved the way for the first Wisconsin touchdown and the second was the result of a 50-yard run by Simpson. Fine runs by Flood and Gordon gave the Maroons their first touchdown. The second came in the third period on a Wisconsin fumble which a Chicagoan recovered on the Badgers' 10-yard line. Russell plunged over with the winning marker. Shull's toe gained the one point that was needed.

McKinley Makes Record Score in Beating Yeatman

Crimson Tallies 129 Points While Holding North Siders Scoreless.

The McKinley High School football eleven took the field against the Yeatman High team yesterday morning at the High School field with the express intention of wreaking vengeance for the 12-to 7 defeat handed to it by the North Siders in 1914.

If it was possible to wipe out the stigma of that setback the South Siders surely succeeded, tallying 129 points while holding their opponents scoreless. It was the scholastic slaughter of this season and also recent season.

Jim Conzelman, quarterback, was as usual the outstanding feature of the play. Jim scored nine of McKinley's 18 touchdowns and would have scored more only the other backs insisted on carrying the ball once in a while. Conzelman's open field running was remarkable. He also was a huge cog in the attack in propelling the forward passes with unusual accuracy.

Jack Knetzer, captain of the South Siders, was right along with "Conzy" in the honor line, tallying four touchdowns, and contributing 15 goals after touchdowns in 18 attempts. One attempt was not allowed. Cloud, Merstetter, Ittner, and Fuerborn also were in the luminary line.

The Yeatman team was helpless before McKinley onslaught. The four stars of the eleven—L. Shanley, Kamp, Cox and Lennon, have recently quit the team and consequently there was no semblance of an attack.

Nebraska Beats Ames 21-0; All in 2d Quarter

Iowa Aggies Eleven Holds Cornhuskers Even Up in Three Out of Four Periods.

AMES, Io., Oct. 30.—Before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a Missouri Conference football game here, and with Gov. Clarke and other State officials among the spectators, Nebraska University football players defeated Iowa State Agricultural College this afternoon.

All the scoring of the game was done in the second period, when Chamberlain, Nebraska's left end, went over for two touchdowns, after a series of brilliant end and open field runs, and Rutherford, the visitors' left half got over for another.

The lineup:

Nebraska (21).	Positions.	Ames (0).
Chamberlain	Left end	Foster
Corey	Left tackle	Reeves
Moser	Center	Jones

Cleveland Team Proves Easy for Soldan's Eleven

West Enders Romp Off With 38—0 Victory Over Baby Member in Interscholastic.

Soldan High School's rejuvenated football eleven found little opposition in its meeting with the Grover Cleveland High School team yesterday afternoon at the High School Field, and delivered a neat 38 to 0 package to the baby member of the Interscholastic League. There is no doubt that the West Enders could have doubled the count had Coach Kelley not sent in a host of scrubs to relieve the regulars.

Capt. Tom Walsh made his initial appearance of the season at the fullback position yesterday and from his performance it is quite probable that he will be seen at that position for the remainder of the season.

The Cleveland eleven did show a great deal of improvement and played its best game this season. Loeffler and Bawdon were the individual stars and caused the winners more than a little trouble.

The lineups:

Soldan	Position.	Cleveland.
Colonna	Left end	Dressler
Hedgecock	Center	Berger
Crossin	Right guard	Loeffler
Hennessey	Right tackle	Richter
Malally	Right end	Kilpatrick
Nehr	Quarterback	Cole
Savage	Right halfback	Ronat
Walsh	Fullback	Hardie

Officials: Referee—Sihler (Washington); Umpire—Krause (Washington); Head Linesman—Schaumberg (Washington).

Substitutions: Soldan—Lindholm for Schnaus, Bitting for Hedgecock, Orr for Crossin, Huble for Hennessey, Mepham for Nehr, Curran for Goepel, Broeder for Savage, Sparks for Walsh. Cleveland—Rafferty for Dressler, Gibson for Schramm, Aule for Berger, Snyder for Aule, Lavaty for Kilpatrick, Kinsey for Bawdon.

Touchdowns—Walsh 2; Goepel, Broeder, Savage, Nehr. Goals after touchdown—Nehr and Curran.

T. Boyd, of St. Louis, Named Vice President of Western Golf Ass'n

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—George R. Batch of the Cincinnati Golf Club, was nominated to succeed himself as president of the Western Golf Association in the ticket filed today by the Nomination Committee with Secretary G. F. Hennebery here. Other nominations were: Trustin B. Boyd, Bellerive Country Club of St. Louis, for vice president; E. Hoover Bankard, Milothian Club, Chicago, for secretary; C. C. Paddleford, Flossmore Country Club, Chicago, for treasurer. The only change suggested in the present Board of Directors was the nomination of Arthur B. Caldwell, Detroit Country Club, to take the place left vacant by the elevation of Mr. Boyd to the vice presidency. The other nominees for directors are those elected last year: H. F. Smith, Nashville Country Club; William F. Brooks, Minnikahda Club, Minneapolis; Edvine S. Armstrong, Los Angeles Country Club, and William J. Foye, Omaha Country Club. Bruce D. Smith, present vice president, and Mr. Henneberry, secretary, declined renomination.

The Nomination Committee for this year consisted of A. D. Plamondon, Chicago, chairman; J. A. Roberts, Kansas City; Wilbur H. Brooks, Cleveland; J. R. Lemist, Denver, and George W. Adair, Atlanta. The Nominating Committee for 1916 will be W. W. Harless, South Shore Country Club, Chicago; A. W. Warren, St. Joseph Country Club, Hamilton Vose, Milwaukee Country Club; Joseph S. Hall, Indianapolis Country Club, and D. S. Henderson, Chattanooga Golf and Country Club.

MOBERLY FOOTBALL MEN INJURED IN ROUGH GAME

MOBERLY, Mo., Oct. 30.—In the football game between the Moberly and Glasgow high school teams here yesterday, Moberly was defeated 7 to 6. Paul Staats, fullback for Moberly, was seriously injured and Leonard Fox, halfback, had two ribs fractured.

The game was one of the roughest ever seen in Moberly. The Glasgow players, at the conclusion of the game ran for the train fearing violence at the hands of the crowd. Physicians say the injured men will recover.

New Kansas City Athletic Club Is an Assured Fact

Organization Known as "Field Club" Will Boost Track Sports in W. A. A. U.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 30.—Kansas City is to have a new athletic club. The site of the newly organized Kansas City Field Club, an athletic organization, will be at Fifty-first street and Swope Parkway, it was announced yesterday. The plot of ground is of 10½ acres, on which the Presso School is now located. The school building, containing 30 rooms, will be remodeled and used as a clubhouse. The new site was leased yesterday for 20 years.

Twenty tennis courts, a baseball diamond, a swimming pool, a running track and a putting green for the golfers will be erected. The swimming pool, more than 100 feet long and 60 feet in width, will be in the center of the field and will be of spring water. The tennis courts will be of hard clay and a plan also is under consideration to build one asphalt court.

Fay Moulton May Be Head.

Already 110 men have joined the club. Many of these are members of the Kansas City Athletic Club. Fay Moulton, the former Yale and Kansas track star, who has been pushing forward athletics in the K. C. A. C. for several years, and who may be the president of the new club, declares that the new organization is not for the purpose of fighting the K. C. A. C. He says, in fact, that it will work with the old club in promoting amateur athletics in Kansas City and the Missouri Valley. The new club is the outcome of the reorganization of the old K. C. A. C., which voted last week to double its present dues and raise initiation fees, and to erect a fine clubhouse.

Touchdown by Bergman Is Only Score in Notra Dame Victory Over South Dakota

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 30.—Notre Dame defeated South Dakota, 6 to 0, in a hard-fought game here today. Four subs were used by Notre Dame in the first half, but regulars were played throughout the second half. The only touchdown of the game was scored in the third quarter when Bergman circled left end on a criss-cross play for 75 yards and a touchdown. Lineup:

Notre Dame (6).	Positions.	S. Dakota (0)

Barnacle II Is Winner.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Barnacle II, owned by Charles N. Steele of Chicago, won today the Panama-Pacific Exposition free-for-all championship for speed boats, beating the Oregon Kid II, owned by Milton Smith of Ranier, Ore. The Oregon Kid won last week the Pacific Coast championship. The race was over a course of 30 miles in San Francisco Bay off the exposition grounds. The time was not announced.

FORWARD PASS IN LAST PERIOD WINS FOR CENTRAL, 6-0

Bitter Battle With Western Military Eleven Was Drawn to That Time.

POTTHOFF PROVES STAR

He Recovers Pass and Also Bucks the Line for Gains That Result in Score.

Just about six minutes before the final whistle was blown, when Central High School's student body was preparing to celebrate a scoreless tie encounter with the Western Military Academy eleven, Capt. Fred Potthoff of the local scholastic squad was seen to grab a long arching forward pass propelled by Right Halfback Taity O'Connor and sprint some 15 yards to the cadets' five-yard mark.

While the High School adherents were still engaged in tumultous paroxysms of joy, Capt. Potthoff left his tackle position for his former station at fullback and in two center bucks put the pigskin over the Illinoisans' goal line for the only score of the game, which, inasmuch as Potthoff failed to boot the subsequent goal, gave Central an unexpected 6-to-0 victory.

The final period was well spent when, with the ball on Western's 40-yard mark, Quarterback Whitley called for a forward pass. Potthoff, at this time was playing a tackle position, and in order to make the stocky captain eligible to catch the hurl, End Osborne shifted to the right side of the line.

The pass was about 20 yards in length and Potthoff ran about 15 yards before being downed. Several bucks and a Western penalty put the ball on red and gray 1-yard mark, whence the victory was scored.

Game Marred by Fight.

The game was a beautiful one. Both elevens fought from the very opening whistle and the play was so stubbornly contested that several of the players engaged in a fight in the third quarter. Gerrizen of the visitors and Wood of Central were put out of the game, while O'Connor of Central was reprimanded.

It was the stability of the defense of both elevens that stood out throughout the game. Both forward lines were generally impregnable and during the entire contest it is not probable that first down was made more than ten times. Each eleven at times showed strength when under fire. Central held Western for downs when in the shadow of its own goal posts in the second period, while the visitors held the red and black backs at bay in the third quarter.

Over three-fourths of the play was between the two 40-yard marks and a great deal of it outside of that territory was immediately following the punts.

Aerial Plays Frequent.

Both elevens tried numerous forward passes, but as a rule the defense against the aerial shoots made them unsuccessful. O'Connor of Central put his eleven within striking distance of the Western goal but a few moments after the opening of play when he captured a Western pass and raced from midfield to the cadets' 25-yard mark. The local backs, however, were unable to penetrate the opposing line.

It was also in this period that Quarterback Whitley of Central was guilty of several breaches of gridiron tact when he failed to punt on the fourth down in his own territory. He failed to call Potthoff back on three such cases and Western threatened as a result.

While it was Central's general team play that accounted for its success, Western may attribute its stubborn defense to Gerritzen and Bimer, the ends. These are as shifty a pair as have been seen on local scholastic fields. Then it must be admitted that yesterday's losers, who incidentally gained a 27-to-0 victory over the St. Louis University freshmen last week, are just about the cleanest tacklers seen locally, "prep" or collegiate, this season.

Outside of Central's attack in the final period and two occasions on which the forward lines held when threatened, there were no instances of especial interest, although the entire contest was played with a dash and vim that concentrated the attention of the spectators and caused the some thousand persons in the stands to yell from start to finish. It was easily the feature "prep" battle of the year.

The lineup:

Central.	Positions.	Western.
Osborne	Left end	Bimer
Hoffman	Left guard	Taylor
Zacharias	Center	Remlie
Potthoff	Right guard	Singleton
Haase	Right tackle	Schell
McDermott	Right end	Gerritzen
Whitley	Quarterback	Webster
O'Conner	Right halfback	Wall
Miller	Fullback	Fredericks

Officials: Referee—Sihler (Washington). Umpire—Midkiff (Colgate). Head linesman—Haines (Central High). Time of periods—10m.

Substitutions: Central—Potthoff for Wood, Wetterock for Potthoff, Potthoff for Miller, Miller for Potthoff, Brigham for McDermott, McDermott for Brigham. Western—Squiers for Webster, Waugh for Gerritzen, Velgesung for Taylor, Gist for Birmer.

Touchdown—Potthoff.

PRINCETON AND YALE TIE IN CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—Princeton and Yale raced cross-country today to a tie, the final score standing 28 to 28. Overton, Yale's star runner, was first across the finish line, with Floto of Princeton just behind him.

The winner's time, 32m. 43 1-5s., is very good over the six-mile course, considering the strong wind that prevailed. The first 10 men to finish were:

Overton, Yale, 32m. 43 1-5s.
Gloto, Princeton, 32m. 47s.
Young, Yale, 34m. 15s.
Zunino, Princeton, 34m. 24s.
Glover, Princeton, 34m. 29s.
Platte, Yale, 34m. 33s.
Gulliver, Yale, 34m. 35s.
Dowell, Princeton, 34m. 49s.
Paul, Princeton, 35m. 10s.
Boyd, Princeton, 35m. 12s.

McINTOSH SCORES FROM KICKOFF FOR INDIANA U.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 30.—McIntosh, aided by perfect interference, wiggled the length of the field on the first kick-off, scoring Indiana's only touchdown in the game with Washington and Lee here today, which resulted in a 7 to 7 tie. In the second period, the Virginians, by a series of well executed forward passes, tied the score. In the second half the playing was largely in the territory of the Generals, but Indiana lacked the play to score. Erehart, by a narrow margin, missed a drop-kick for goal in the third period.

Former Umpire Kane Dies.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 30.—Stephen Kane, formerly a widely known National League baseball umpire, and later with the American Association and Federal League, was stricken with a heart attack and died in a hotel here today. Kane was 45 years old. His last employment was with the Ohio State League.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

Peace Is on the Way.

SUNDRY rumors, and that chapter of arithmetic known as Subtractions, seem to hint that another winter will not pass without the settlement of difficulties between the Feds and Organized Baseball.

The rumors include all sorts of compromises said to have been discussed, or completed, by the fighting forces. Conferences have been held and some of the magnates have "leaked" somewhat, but not officially, as to the terms of the settlement.

The rumors are too numerous and persistent not to indicate that something is stirring below the surface. But Old Man Dope's one best bet for the ending of the war is SUBTRACTION!

Already so much has been subtracted from organized baseball values that the MINORS may well be termed MINUS. And as the entire baseball structure, under national agreement ideas, depends on the success of these minors, the dying condition of the "bush" baseball spells bad health for the national game itself.

The Law of Survival.

PEACE alone can help the minors; therefore peace will HAVE to come, and quickly. The season of 1915—the first after the Feds entered the major field—saw 13 fewer minor leagues than the year before. This year at least seven leagues went under and it is not certain how many more will fail to toe the 1916 scratch.

As the total number of minor leafues, numbers, in prosperous times, about 45, the blow to bush-leaguedom, it will be observed, is serious. Another bad year and it might be fatal.

The salvation of the minors demands the adjustment of baseball difficulties. And that's the surest sign of approaching peace.

Got a Good Lacing.

GRAPEVINE wireless from Lansing, Mich., relates that the members of the Michigan Aggies football team all wear corsets. Probably this accounts for their good form up to yesterday.

Passing of Eugen Sandow.

IF an item sent out from London last week is to be relied on, one of the most noted athletes in the history of the world was deleted from the list of popular Londoners—and by a file of soldiers.

Eugene Sandow, whose strong-man feats astounded the world a decade or more ago, was shot in the Tower of London as a spy, news dispatches relate.

The details of Sandow's offense were not given out. Sandow, for several years, has conducted a de luxe establishment for making middle-aged girths like "sweet sixteen." His gymnasium was frequented, report has it, by the very best of London society, including members of officialdom and the high-ups.

Strong men have come and gone, since the time of Sandow, but his feats have never been surpassed by any subsequent performers nor approached by his predecessors in this field. Without trickery Sandow lifted horses, broke iron cables and raised clusters of heavy men from the floor. Ropes strong enough to lift a good-sized safe he broke by merely expanding his muscles.

The Case of Mahmout.

HOWEVER, the death of Sandow has not yet passed the "report" stage. As in the case of Mahmout, the "Terrible Bulgarian," it may prove premature.

Mahmout, it will be remembered, was reported killed during the late Bulgarian wars, and the report was even confirmed. In the last few days it develops that he is alive in Paris and is expecting to return to the United States. (Frank Gotch, please notice.)

It's Time to Retire, Frank.

THIS same Mahmout, if he reappears on the United States wrestling map, which is now undergoing several attempts at re-charting by Joe Stecher, Aberg and other new ones to the championship flight, may cause many "would-be's" to take to cover.

Many persons qualified to speak have held that Mahmout was Gotch's equal, or superior, when the latter was in his prime. The little fact that Gotch easily eliminated Mahmout in their title match failed to alter the opinion of these.

For, they assert, Mahmout was hungry on that occasion. He couldn't even speak the English language. And he was in the hands of a manager since proven to be unscrupulous.

They suggest that the poor, unspeakable near-Turk might have been deluded into "laying down," Gotch not being aware of the transaction.

Such an arrangement was no novelty in our very best wrestling circles in bygone days.

Mahmout certainly is, or was, the best FOREIGN catch-as-catch-can wrestler the world knows today, if it is really he who is alive and in Paris. What he could do to Gotch, now that the famous American champion is reaching the fat-and-forty stage of his development, is merest conjecture.

Suffice to say that wrestlers last longer than fighters; and that Gotch, until proven otherwise, must be esteemed the greatest of all exponents of the catch-as-catch-can style.

Our Newest Stars.

JOE STECHER, the Nebraskan, who will be offered up on the altar of Mr. Gotch ere long—promoters say—is not the easy mark some of the flouters have tried to make it seem.

Joe is comparatively recent in big type, but he is unquestionably a man of merit. Otherwise he would never have been able to upset "Americus," real name Gus Schoenlein, twice within a space of 10 minutes.

Schoenlein has never been of championship class, but he has been just next to it. None but a first-class wrestler could have turned him over in jig time, as did Stecher.

Here's the Right Idea.

HARRY POLLOK, who looks after Freddie Welsh's matches, has found the right system. Pollock, in a circular letter, asks the verdict of various sporting authorities of the country who, in their opinion, has the first and best right to meet Welsh for the lightweight championship.

Pollok writes that he expects to arrange four championship bouts this winter for Welsh, and desires to be absolved of picking out an easy mark as a starter.

That, on its face, is about as fair a proposition as one would expect.

Pollok does not mention the weight, but presumably this will be 135 pounds ringside. If so, the national choice for Welsh's opponent will undoubtedly be Charley White.

This move of Pollok effectually upsets the theory that Welsh was afraid of White in a 20-round fight. The champion, although 30 years of age, still is confident he can outpoint any opponent over the 20-round limit.

Thus far the evidence shows nothing to the contrary, Freddie. But Old Father Time, it must be remembered, has been working while you slept, since last you risked that title.

Federals Must Buy Their Way Into Major League Teams, to Insure Peace

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH LANNIN, owner of the Boston Red Sox, world champions, says the only way the baseball war can be settled is for Federal League men to buy into major league teams.

Recognition of the third league, or increasing the circuits to 12 clubs, is out of the question, thinks Lannin.

"Personally, I do not see how the Feds can live, unless somebody puts up a world of money and guarantees salaries for next year," said Mr. Lannin. "There are some very good men interested in the Federal League clubs, and if they want to buy their way into Organized Baseball they ought to get the chance.

"But that is the ONLY way the baseball war can be settled. It is impossible to recognize a third major league or to increase the National and American League circuits each to 10 clubs."

Coals-of-Fire Fails to Burn Texas "Aggies"

Haskell Is Beaten, 21—7, in Stubbornly Fought Game at Dallas.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—The Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College football team won a hard-fought but decisive victory over the Haskell Indians here today by the score of 21 to 7. The victory was directly due to the skill and speed of the Aggies in handling the forward pass, which netted them 157 against the 65 yards which Haskell advanced by the same method of attack. Haskell, however, proved far more powerful at the line plunging game, gaining 164½ yards to the 97½ yards for the Texans. Rollins, Collins and Stover were the stars. The lineup:

Aggies.	Positions.	Haskell.
Settegast	Left tackle	Coals of Fire
Wilson	Left guard	Timothy
Rogers	Center	King
Braumiller	Right guard	Choate
Crowe	Right tackle	Decora
Kendric	Right end	Frazier
Burns	Quarterback	Fontenelle
Rollins	Left halfback	Stover
Collins	Right halfback	Clements (c)
Coleman	Fullback	Black

Score by periods:

Texas A. and M.	14	7	0	0	—21
Haskell Indians	0	7	0	0	—7

Referee, Utay (A. and M.); umpire, Cianti (Carlisle); head linesman, Crowley (Notre Dame); field judge, Dyer (University of Texas); time of periods, 15m. Touchdowns—For Texas: Rollins, Coleman, Settegast; for Haskell, Campbell. Goals from touchdown—For Texas A. and M., Kendrick 3; for Haskell, Stover.

Substitutions—Texas A. and M., White for Rollins, Manier for Collins, McMurday for Coleman, Rhylander for Wilson. Haskell Indians—Campbell for Coals of Fire, Tanner for Evans, Nelson for Frazier, McClosky for Clements, Dunbar for Fontenelle.

EAST ST. LOUIS WILL HAVE TROLLEY LEAGUE

C. B. Nutter and C. A. Trumbull of East St. Louis are busily engaged in the preliminary plans for the largest Trolley League the East Side has ever known, one which will not only include a dozen or more Illinois communities, but will have as adjuncts several strong St. Louis teams. Each team entering the league will put up [illegible] entrance fee and [illegible] forfeit. The leaders at the end of the season will play for a purse of from [illegible] to [illegible].

Cities now under consideration for parts under the new plan are: Edwardsville, Collinsville, East St. Louis, Belleville, West Belleville, Caseyville, O'Fallon, Alton, Granite City, Wood River, Madison and Venice.

OLD ARMY GAME RESPONSIBLE FOR TIGERS' DOWNFALL

Penalties and Fumbles Also Contribute to 0—0 Score Against Kansas Aggies.

MISSOURI LACKS PUNCH

Eleven Is on the Offensive Most of the Game, but Lacks Needed Drive.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 30.—Missouri's insistence on the straight football style of play, coupled with a lack of driving power, caused this afternoon's game with the Kansas Aggies to result in a 0—0 finish.

The Tigers weer on the offensive most of the time, but whenever they would get near their opponents' goal a fumble, severe penalties or an intercepted pass would result in a setback. The Missouri eleven this year has scored but 12 points.

In the last few minutes of play Coach Schulte sent in a number of substitutes with orders to "open up," but the attempt was of no avail and the game ended with the ball in the middle of the field.

The Tigers were on the offensive a rush of successful line bucks and took the ball to the Aggies' 30-yard line. Pittam then carried the pigskin around left end for 15 yards, but fumbled and Sullivan of the Aggies recovered. Hartwig punted and Pittam of Missouri made 20 yards to the Aggy 30-yard line. Twenty yards of penalties followed for the Tigers and an intercepted pass, Klein to Speelman, gave the Aggies the ball in midfield.

In the second quarter the Tigers again hit the Aggy line hard and had the ball near the enemies' goal, but another penalty and an intercepted pass checked them. Three passes were attempted by the Tigers in this half and two were intercepted, while the Aggies attempted two and completed one for no gain.

Penalties and Fumbles Hurt.

The same general style of play marked the second half. While the Tigers again had the best of the argument, costly fumbles and penalties did not permit them to get within striking distance of a touchdown. In the last frame Hamilton tried for a field goal, but missed.

The Missouri players who gained the most ground were Pittam, Collins and Reppy, though none stood out for exceptional runs. Klein for Missouri did some excellent punting, but fumbled twice on receiving punts and caused his team to lose the ball.

For the Aggies, Bayard at tackle showed up well, taking the ball for gains several times on tackle round plays. McGilliard and Hartwig were the principal ground gainers, while Sullivan showed well on running back punts. The line-up follows:

Missouri (0)	Position.	Aggies (0)
Groves	Left tackle	Placek
Muir	Left guard	Baird
Hamilton	Center	Wright
Vandyne	Right guard	Moore
MacAnaw	Right tackle	Bayer
Clay, Hecker	Right end	Skinner, Slattery
Klein, Stankowski, Rutledge, Collins	Quarterback	Sullivan, Alexander
Collins, Pittam, Sheppard	Left halback	McGilliard
White, Collins, Rider	Fullback	Hartwig
Pittam, Reppy, McMillan, Hocker	Right half	Barnes

Officials—Quigley (St. Marie's), referee; Graham (Michigan), umpire; Cochrane (Kansas City Journal), head linesman.

Field Goal by Ward Wins 16 to 13 Victory for Villa Nova Over Cadets

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Army was beaten by Villa Nova today, 16 to 13, in a hard-fought and cleanly contested game. The visitors outplayed the cadets at every angle, except at punting, where Murrill had a shade the better of it.

Villa Nova flashed a well-designed and beautifully executed series of forward passes. Lateral and forward passes interspersed with delayed and triple passes in the running game were too much for the cadets.

Ward's spectacular running back of punts and wonderful hurling of the ball were features. The visiting quarter once ran 90 yards from the kickoff through the entire Army eleven and placed the ball on the five-yard mark. A short pass over the line of scrimmage scored the touchdown. Ward also kicked a goal from the field while standing on the Army's 30-yard line just before the whistle blew.

Lineup and summary:

W. Point (13).	Positions.	Villa Nova (16).
O'Hare	Left guard	Mahan
McEwan	Center	Lynch
Meacham	Right guard	Henry
Weyand (C.)	Right tackle	T. Reap
Britton	Right end	Breithaupt
Murrill	Quarterback	Ward
Walker	Left halfback	McGuickin
Hoge	Right halfback	Furst
Ford	Fullback	Thornton

Score by periods:

West Point [illegible]—13
Villa Nova [illegible]—16

Referee—A. E. Whiting. Umpire—F. W. Luehring. Head linesman—H. F. Plummer. Time of periods—Two of 12m. each and two of 10m. each. West Point scoring—Touchdowns, Ford 2; goal from touchdown, McEwan. Villa Nova scoring—Touchdowns, J. Reap 2; goals from touchdown, McGuickin; goal from field, Ward.

OREGON'S "ARMY GAME" BEATS MICHIGAN AGGIES

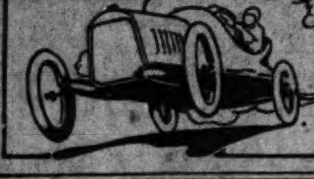
EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 30.—Smashing the local line by a surprise attack, the football eleven representing Oregon Agricultural College defeated the Michigan Aggies here today, 20 to 0. The team from the Far West had been represented as a brilliant exponent of open football. Instead Coach Stewart's men used an old-fashioned battering ram attack which resulted in three successful marches for touchdowns. The local college was a 2 to 1 favorite before the game.

G. S. WARD TO BE NAMED PRESIDENT OF BROOKFEDS

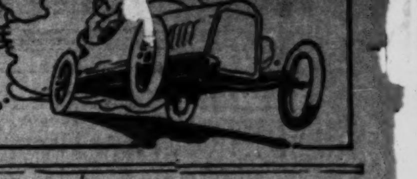
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Announcement was made at the headquarters of the Federal League today that George S. Ward is to be elected president of the Brooklyn club to succeed his brother, the late Robert B. Ward, at the next meeting of the stockholders. Mr. Ward was closely associated with his brother in the affairs of the Brooklyn club and is said to have similar views regarding its policy. The annual meeting of the Federal League will be held on Nov. 8 in Indianapolis.

Principia Wallops Kirkwood.

The Principia Academy football eleven scored a clean cut 39 to 0 victory over the Kirkwood High School team on the former's campus, yesterday morning. The Science eleven tallied a touchdown in each of the first three periods and added two more in the final quarter.



AUTOMOBILE NEWS



AUTO TRADE FORMS CREDIT RATING BUREAU

At a meeting held in Parlor "B" of the Planters Hotel Friday the St. Louis Automobile Credit Bureau was organized for the purpose of supplying the automobile trade with the credit rating of purchasers. More than 30 dealers in the various departments of the industry, as tires, oils, gasoline, etc., have become members of the bureau and plans are in progress to secure other members.

The general plan of the bureau will be to have a card system on which the records of all buyers will be kept, and the report of their credit as that is reported to the bureau by the several dealers. However, no one asking for the credit rating of any buyer will learn who gave the information as to his credit outside of the general nature of the business of the informant.

Plans are now under way so that the Bureau will work in connection with the St. Louis Credit Bureau, in order that the Automobile Credit Bureau may ascertain the credit of the new automobile owner.

SPEEDWAY AT ST. JOSEPH

St. Joseph is to have a $2,000,000 two-mile automobile speedway of concrete. Jack Prince, promoter, has received the assurance of business men and commercial organizations that the project will be backed satisfactorily. Land for a speedway at Lake Contrary has been donated by holders of concessions at that place. Preliminary work will begin at once. The first races will be early next spring.

St. Joseph will be on the circuit with Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Des Moines and Sioux City.

DORRIS SIX BREAKS INDIANAPOLIS RECORD

The record for fast automobile driving from St. Louis to Indianapolis was broken Thursday by George P. Dorris, vice president of the Dorris Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, using a Dorris six-cylinder touring car. The party consisting of Mr. Dorris, H. B. Krenning, president of the Dorris Co.; George L. Jack and V. C. Klopper, left the Dorris factory at 7:25 a. m. Thursday and the car arrived at Indianapolis eight hours and 20 minutes later, breaking all previous records, it is stated. The distance is 254 miles. The fastest previous time for this drive is said to be about 10½ hours. The entire trip was made without a single mechanical adjustment or tire trouble of any kind.

$20,000,000 IN TRUCKS

In the ten years they have been on the market, Packard motor trucks to the number of nearly 8000 with a value of nearly $20,000,000 have been sold for purely commercial purposes. These surprising totals, published by the Packard Motor Car Co., indicate the tremendous growth of the commercial car industry and show the tendency of the most progressive business men to adopt power-driven vehicles for the transportation of merchandise. The figures do not include the trucks which have been sold for export.

"A few years ago a business which showed a volume of $2,000,000 annually was regarded as a stupendous undertaking, but there are only a comparatively few people now who realize just what the motor truck means to the business world," says C. R. Norton, truck sales manager of the Packard company.

MAKER KEEPS TOUCH OF PUBLIC'S PULSE

J. A. Schlect of the Mound City Buggy Co., Allen dealer, gave the Post-Dispatch representative some interesting pointers as to how the manufacturer caters to public opinions in design. "It is surprising," he said, "how people insist on certain features in the design in a car and how quickly they can pick them out. The principle things they seem to look for are wider seats and more leg room than the average $700 or $800 car can give them. The Allen has 112-inch wheel base instead of the usual 106 inches, so we don't have to worry about the car being cramp '. But it is remarkable how quickly they see these things. Another thing the public can see quickly is a good or bad body. No half-way boat line effect goes nowadays."

About motors Mr. Schlect said: "Four-cylinder motors are still the most in demand, and will always be a good feature on a car because of their simplicity.

"The best thing of all is the way the ladies are getting motor wise. They know as much about motors and can ask questions that would give our designer, Mr. Sommer himself, gray hair. But we like it and the ladies are always welcome."

BRITISH TEST OVERLAND

In a test recently conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of London, England, a model 83 Overland touring car covered a distance of 75.5 miles, over a rolling country, on three and three-quarters gallons of gasoline.

The test was held under the observance of the Royal Automobile Club, an organization officially representing all motor interests in the United Kingdom.

It is to this organization that the various manufacturers appeal when any question is raised as to the merits or capabilities of their product. Any decision handed down by this governing body is accepted as final by all parties concerned.

The Overland used for the test was selected from a stock of 44 new cars that had just been received by the London distributer. The officials in charge were present when the car was unboxed and noted the time consumed in making carburetor and other necessary adjustments. This amounted to three minutes and 39 seconds.

STUDEBAKER DEALERS MEET FACTORY MEN

The highest officials of the Studebaker Corporation were in St. Louis Saturday for a business conference with Studebaker dealers under the jurisdiction of the St. Louis branch. In the party were James G. Haslet, vice president in charge of production; L. J. Ollier, vice president and director of sales; C. C. Hanch, treasurer; R. T. Hodgkins, sales manager; H. A. Biggs of Frank Seaman, incorporated, advertising counsel; H. T. Myers, manager of the commercial car department of Studebaker; J. E. Grady, sales manager for Canada; Nelson S. Riley, manager Kansas City branch; J. A. Graham, manager Minneapolis branch; W. W. Williams, manager Dallas branch; Lafayette Markle, Chicago distributor; A. L. Davis, Cleveland, distributor; H. W. Blevins, Toledo, distributor; O. H. Gray, Minneapolis, distributor.

They were met here by 40 or 50 dealers from surrounding territory. The conference was held at the Studebaker St. Louis branch.

Vice President Ollier explained the purpose of the conference as being to compare notes on selling methods that had been found most efficacious. Also that the Studebaker dealers in this territory might have an opportunity of exchanging ideas with the large distributors who are accompanying Mr. Ollier on this trip.

Mr. Simons, the local Studebaker manager, explained to the visitors conditions in this territory and gave some valuable hints and suggestions to the Eastern distributors.

Vice President Haslet discussed Studebaker manufacturing methods, and how modernization had made possible producing a car of the Studebaker value at the price. Treasurer Hanch spoke on financing, Mr. Biggs on advertising, Mr. Myers spoke on Commercial Auto Cars and enlargement for their field of usefulness. Different distributors in the party told how their phenomenal sales achievements had been accomplished.

"Studebaker is enjoying an unusually prosperous year in its American automobile business," declared Mr. Ollier. "Originally it had been decided to build 60,000 cars for this season, but contracts have already been made for 75,000 cars. To supply the demand for Studebakers, which comes from all parts of the country, large additions are being made to the Detroit plants.

"A contract was entered into last week for a building 50x350 feet, to be used for 'tuning' cars, a premium being paid for securing the steel construction material in the shortest time possible. A three-story addition 62x170 feet to building No. 5A is already under way at Plant 3 in Detroit, and ground is to be broken next week for a large addition to building No. 25A. And this is only the beginning of extensive enlargements contemplated by Studebaker."

MICHELIN'S NEW NON-SKID

A sensation has been caused in the tire trade following an announcement by the Michelin Tire Co. that they have perfected an entirely new type of tire known as the "Michelin Universal Tread." This new casing has been developed so quietly that nothing has been known about it even in the trade, yet the company states that it is the result of experiments and tests covering a period of over three years.

In describing the new Michelin casing, the Illmo Motor Merchadise Co., the local dealers of the Michelin company, states that the Universal tread is really a combination of the Michelin racing type flat tread, having the same characteristic heavy added tread, and the Michelin plain tread, a full round tire of the so-called "over-size" type. The non-skid feature, Mr. Gowdy says, is a combination of the raised or studded tread non-skid, with the flat or suction tread type.

REO CAR ON LONG TOUR

Frank J. Adams, who is distributor of Reo cars at Fostoria, O., accompanied by his family called at the salesrooms of the Kardell Motor Car Co. early in the week en route home from a long tour which started at the Reo factory at Lansing, Mich. He drove a Reo 4 touring car starting in August and covered the entire West including California expositions. On his trip he changed two spark plugs and had several tire punctures, but no mechanical trouble of any kind. The car was equipped with compass, barometer for altitude, grade indicator, shotgun, revolver, tent and a general equipment for camping, including shovel and pick. After reaching home at Fostoria, Adams will drive his car again to the Reo factory so as to complete a round trip.

BOB PERRY WINS AGAIN

At Columbus, O., Bob Perry won his first heat in the five-mile open in 4m. 3s., and took the final in 4m. 1s., cleaned up three out of the four races in the day, and run second in the other. Perry's jinx has disappeared and he is now holding the tire on his machine better and winning in his old-time form. There is no better rider than Perry, if he can only get tires to stay on his Excelsior. In the race meet at Philadelphia Perry proved the hero of the day, taking the 5-mile, 10-mile, 15-mile and 25-mile race, and winning the time trial in 48 2-5s. At Columbus, O., Perry in the first heat of the five-mile open 4m. 3s., final heat in 4m. 1s.

TO SELL FORD OILER

The selling agency for St. Louis and territory for the Strong sight-feed oiler for Ford cars has been placed with the Missouri Auto Specialty co., 1008 Locust street; Illmo Motor Mdse. Co., 1176 N. King's Highway; Campbell Iron Co., Eighth and Cass; Beck & Corbitt Iron Co., 1230 N. Main street. The Strong oiler is manufactured by the Perkins Mfg. Co., of Des Moines, Ia., and can be installed in 20 minutes. It is said to save 50 per cent of the oil.

MAXWELL CO. FALLS HEIR TO ODD SITUATION

Combinations and changes in ownership of various plants have brought about many strange situations in the automobile industry, but none stranger, in all probability, than that of the Maxwell Motor Co., Inc., which finds itself, as the result of several long-term contracts, under obligation to furnish radiators, fenders and many other pressed metal parts, to a number of rival manufacturers.

Of course, the rivals all pay handsomely for the product. And, so long as capacity permits them to give the service, the Maxwell company is glad to do the work, though the business is one which they inherited rather than originated.

The strange condition prevails through the fact that, some time ago, the Maxwell organization absorbed into its manufacturing system the Briscoe Manufacturing Co. plant on Woodward avenue, Detroit.

The Briscoe plant had, for years, built all the Maxwell radiators. It had been a pioneer in automobile radiator construction from the earliest days of the industry. At one time no less than 78 manufacturers of cars were customers of the plant.

Since its connection with the Maxwell company, the famous old plant has been, to a great extent, reorganized and enlarged in scope. It now builds not only radiators but all pressed metal parts for the Maxwell car, the list including fenders, hoods, skirt shields, robe rails, tanks, pans, name plates, hub caps and a multitude of small parts. The work for other manufacturers done by this plant is necessarily limited and the clients supplied are exclusively manufacturers of high-priced cars. A veteran manufacturer in the high-price high-power field buys all his radiators, for both passenger cars and trucks from this source. Another heavy buyer of Maxwell-made parts is the world's largest manufacturer of six-cylinder cars.

Parts for these cars are produced side by side with the 300 sets of Maxwell parts, which form the daily bulk of the plant's output. The same material and the same workmen prevail.

DEMAND $5 DEMURRAGE

The American Railway Association, after gathering many statistics showing delays in unloading automobiles at various points proposes to establish an extra demurrage charge of $5 on automobile shipments to force the release of cars at destinations. It is claimed by the railway association that dealers in some parts of the country use automobile cars for weeks and months for storage at the regular demurrage charge of $1 per car per day.

These facts are made known in a communication to the Newell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis from the Haynes factory. There is very little of this kind of dealing, however, at St. Louis, because the history of the automobile business here is that dealers are nearly always awaiting eagerly for shipments to arrive in order to make deliveries.

VESPER GOES TO COAST

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. of St. Louis, departed with Mrs. Vesper Thursday night for San Francisco. There he will be joined by R. H. Collins, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co of Flint, Mich., and Mrs. Collins. They will make a tour of the expositions and will take a long drive through California in a Buick six. Mr. Vesper will return to St. Louis about Dec. 1.

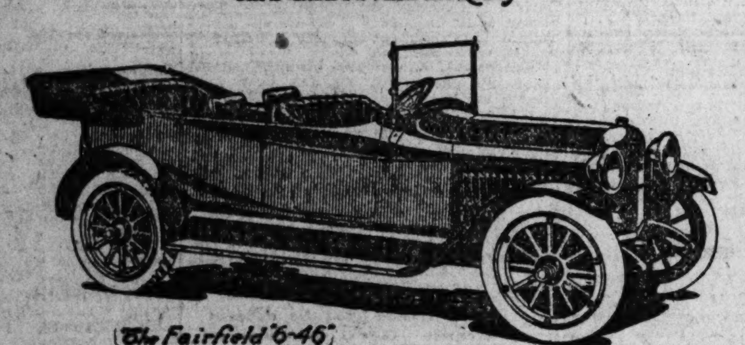
PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality



(The Fairfield "6-46")

Say the Word and We Will Deliver Your Paige At Once

NOW, comes your opportunity to buy either of the Paige six-cylinder models and name your own date for delivery.

Next week—tomorrow—this evening, if you wish—we can arrange to have one of these beautiful cars in front of your home.

There need be no delay—no period of "waiting." Just say the word and you can have your Paige delivered when you want it.

What The Paige Jubilee Means

These, you know, are Jubilee days.

Paige men, all over the country, are celebrating two great events—the first anniversary of the Paige "Six-46" and the completion of the mammoth new addition to the Paige factory.

All summer we have been eagerly waiting for this factory addition to be finished.

All last spring and all this summer, we have been obliged to refuse orders because there were not enough Paige cars to even partially supply the demand.

But now we have arrived.

The new buildings, the new machinery and a great army of men have given us a capacity of 150 Paige Sixes each day.

Now—for the first time in twelve long months—we are prepared to take your order and deliver the car on the same day.

So, come in and help out with the Jubilee celebration. Come and see the two great Paige cars which have been at a premium ever since they were first introduced to the American public.

There is no obligation to buy. This is our "Party", and we want you to accept the invitation in just that spirit.

The "Barefoot" Tire—
—and Why.

WHEN you take your Shoes off tonight, do this:
—Bear your weight on your right Foot and, without lifting it off the floor, press it forward and backward firmly.

Then observe that only the bony and muscular Structure of your Foot moves forward and backward, while its Sole stays fixed on the floor.

That demonstrates the rolling motion of flesh and muscle, the elastic Cushion quality which reduces friction in walking, and prevents slipping (backward, forward, or sideways).

It supplies that CLING quality, which gives Traction without Friction.

It protects the Bones and Sinews of the Foot against the Wear and Tear of action, as a lubricant protects Metal moving parts, while providing the wonderful "Barefoot" hold on slippery surfaces.

CONSIDER now the means by which Tires have been given maximum Traction,—i. e., by means of a "sandpapery" texture in the Rubber of their Anti-Skid Treads.

Assuredly such Tires do give Traction.

But, every time the Brakes are put on, to make such Tires grip the road, the relatively hard, unyielding, and comparatively brittle, texture of the Rubber in their Treads causes these Treads to grind away on the pavement, to WEAR OUT fast at the point of contact.

The sudden efficiency of their grinding-Traction also tugs so sharply on the Rubber Adhesive between the layers of Fabric in Tire as to separate these layers.

There is little "give" to them—just as there is little "slide" to them.

So, they gain Traction at the expense of Mileage.

Naturally such Tires require a great BULK of such Rubber in order to deliver reasonable Mileage before worn out.

And, therein they differ radically from GOODRICH "Barefoot" Tires.

Because,—

—The Safety-Tread on Goodrich Tires is made of a very unusual, secret, and exclusive Compound, which we will here call "Hyper-Rubber."

It is much lighter, in weight, than the Rubber used in other makes of Tires, being free from the "sandpapery" ingredients that are heaviest and inert.

Observe, that every pound saved on the weight of Tires (or any part of a Car below the Springs) is equal to a saving of 30 pounds when supported above the Springs (ask your Engineer).

Its lightness, however, is secondary to its STRETCH, its enormous STRENGTH and Longevity.

AND here is how it acts in Automobiling,—
—When the weight of the Car bears on this clinging "Hyper-Rubber" Tread, and the power is applied to go ahead or reverse, the stretch in the Sole (or Tread) of the Goodrich Tire acts as a sort of Lubricant between the Fabric Structure of the Tire and the Road.

Then the Hyper-Rubber "Toes", of the Goodrich Safety-Tread Tire, CLING to the pavement (instead of grinding against it), just as your Bare Foot would cling to a slippery surface—without Grind, and so, with the minimum of Frictional Heat or Wear for maximum Traction.

Goodrich "Hyper-Rubber" is made into Goodrich Motor Cycle, and Bicycle, Tires, as well as into Goodrich Rubber Boots, Over-Shoes, Soles and Heels.

Wiederholt, 1627 South Grand avenue.

RONINGER TOURS 5300 MILES THROUGH EAST

W. H. Roninger returned to St. Louis last week, after an extended tour through the East in a model C-55 Buick. Accompanied by Mrs. Roninger, he left St. Louis on June 1 and has covered practically an entire tour through the North and East, having visited most all of the points of interest en route.

With no ultimate destination, the tour was planned with a view of making a trip covering the best roads and as a consequence the trip was a splendid one in every particular.

After leaving St. Louis, the trip went via Terre Haute, thence to Cleveland, Buffalo, thence to Lake George and thence through New England to Bretenwoods and Portland, Me. From this point the trip was made south along the Ocean Highway through Boston and Providence into New York. After spending several weeks in Newark, N. J., the tour was made through Pennsylvania via Harrisburg, Gettysburg and Pittsburg, thence back to Cleveland and return.

"The speedometer registered a little over 5300 miles," said Mr. Roninger, "and during the entire trip we had no difficulty whatever excepting that we did encounter a considerable amount of rain. Only two punctures were experienced in the entire trip."

"One thing that impressed me more than anything else was the wonderful road building interest that is evidenced in all of the Eastern states. There seems to be a general recognized plan that is being closely followed, and the roads are being built with a view of permanency. I learned also that they have a maintenance plan with ample funds for carrying it out, which insures a continuance of the splendid highways and roads that we encountered."

Mr. Roninger was, until recently, factory and works manager of the Banner Buggy Co., having been associated with this concern for many years.

MITCHELL'S SEDAN TOP

The cost of all-year driving has been so materially reduced by the introduction of the new Mitchell demountable Sedan top that motor car owners are coming to a realization that the automobile is no longer a "fair weather friend."

The demountable Sedan top means an all-the-year car for any and all kinds of weather at the expense of only one car and one body, and the fact that for a very slight additional investment "The Six of '16" can be converted into a luxurious enclosed car, suitable for winter use will mean a material increase in the winter use of cars.

The price of $165 for the detachable winter Sedan top can be better appreciated when it is remembered that an outlay of from $400 to $700 was formerly required to obtain a car of the enclosed type.

The owner who heretofore has garaged or put up his car during the winter months will now have the use of his car throughout the year, and at a nominal outlay both himself and passengers can enjoy all the comforts and luxuries of the more expensive coupes, limousines and berlins.

DEFLECTS LAMP ANGLE

The stringently enforced automobile light ordinance in St. Louis has brought out a number of devices intended to help meet the requirements of the ordinance. The Bart S. Adams Tire Co. is showing the Universal deflector, an attachment that permits the driver from the dash to automatically adjust the headlights to any desired angle. The cost is nominal.

NEW GRANT SIX IN SEVERE TEST

A very unusual test of the new Grant Six is now being conducted by the Grant Motor Co. The Grant was at the St. Louis Auto Show, shown by the Southwestern Motor Car Co. of Kansas City.

A steel portable 50 per cent grade has been erected on a vacant lot immediately back of the Chicago salesrooms. The car starts on a runway 24 feet from the botton of the incline and after striking the incline climbs 36 feet on an 18-foot standard, which is an actual 50 per cent grade.

This hill is so steep that when the breaks are applied so as to lock the wheels the car will slide downhill. It is a well-known fact among engineers that friction between rubber and wood, which is the greatest friction known, ceases at a 33 degree angle.

When the car goes up the spectators literally hold their breath. The sharpness of the grade is attested by the fact that it is almost impossible for a person to walk up halfway and turn around and immediately retrace his steps.

ALL SEASON CHANDLER

That development in motor car building is popular is shown by the great interest aroused locally by the new winter top which the Chandler company is supplying. This new top, which is built specially to fit snugly and securely on the seven-passenger touring body of the Chandler Light-Weight Six, gives the Chandler owner a winter car having much of the style and handsome appearance of a costly closed car, and really all the comfort and protection of one. When the pleasant days of spring come the owner can quickly remove this top and put the regular folding top on his car. The new top is being shown by the Lewis Automobile Co., 4701 Washington avenue.

ROAD CIRCLES HAWAII

The Moon Motor Car Co. has just received a letter from its South American representative, E. H. Serrano, who makes his headquarters at Havana, Cuba, stating that magnificent scenic automobile road of 240 miles around the entire island of Hawaii has been completed.

The entire circuit can be made in two days, and it is popular with tourists, and is greatly increasing the demand for automobiles in that part of the country. There are two active as well as two extinct volcanoes in this circuit.

EXPECT PRICE ADVANCE

"While the trend of the automobile as well as every other manufacturing industry has been to periodically reduce the prices," states H. G. Weaver, sales manager Newell Motor Car Co., distributors for the Haynes Light Six, "and while the methods of production are becoming more and more economical all the time, with rapid increase in the cost of aluminum and steel, it is necessary that the motor car manufacturer do one of three things: Use inferior materials, increase the price of the car, or work on a smaller margin of profit.

"There has never been a sensational reduction in the price of the Haynes Light Six. The same materials are being used now that have always characterized the product. Aluminum and steel are used instead of cast iron wherever possible, with a result that the car is unusually substantial despite the fact that it is light in weight. We anticipate an increase in price next spring."

Convertible Sedan FOUR

$1035

The Most Amazing Value in Closed Cars Ever Offered at Any Price!

Never before in the history of the industry has any maker of cars offered so attractive, so POWERFUL or richly finished a town car at so LOW a price as $1035.

Stylish, handsome, richly finished and fitted, and exceedingly graceful in line, it represents the supreme achievement of the coach-builder's art. It has all the elegance and the luxuries and the many refinements that one desires in a Town Car—upholstery of fine grey cloth—handsomely nickeled door-openers—crystal plate glass sides and door-tops that give unobstructed vision—glass in the tonneau doors divided for ventilation—wind-proof and weather-proof construction.

It has the convenience of being readily converted into an open car. Yet the price is only $1035—less than you pay for a mere touring car that equals it in power, size and quality.

And when you remember that this car has not only plenty of room for SEVEN passengers, the famous Studebaker FORTY Horse Power motor, with all its marvelous flood of POWER and its flexibility and hill-climbing superiorities that made the Studebaker FOUR the GREAT 4-cylinder value of the year, you can appreciate what a remarkable value this new Studebaker Sedan FOUR offers.

We urge that you see this new Studebaker model at once. For shopping, calling, theatre going, taking the little folks to school or Father to the office, or for any social use, it is IDEAL. And at its price, it is truly a remarkable value! Come in today.

CITY CLUB SEES WRAITHS OF LOST WATER CASH BOOKS

Free Bridge and Efficiency Board Also Subjects for Fun at Halloween Luncheon.

The annual Halloween luncheon of the City Club was given yesterday in the club's dining room, at which the "ghosts" of many things intimately connected with the welfare of St. Louis made their appearance. More than 200 members, accompanied by their wives and women friends, attended.

When the dining room had been darkened, five members, dressed as death's heads and led by Gustavus Tuckerman, marched solemnly in to the music of Chopin's Funeral March and took places around an improvised altar. Tuckerman, announcing that he represented the keeper of the ghosts of the spirit kingdom, called forth some of the most noted of the departed.

Two pumpkin heads appeared, representing the ghosts of Roosevelt and Bryan, and then the spirit of the free bridge was called for. It was a small black miniature of the uncompleted structure and had no approaches.

The spirits of the missing cash books of the Water Department were then shown, "not so much," the speaker announced, "for what payments they showed had been made, but for the ones they did not show."

When the spirit of the Efficiency Board appeared Tuckerman rebuked it as having no place there, because the board was very much alive.

Major Refers to Republican Candidate for Governor as "McJitney."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 30.—Senator Stone, in a speech at the Democratic meeting in Springfield tonight gave his unqualified indorsement of the action of State Auditor John P. Gordon in using money from the Auditor's Office contingent fund for a trip to Salt Lake City to attend a convention of State Auditors.

The Senator thus indicated an abandonment of a plan which has been under consideration for several weeks for the Federal crowd to repudiatet the entire State administration.

It is now believed by politicians that Senators Stone and Reed have determined on an approval of the administration's course under the belief that Senator Reed will have no difficulty in defeating Gov. Major for nomination for Senator.

In this connection politicians are recalling a plan outlined in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday following Senator Stone's speech in Nevada, where informed politicians said there were indications of a plan for Major to withdraw from the senatorial race and Senators Stone and Reed in turn to indorse the State administration.

Gov. Major has not made a public announcement of his intentions.

Defends Gordon's Action.

Senator Stone justified Auditor Gordon's action on the ground that other State officials, Republicans and Democrats, had done the same thing, and that there had been opinions from the Attorney-General's office declaring it to be a legal and proper use of State money.

He did not cite any particular opinion or Attorney-General, and although a lawyer himself, did not give it as his legal opinion.

In opening his speech, Senator Stone said the Globe-Democrat had quoted Gov. Major as having said he did not desire the aid of any person in defending the State administration. He said he did not believe the Governor had made such a statement, and that the Governor had assured him that he did not make it.

"I do not intend to enter into a discussion of State politics or State affairs, and in a general way I shall not," said the Senator. "I will take that up in my own time and in my own way. When I do I shall state the absolute truth as I see it. I shall not speak on this subject until I am satisfied from a personal investigation into the records as to what the fact and the truth really are.

"The one thing I wish now to advert to relates to the official charge made by the Prosecuting Attorney of Cole County against the State Auditor, Mr. Gordon, wherein this prosecuting official substantially charges the State Auditor with the misuse, if not the embezzlement, of State funds in his control.

"I have known Mr. Gordon a long time. He and I have been friends for years, and without wishing to say a word for or against his political aspirations, this much I do say, that I always have esteemed him and believe him to be an honest man.

"The charge is that Auditor Gordon took out of his contingent fund a comparatively small sum of money to pay his expenses to the national convention of State Auditors at Salt Lake City and that Morris Gordon, Building and Loan Supervisor (a son of the Auditor), has likewise used a comparatively small sum out of his contingent fund to attend a meeting of these supervisors assembled from all the states at San Francisco.

Only Followed Custom.

"Now, the truth is that State officials have applied parts of their contingent funds to just such purposes for many years and this has been done alike by Republicans and Democratic State officials and with full knowledge of this all the legislatures of both parties have regularly appropriated for these contingent funds."

The Senator then said former Gov. Hadley, former Factory Inspector Williams, former Insurance Actuary Reeves, former Insurance Superintendent Kennish, former Adjutant-General Rumbold, former Labor Commissioner Biggs, Former Building and Loan Supervisor Gresham, all Republicans, and others, had done the same thing as Gordon.

"Why did he pass them by?" demanded the Senator, "without demanding that they, too, should return the moneys they had so used? Or else be prosecuted by this new Daniel come to judgment?

"This act of his in filing this charge against Mr. Gordon is so manifestly a mere political trick, a mere partisan outburst of an immature and inexperienced youth, that it is impossible to look upon it except with stern disapprobation."

Gov. Major departed this afternoon from his set speech, which he has made at all other recent political meetings in the State, to make a personal attack on E. E. E. McJimsey, who has the support of the Republican State organization for the Republican nomination for Governor.

This is McJimsey's home. He was in the audience while the Governor was speaking. The Governor referred to him as "Triple E McJitney." Though he referred to McJimsey at least a dozen times in his speech he always called him "McJitney."

"We have given the State an excellent, economical administration," said the Governor, "but we couldn't satisfy the Globe-Democrat or McJitney. If McJitney should get to be Governor he would fill all the jobs I have left vacant to save money. He would name a clerk in the Governor's office at $1800 a year and a file clerk at $900 a year.

"I'd hate to see a McJitney service in the State of Missouri.

"They are talking about this fellow McJitney for Governor. If they nominate him, I'll meet him on every platform in the State and defend my administration."

Aside from his remarks about McJimsey, the Governor delivered the same speech in defense of the administration which he delivered in St. Joseph, Cape Girardeau, Nevada, Marshall and Hannibal.

He attacked the Globe-Democrat and other "equally unfair newspapers" and defended the transfer of $514,000 from the school fund and its use for other State purposes.

"These newspapers do not state the truth," he said. "Truth is not worth 3 cents to them. The truth isn't news. It's sensational headlines they want."

The Governor said that in the first two years of his administration $470,000 of debts left unpaid by the Hadley administration were paid and that this year $150,000 of debts left by other administrations have been paid.

Senator Reed spoke for nearly two hours on national issues, defending the foreign policy of President Wilson and praising the administration for passing the currency bill and revising the tariff. He delivered a strong speech in support of a plan for preparedness.

He admitted that he had not determined just what should be done, but that he believed the problem could be solved without the building up of a vast standing army.

The Senator, who has made many speeches during the past few weeks, said:

"This throat of mine usually produces notes as clear as those of the flute wafted over moonlit waters, but I have lost it in the service of the Lord and the Democratic party.

"You have been splendidly entertained and instructed by the Governor. You have been reading the newspapers. I do not intend to engage in any argument with the newspapers, but you have been reading in them of the desperate battle between the State House crowd and the Federal gang. You don't see any animosity and bitterness here today. So far as I have been able to see, the whole of the Democratic party is faced toward the enemy and is moving forward and keeping step to the music of certain victory. We purpose to sweep the State and the nation and to return to power under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson."

Praise for Wilson.

In discussing the administration and actions of Congress, the Senator said:

"As much as I respect the President and the great men in Congress, we are all just human beings. There may have been mistakes made. I do not say there were not. We couldn't do everything.

"It took Hercules 20 years to clean the Augean stables. Woodrow Wilson couldn't clean the place the Republicans have occupied 50 years in 30 months. But he is doing a good job. The tines of the fork already have touched the floor."

He declared the leaders of the Progressive party were returning to the Republican party, but expressed the opinion that the rank and file of the Progressive party could only find a party which met their ideals in the Democratic party.

"It is written," he said, "that you shall not yoke the ox and the ass together. The harnessing of William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt together is contrary to Holy Scripture."

Many of his audience who had just heard Gov. Major's personal defense of his administration thought they detected a note of significance in a statement by the Senator:

"Now I shall talk very little about myself—my fortunes and my actions are of very little importance, but the fortunes of the Government are of infinite importance.

"I have been accused of holding up the currency bill. I have no criticism to make of the House of Representatives, but it is the business of each house to look over and try to improve the work of the other.

"While some of my friends were bitterly criticising me for holding up the currency bill I was trying to amend it so as to transfer the seat of power in the new currency system from Wall street to Washington—from the New York Stock Exchange to President Wilson, and I did it."

The Senator concluded his speech with an appeal to the patriotism of the country to uphold the President and an appeal for preparedness.

Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas spoke tonight on national issues, defending the foreign policy of the Wilson administration and all acts of the administration.

Silent on Religious Issue.

Secretary of State Cornelius Roach, who is one of the leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, tonight refused to discuss for publication the information which reached here today that a fight upon him has been planned by an anti-Catholic paper published in Aurora, Mo., on religious issues. The Secretary of State said that he had heard of the matter several weeks ago, but at this time he did not wish to discuss it.

BRITISH RECRUITERS FINED

Two Men in San Francisco Ordered to Pay $1000 Each.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Dr. Thomas Addis and Ralph K. Blair, both of San Francisco, convicted of violating the neutrality of the United States by conspiring to hire and retain men in this country for the British army, were fined $1000 each in the United States District Court today. No prison sentence was imposed.

"But for mitigating circumstances," Judge Dooling said, "the penalty would have been more severe, as a sort of example to other 'patriots' who live in this country, but whose patriotism does not extend so much to this country as to the country they left."

SHIPPING CARS TO RUSSIA

BERWICK, Pa., Oct. 30.—The fourth special train from Berwick to Seattle, carrying crated cars for Russia, left last night from the lower yards.

Three trains are now en route across the continent with about 1500 miles separating each. The cars are shipped to Vladivostok, Siberia.

OFFICIAL INDICTED FOR SHIPPING HOGS DEAD OF CHOLERA

Dr. O. F. Dyson, State Veterinarian, Sent Bodies in Sealed Cans to Rendering Plant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 30.—The Sangamon County Court Grand Jury this afternoon indicted Dr. O. F. Dyson, State Veterinarian, on a charge of unlawfully shipping carcasses of cholera hogs from the state biological laboratory here to Peoria.

The principal witnesses on whose testimony the indictment was returned were S. E. Peppers, owner of a rendering works at Peoria, and L. A. Lowery, secretary of the State Livestock Board.

The state law prohibits the hauling of carcasses of hogs which die of cholera along the highways. No exception is made, and a heavy penalty is imposed for violation of the law.

Hauled in Sealed Cans.

For some time, however, hogs used for making hog cholera serum and therefore infected with the disease, have been sold to the Peoria rendering works. They are placed in hermetically sealed cans, hauled to the Illinois traction station here and shipped over that line to Peoria.

It is alleged by employes of the Livestock Board that there is absolutely no danger of the spread of infection by this method, and the hogs bring a cent a pound. In September, 137 hogs were sold to Peppers for a total of $94.40, which was turned into the State Treasury. Dr. Dyson was in Chicago when the indictment was returned.

Could Not Be Sold.

D. J. Shanley, chairman of the State Board of Livestock Commissioners, at Chicago, said:

"The law requires that the carcasses be destroyed, but the laboratory has no facilities for that purpose, and Dr. Dyson arranged with the rendering works at Peoria to do it. Full precautions are taken. In the first place, the carcasses are saturated with oil so they could not be sold—and are then shipped in sealed, airtight receptacles to the rendering plant."

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

SPECULATIVE TIDE RUNS STRONG FOR THE BULLS IN THE NEW YORK MARKET

Week's Trading Shows Wide Gains on the Favorite Shares.

BUSINESS VERY ACTIVE

Peace Talk Causes a Break, but New High Records Follow.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review today, says:

"A comprehensive view of the week's stock market, with its very unusual variations, will probably leave the speculative community still in doubt as to whether American finance and industry have more of their own advantages at stake in early peace or continued war.

"On the one hand, it will be pointed out that prices broke on the Stock Exchange while rumors of peace negotiations prevailed, and resumed their upward movement when the English and French authorities repudiated the reports. On the other hand, it will be argued that the standard investment shares displayed their greatest strength when the war industries were weakest.

"It may further be reasonably suggested, by way of an entirely different theory, that the weakness of the general market was most decided while the Balkan situation and the state of affairs at the allied capitals seemed to be of the darkest, and that returning strength was witnessed only when it appeared that London and Paris had not lost their courage or resolution.

Peace Not in Sight.

[illegible]ith so many powerful cross-cur[illegible] moving in the economic situa[illegible] under the present abnormal in[illegible]ces, one theory has about as [illegible] claim to acceptance as another. [illegible] the Stock Exchange, like the rest [illegible]he community, may as well dis[illegible] for the present time the talk of [illegible]nediate peace. Such significance [illegible] this week's rumors did possess [illegible] from the fact that the round[illegible]ut hints and overtures for peace [illegible] wholly from the German side. [illegible] even rumor has ventured to [illegible]ten on France, or England, or [illegible]ssia, the hint that war has lasted [illegible] enough for the purposes of the [illegible]lgerents. No newspapers of Lon[illegible] Paris or Petrograd are repeating [illegible] the indefinite peace suggestions [illegible]ch the subservient German press [illegible]nterspersing with its defense of [illegible] shooting of women for sheltering [illegible]ping prisoners.

[illegible]xactly what this means regard[illegible] Germany herself—if it means [illegible]thing at all—may be a matter of [illegible]bt. But since it requires at least [illegible] parties to conclude such a nego[illegible]tion, it may be assumed that the [illegible]ied governments do not imagine [illegible]at it is time to end the war.

Fundamentals Are Sound.

"No doubt, the very extraordinary po[illegible]ion of our own material affairs makes [illegible] forecast, even of the course of [illegible]nts in the period of war, a puzzle [illegible] the financial imagination. There will [illegible] be many voices, even in ultra-con[illegible]vative financial circles, to listen ap[illegible]hensively to the assurance of that [illegible]erful political campaigner who as[illegible]ures us that 'the American people are [illegible]ding hell-bent for bankruptcy' because the boasted 'prosperity has not come.' Bankruptcy is a somewhat amusing term as applied to a situation, in which the whole of the outside world stands hat in hand to solicit loans from our overflowing bank reserves.

"The signs of the hour point in a very different direction, but it will still be wise to keep in mind the dangers of over-exploiting in the speculative markets, such prosperity as the country does enjoy. That process has made serious trouble, even in years of normal conditions in the outside world; its hazards are necessarily doubled when we are dealing with influences and sur[illegible]ling circumstances such as have [illegible] before arisen, in their present [illegible], in the history of the world. [illegible] the typical American vice, of [illegible]doing things' when under the [illegible] of hope and a highly stimulated [illegible]ination, can be kept from exerting [illegible] worst results on the present situa[illegible] a very bright future is ahead of [illegible]f not, it is a future full of pitfalls. [illegible]rices on the railroad stocks made [illegible]rial gains for the week. Yester[illegible] market was strong, with many [illegible] at new high records."

"[illegible]ACE TALK" IS A WASTE OF WORDS, LONDON THINKS

[illegible]ial Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The city's view [illegible] the week's vague "peace talk" is, [illegible]rst, that any proposals which fail [illegible] restore everything to Belgium, with full reparation, are a waste of words. Beyond this, it must be said that, with all the disquieting military and political developments of the week, financial London has neither lost its courage nor given itself up to alarm over the general outcome of the war.

The feeling is rather one of renewed determination to fight the issue out. This sentiment, which is general, should prove the factor of dominant importance in the immediate future.

There is, however, a growing belief that not only our military armament, but our financial resources and economic powers, need improved organization. Our bankers are already busy with the problem of New York exchange, but under the present per[illegible] control by government practical [illegible]ve slowly.

[illegible] Sterling Market.

[illegible] committees are now be[illegible]d, as a result of which [illegible] and higher exchange rates [illegible]obable—though your great [illegible]alance necessarily prevents a [illegible]e and lasting recovery for a [illegible]nsiderable period to come. Only [illegible]eater home economy, larger pro[illegible]ction and careful regulation of [illegible]rchases of your general merchan[illegible] can correct the position.

[illegible] break in sterling during the [illegible] part of the week was natural [illegible], and the subsequent recovery [illegible] based on knowledge of impend[illegible] special schemes, of which draw[illegible] bankers' bills on special New [illegible]rk credits is probably only part. [illegible]eneral belief is that improvement in [illegible] situation is impending. Scandin[illegible] exchanges are also advancing. [illegible]s considered that your banking [illegible]tions are second only in impor[illegible] to our own, though widely dif[illegible] in character.

[illegible]ur enormous prosperity is not [illegible] yet to have reached its [illegible], but unless your bankers continue [illegible] a mortgage on the future [illegible] large lending of your accumu[illegible] capital abroad, a crisis in Amer[illegible] ultimately be inevitable. There [illegible], however, that you are [illegible] to purchase here, attractive [illegible] of tax, which is a most im[illegible] development.

[illegible] broadly, the greatest finan[illegible] of the allies is the financing [illegible], while [illegible]many's strain arises from the stoppage of ocean trade and the scarcity of many important commodities.

Realizations of American securities and current war profits have increased the funds awaiting investment in our money markets. These surplus credits have been borrowed on short time by the Government, thus postponing any urgent necessity for a new loan. This also explains the strength of the general money market.

RAILWAYS FOURS SHARPLY HIGHER ON LOCAL MART

United Railways 4s featured the trade in the local market yesterday, sales recorded at $64.87½ and $65, compared with transfers at $74.25, at the preceding session. The bonds were offered at $65 as the session closed with bids $64.75. The stocks of the company showed no wide price changes on the quotations established.

The bank and trust list was steady on the stocks mentioned, but the demand in this department was not active. Wagner Electric was $5 per share higher on bids at $180 and offers at $200. National Candy common stock also was active and almost 1 point higher at $7.62½ and $7.50.

Other miscellaneous issues were firm. Bonds reflected a fair investment demand.

VIOLENT CHANGES FEATURE TRADE IN COTTON PIT

Ginning Report Sends Market Down, but a Sharp Rally Follows.

Fluctuations during the week in the price of cotton futures were erratic and disconcerting to the whole trade. The ginning report which was published the first thing Monday morning was a bullish affair, but, strangely enough, the market broke 40 points between the time of issuance and the close of the market. From the high point, 13c for December cotton, made on Oct. 5, the market had worked lower, with frequent sharp reactions to around 12.45c; just after the ginning report the December option advanced to 12.61c and from that point declined to 12.22c, closing at 12.24-25c.

This ginning report had only to say that 5,713,347 bales were ginned prior to Oct. 18. The total was small and bullish in that Oklahoma ginning was so small as to eliminate itself as a factor in the figures. According to average figures Oklahoma on its Oct. 18 ginning would produce but about 120,000 bales this year, which is ridiculous, and only goes to show how late the Oklahoma crop is and how susceptible to frost damage. But it is said that there is no top crop to be hurt by the frost.

A popular estimate of Oklahoma's crop would probably be about 750,000 to 800,000 bales; this is based on the Government's report on condition issued to Sept. 25 and subject to revision according to the weather since that report, and the weather has been on the whole excellent; in the past 10 days, particularly, warm weather and clear skies have been the rule nearly everywhere, and under ordinary conditions the crop must have improved and added to its yield.

While Oklahoma in this particular report stands out as a fine example of uncertainty, and is mentioned solely on that account, in a smaller way this same uncertainty in regard to ultimate yield is present in every estimate of the other states. Whether the ginning meant a quick gathering and early exhaustion, or a long-drawn-out scrapping of cotton as it slowly opened, is not certain, but the market did not take the report kindly.

Thursday December cotton broke under the 12c mark, selling as low as 11.70c in New York, closing at 11.79c. Over night there was a recovery and Friday morning the last of the opening call was 12.01c. From that point the whole market advanced with considerable steadiness some 10 or 12 points and December closed at 12.12c to 12.13c.

Yesterday there was a slight recession just after the opening, but the market steadied and closed 1 to 4 points under Friday's close. And the ginning report may have had nothing whatever to do with all of this flurry.

On the other hand, the pyramiding of speculative longs probably had all to do with the break, and the decline was started by the inability of the market to absorb a little profit taking. It was reported that the recovery from Thursday to Friday, overnight, was the result of heavy buying orders from Scales, who has been prominent in the market for some time.

A feature of the break was the withdrawal of cotton by spot people; for the most part, these people refused to meet the decline and cotton was reported very hard to buy. It is true that the decline halted all mill demand for the time being, but immediately on the recovery the East showed more disposition to come into the market; for the most part this was a cautious advance to feel for cheap cotton; of course there is always some cheap cotton after a break.

Spot Market Is Firm.

In general, spot men are scared of the short side of the market. None of them dreamed that cotton would be so firmly held. None of them dreamed that the farmer would follow out so consistently a policy adopted months in advance of the movement of cotton. The awakening has not yet extended to the mills—they still buy timidly.

The most bearish feature now is the export situation. Last week the export movement was less than for the corresponding week last year—135,000 bales, against 152,000 last year, and 440,000 the year before. The total exports to date are 1,270,390 bales, against 547,985 last year, and 2,551,477 the year before. This is 1,280,000 bales less than year before last, when exports totaled 3,055,000 bales.

Ocean rates continue very high and the exchange rate is low and fluctuating too much for comfortable calculation, and there does not seem to be much hope that there will be a correction of these freight rates.

The price of cotton in Liverpool does not justify the present price of spot cotton in this country. If prices here are to be maintained, until the Liverpool buyers come in, at any rate they must be maintained by the strength of the holder plus the demand from the domestic spinner. The weight of the present crop has not yet been felt. It is possible that it is already so well distributed that it will not be felt in this season.

The into sight movement is so much ahead of what the ginning would render likely that one must believe that not less than half of the old crop which was carried over has already come into sight. If this is so, the prices paid for cotton this fall have rendered the balance of that old crop immune from raids in the future markets; have placed its owners on an easy footing in this year of economy and diversified crops.

Export Market a Question.

What will be the outcome of the export tangle it is difficult to say, but the feeling among cotton dealers is that "they have got to have the cotton," and that they will arrange a way for themselves. In the meantime, there is a substantial widening in the difference between the Liverpool and American markets and this may foreshadow prices in their spot market that will absorb the tremendously heavy charges that hamper business.

On Oct. 1 the difference between January in New York and January-February in Liverpool was 125 American points; Friday last it was 173 points.

But all have come to realize that the market is a two-sided affair. Some, who in September were bulls without restraint, are now bearish and vice versa, and there is a fine scramble of opinion. For a time it would not be surprising to witness wide fluctuations and startling reversals of form. A bad feature of the market is the fact that so much attention is being paid to "large operators."

Wheat developed considerable irregularity in yesterday's market on the Merchants' Exchange and final prices were close to 1c lower for the day. Trade was bearishly influenced by reports from Rome that Rumania would permit the passage of Russian troops for the assistance of the Servians, and that Rumania would shortly enter the war on the side of the entente allies. Traders were at a loss to form a definite opinion as to the ultimate influence of these developments on prices, but in evening-up contracts over Sunday the market shaded off. Expectations of large receipts of wheat in domestic markets on Monday, favorable weather for threshing in the Southwest and Northwest, and less bullish reports from Broomhall on the foreign situation also helped the decline.

The price movement for the week favored the buyers, however, despite primary wheat arrivals of 17,000,000 bu, a record. Traders asserted that the market's advance of over 5c a bushel in the face of this movement indicated that the export situation must be much stronger than generally admitted, and after selling the market down sharply on Monday, many bears forsook the selling side.

The bull points in the wheat situation are: Unusually small supplies of wheat in the distributing centers of Europe, according to official advices issued by Broomhall, who claims that in parts of Russia famine prevails, despite assertions that the last Russian crop was a large one and that wheat stocks are more than abundant to supply the needs of the allied countries at war, were the Dardanelles open for shipments.

That France, Italy and the Continent will need as much or not more wheat than last year for their winter needs, despite the fact that demands were of record proportion at that time. This is indicated by the unusually heavy exports of Canadian and American wheat at present, which last week totaled over 11,000,000 bu, compared with 7,000,000 bu last year; and in the past three weeks over 17,000,000 bu of Canadian wheat has passed through the United States in bond to avoid the duty. That the demand for Candian wheat is enormous also was indicated during the week by a rise in October wheat in Winnipeg of nearly 8 cents a bushel, in the face of the largest run of wheat to that market on record.

Furthermore, unless all signs fail, the Government estimate on winter wheat was much too large. With the estimated crop close to the record yield of last year, receipts have averaged over 33 per cent lower than a year ago, and despite the recent fine weather for threshing and movement of the grain to market, the arrivals have been only about equal to those of last year, when the crop was moving most freely. This would seem to indicate that the wet weather at harvest did much more damage than was generally believed, or that if the crop was as large as indicated the farmer is holding his grain and is not inclined to market at the present price level, in the face of a world's war in Europe.

That present weather conditions are becoming a menace to the new winter wheat is asserted by many well-informed traders. The dry spell over the Central West and Southwest is now entering on its second week, and should it continue, speculative enthusiasts will begin to talk "drouth." The dry weather and high temperatures also are highly favorable for the development of Hessian fly, and even now reports from Illinois, Missouri and Kansas indicate the fly prevalent in large numbers. These insects lay their eggs in the fall when the weather is warm, as at present, and hatch out in the spring, when the damage to the crop is done. Such authorities as the Price Current and Modern Miller already have reported fly in the wheat over a large area.

Again it is pointed out that with the recent weather perfect for the movement of spring and winter wheat to market, that the movement so long delayed was rushed forward as quickly as possible, and that naturally any change to winter weather in Canada and the domestic northwest would be followed by a lessening in receipts. Much of the recent setback in prices resulted from excessive spring wheat receipts, and any falling off in the movement naturally would have a stimulating influence on values.

It is also well to remember that a year ago competitive buying for export shipment was announced daily as the sales were made, as the Armour Grain Co. and other large interests were not representing any of the nations at war, and there was no incentive to conceal export sales. Now some of the largest firms in Chicago, with J. P. Morgan & Co., are said to be handling the purchases for the allies, and these sales and exports are being kept quiet so that the wheat can be bought as cheaply as possible.

It is even asserted that a percentage of the recent allied loan is being used to hold wheat prices down in the Chicago market as long as possible, or until large lines of wheat can be accumulated for later shipment. In line with this was the report during the week that several foreign governments were buying the distant futures so as to assure supplies of wheat later in the year, when much of the surplus of the American crop has been worked off.

Cash wheat was slightly lower, with the demand fair.

Cash corn easy and dull.

Cash oats fractionally down on poor grades; ordinary grades dull; selections scarce.

MIXED PRICES ARE THE RULE IN CATTLE MARKET

RECEIPTS AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS.

	Last Week	Previous week	Year ago
Cattle	23,629	19,753	22,465
Hogs	30,882	46,260	56,378
Sheep	7,233	7,821	12,917
Horses, mules	8,409	6,900	2,438

Cattle receipts in the local market were fairly heavy last week. The supplies, however, did not carry many good cattle as mostly grass cattle were included. The market was irregular and broke sharply lower in spots. Strictly choice grades of steers were steady to strong, while all classes of medium to pretty good kinds, from $8.25 to $9.25, were around 15c to 25c lower. Commoner grades selling from $7 to $8.25 were anywhere from 25c to 35c off, but toward the latter portion of the week the steer market showed signs of getting a little better and there was a strong demand which enabled local sellers to get a good clearance of all odds and ends. The best load of steers last week was a string of Calaway County yearlings that topped the market for the week and also equaled the year's top when they went at $10.35. There were also a few droves of good beefs going from $9.50 to $10.30.

Stockers Are Steady.

Stockers and feeders opened the week on a slow, draggy basis, but at no stage did values look lower. Choice grades were strong while others were about steady the entire week. The closing sessions found a good stiff demand and the market took a good spurt. This enabled sellers to make a thorough clearance. A load of yearlings, more on the calf order, went to the stocked buyer at $8, while $6.35 to $7.50 was paid for several droves of heavier grade feeders.

Butcher cattle were strong the fore part of the week. Good choice heifers were in demand and sold strong while the common and medium grades dropped around a quarter. Weighty beef cows selling about the $5.50 mark sold 10c to 15c lower. The early market gave canners a royal reception, and an advance of 25c was made, but the latter part of the seven-day period prices slumped badly and the week's trade closed about even with the previous week. Bulls were in fairly good supply and sold around 15c to 25c lower. Vealers were in moderate supply, but the quality was lacking each session, and with a poor demand values were 75c lower than the high time of the previous week. The top was $10.50. There was a fairly good clearance of all grades for the week.

Southern cattle supply was only fair and the offering came mostly from Southeastern states, as the contribution of Southwesterns was meager. Texas and Oklahoma steers on the initial session of the week sold 10c to 15c lower, but the following day prices advanced a little and the close of the week found values around 10c to 15c higher. Texas steers sold up to $7.60, while Oklahomans sold from $6.50 to $6.60.

Southeastern cattle found a good lively market the fore part of the week, and advances of around 25c to 35c were registered on all grades of grown stuff, but yearlings only advanced 10c to 15c. The last few days of the week there was a cut made and prices for the week closed no better than steady, with the close of the previous week. Canners sold around $4, while yearlings went from $3.85 to $4. There was a fairly good clearance effected for the week.

Hog Receipts Are Moderate.

The hog market received but a moderate number of hogs. Prices were on the decline the fore part of the week and on the advance the latter part, so that the close found values on much the same basis as at the close of the previous week on all kinds. Late in the week pigs and lights were selling extra well, as the demand from shippers was good after the first half of the week.

The good quality hogs weighing 200 lbs. and over were best sellers all week, and brought top prices, while the pigs and lights were selling at the bottom of the market. Packers were slow dealers when the market had the appearance of advancing, but when prices were lower they took them freely and would have purchased a good many more had the offerings been sufficient to meet their demands.

Best hogs sold at $7.65@7.80, fair to medium grades went at $6.75@7.40, rough throwout packers sold at $6.50@6.90, as a rule, best lights under 165 lbs. sold at $7@7.60, fair grades $6.40@6.90, best pigs weighing less than 125 lbs., $6.50@7.00; fair to medium grades, $5.50@6.25 and the trashy offerings at $5@5.50.

There was but a limited number of sheep and lambs on the market last week, and while the good fat lambs found ready sale and prices advanced in the neighborhood of 25c, sheep suffered a loss of 50@75c from the previous week, but at that they were ready sale and buyers would have purchased several times the number offered, but they were stubborn about the price.

The best lambs offered went at $9.15. They were from Iowa and were strictly good quality. Other good lambs sold at $8.75@9.00, fair to medium grades went at $8@8.65, and the culls and poor grades in general at $6@7.75, according to quality. Buyers did not sort the lambs very closely as the number offered was not sufficient to permit them to do so.

Early in the week mutton sheep sold at $5.50@5.75, but later they went at $5.25@5.50. Some yearlings were received and sold at $7@7.25. Choppers went at $4@4.50, fair stockers, $4.75@5.50, good stockers, $5.75@6.25, canners, $2.50@3.75, and bucks, $4.50.

Receipts of horses and mules for the week were enormous and the market was fairly well attended by buyers.

BUILDING PLANS FOR DOWNTOWN ON LARGE SCALE

Ambitious Hotel Structure at Southwest Corner of Seventeenth and Olive Streets, Now Vacant, Admitted by Controlling Company to Be Forbidden.

FIVE STORIES TO SHUBERT THEATER

Busch Memorial Hotel Plans Likely to Be Carried to Completion—Several Eligible Sites Being Considered for Imposing Grand Opera House.

Plans were disclosed during the week which it is believed foreshadow a revival of building operations in downtown St. Louis on an extensive scale.

Although not official, it was stated on good authority yesterday, that plans will soon be announced for the erection of an imposing hotel structure at the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Olive streets. The site, which is vacant, is owned by the Fredonia Realty Co., of which George T. Burdeau is president, and which has erected many high-class business buildings in different parts of the city.

Improvements of various kinds have been under consideration for the site, which embraces nearly a quarter of a block, since the Fredonia acquired it nearly a year ago, with the hotel idea always in the ascendancy.

Burdeau admitted yesterday that a hotel of large proportions would in all probability occupy the site, but he declined to discuss the project further.

The site is on a ridge overlooking the business district, and is regarded as one of the most eligible locations east of Grand avenue for a large hotel, owing to its close relation to Union Station and to downtown St. Louis.

The Fredonia Co. recently acquired the southeast corner of Sixteenth and Chestunt streets. Plans are being drawn by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, for the erection on this lot of a modern building for automobile interests, to cost $100,000.

George T. Burdeau and George W. Davis, compose the Welfare Realty Co., which recently purchased the half block at the northwest corner of Twenty-third and Papin streets, owned by the Shuchmann Real Estate Co., client of the Mathews Real Estate Co. The transaction, which was regarded as a coup, was announced exclusively in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

Addition to Shubert Theater.

The week also discloses plans for the addition of five stories to the Shubert Theater building, at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Locust street, to cost $250,000. The building is owned by the Corner Realty Co., controlled by Festus J. [illegible], president of the Mercantile Trust Co., which will finance the operation.

The additional stories will be occupied by the Union Electric Light and Power Co., which now occupies the building, together with the Shubert Theater Co.

The building at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Locust streets was recently extended from seven to nine stories in order to provide quarters for the Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Co. The Martin-Breit Real Estate Co. engineered the deal, by which the carpet company obtained a 20-year lease of the premises, at an annual renial of $30,000.

While the enlargement of the Shubert Theater building was already under consideration, the project was not ratified until the Pulitzer Publishing Co., according to Wade, announced plans for the erection at the northeast corner of Twelfth and Olive streets, of a modern home for the Post-Dispatch.

With the Completion of improvements now in contemplation for Olive street, this thoroughfare, according to realty men, will at once display new life.

Busch Hotel Project Revived.

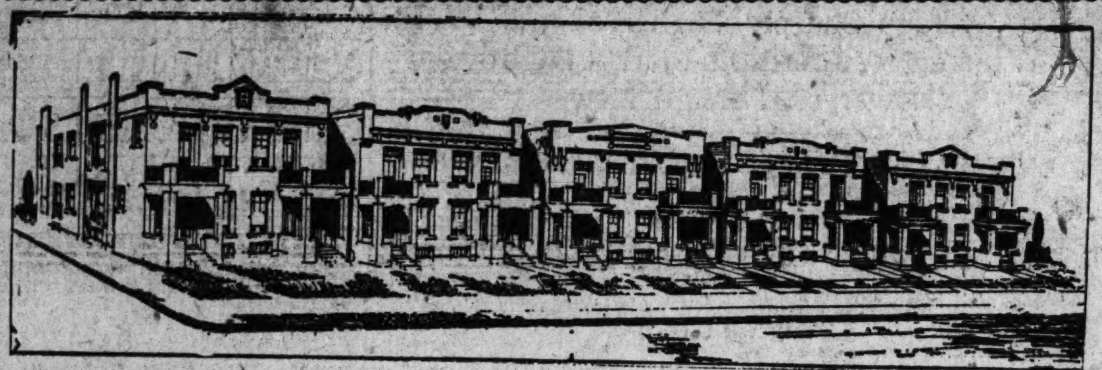
A year or more ago August A. Busch purchased the half block on the west side of Twelfth street, between Chestnut and Market streets, as a site for the proposed Busch Memorial Hotel. But as a result of the Parkway project the hotel plan was placed in abeyance, owing to the fact that the Busch purchase would have been absorbed by the big civic improvement.

Now that the Parkway idea has been virtually rejected, the hotel plans, it is understood, will soon be carried forward.

Several downtown blocks, two embracing the site bounded by Twelfth, Chestunt, Market and Thirteenth streets, and that bounded by Twelfth, Pine, Olive and Thirteenth, and also the Lionberger block, bounded by Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Pine and Chestnut, have been proposed as a site for the projected ambitious Grand Opera House.

Owing to the rapid increase in business, the Moss-Strauss Manufacturing Co. yesterday concluded arrangements for a three-story addition to the building occupied by it at the northwest corner of Twentieth and Locust streets. The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. perfected the deal for the addition and the new lease with F. W. Dresden, the owner. The Moss-Strauss Manufacturing Co. leased the three-story building at Twentieth and Locust through the Weisels-Gerhart Co. last February, the addition will occupy about 20x40 feet. Work on it will start this week.

Five Apartment Structures in West End to Be Completed Early in December



FIVE apartment buildings are being erected by R. A. and G. B. Bullock, on the south side of Etzel, at the corner of Maple place. These apartments are of entirely new arrangement, three rooms having full five-room efficiency, effected by the installation of two Murphy-in-a-Dor beds and a large dressing room for dresser or other furniture usually placed in bedrooms. Each apartment has six large closets, separate front and rear porches, cooling and china closets, tile bath, with marble window stools, attractive mantels with gas grates, hardwood floors, inside cellar stairs, separate furnaces, laundries and locker rooms, together with latest type of plumbing, electric fixtures and equipment. The buildings will be complete by Dec. 1.

The Bullocks have erected many handsome apartment buildings in the West End, including the Blenheim, which was recently sold to a client of Conrad L. Schopp.

FURRIERS LEASE 4-STORY BUILDING AT MAIN AND PINE

New York Firm Closes Deal for Northeast Corner Through Martin-Breitt Co.

Reports from realty circles show that leasing of space in downtown buildings is not lagging and that large outside concerns are establishing quarters in the city.

The Martin-Breitt Realty Co. reports having leased to New York furriers the four-story building at the northeast corner of Main and Pine streets. The identity of the concern is withheld. The building is owned by W. M. Funsten.

The Standard Mutual Mercantile Co., formerly the Fairbanks Mercantile Co., has taken a long lease of quarters in the Nelson Building at 714-16-18 Locust street. The concern, which is expanding with the addition of a general home outfitters' department, is fitting up handsome sales rooms in the building.

The Crone Flower and Feather Co. has leased the fourth floor of the building owned by the Lindell Real Estate Co., at 1121-23 Washington avenue, containing nearly 7000 square feet.

The Lindell Real Estate Co. also leased for a term of years, to Abe Levy, a store at 515 Franklin avenue, to be used as a retail store for furniture and house furnishings. Levy is from Oklahoma City.

Negotiations are pending for space in several of the Lindell Real Estate Co.'s loft buildings, which will be concluded within the coming week.

Arthur W. Rehfeldt, manager of the leasing department, reports an unusual number of inquiries for space for manufacturing purposes in the jobbing district.

DAVIS REALTY DEVELOPMENT CO. ANTICIPATES LARGE BUSINESS

Sales in Vinita and Maryland Terrace Reported to Be Exceptionally Good.

Mr. Davis, president of the Davis Realty Co., states that the past week saw many new buyers in the market, showing how the market is broadening.

Sales in Vinita and Maryland terrace were exceptionally good. The company is making extensive improvements in its properties, anticipating an unusually good business this fall, winter and next spring.

Several good homes are under construction in both Vinita and Maryland terrace.

PIPKIN FARM, ST. LOUIS COUNTY, SOLD TO SYNDICATE FOR $42,200

Sale Made by Court Commissioners Following Suit for Partition Filed by the Heirs.

The Pipkin farm on Denny road, two miles south of Kirkwood, containing 211 acres, was bought yesterday at auction in Clayton by a syndicate headed by Frank W. Suck, a real estate dealer. The purchase price was $42,200.

D. C. Taylor conducted the sale. He had been appointed special commissioner by the St. Louis County Circuit Court, after the heirs had filed a partition suit.

The farm will be subdivided by the syndicate into small farms, home sites and building lots.

PALACE STORE RENEWS LEASE

Deal by Weisels-Gerhart Company for Frank Nagel.

The Palace Novelty Co., which conducts the Palace Store at 515 Washington avenue, yesterday renewed its lease for three years. The store occupies the first and second floors, covering an area of 25x90. The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. negotiated the lease with the Palace company for the account of Frank Nagel.

CLIFTON HEIGHTS UNITES TO GUIDE IMPROVEMENTS

Association Will Look After Interests of District and Work With Other Organizations.

The Clifton Heights Improvement Association has been organized by the residents within the district bounded by Arsenal street on the south, Woods street on the east and the Frisco railroad tracks on the north and west. The object of the association is to promote and guide improvements in this district.

The section incluuded is rapidly being built up but still has much unimproved land within it. These lands add to the problems of sewer and street building and often form the basis of objections to improvements which other property owners consider unwarranted, also difficulties in taxation. The City Plan proposed improvements cover much of this territory and the association hopes to intelligently advise this movement.

The association will ally itself with the general organizations for municipal improvements and work in harmony with greater St. Louis plans. James E. Winterton of 6233 Magnolia avenue is president and Clyde Jennings of 2608 Clifton avenue is secretary.

TRADE MADE FOR APARTMENT AT RUSSELL AND KLEM AVENUES

E. L. and Elyda J. McBride Give Residence in University City in Part Payment.

The Goldman Realty Co. yesterday closed a deal for an exchange of properties valued at $48,000. The Elmont Apartments, Russell and Klem avenues, were sold to E. L. and Elyda J. McBride for $30,000, and as part payment Mrs. McBride gave her residence in University City, at 7024 Washington avenue at a consideration of $18,000.

Each of the six apartments contains four rooms and inclosed sun parlor, with all modern improvements, including garages to accommodate four automobiles. The building is on a lot 51x125 feet, and is all leased at an annual rental of $3,200. The residence on Washington avenue contains nine rooms and three baths.

The apartments were sold for the account of the Benbow Realty and Investment Co. The Goldman Realty Co. represented both parties and will retain the management of the building.

FIVE FLAT BUILDINGS IN SHAW TRACT SOLD TO ONE INVESTOR

Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co. Closes $50,000 Deal With Client of Mercantile Trust Co.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co. has closed a deal for five flat buildings in the Shaw tract, valued at $50,000. The sale was made for the account of Charles C. Stewart and Nellie C. Moran to a client of the Mercantile Trust Co., which was represented by Edward M. Thornhill.

Two of the buildings contain four flats of three rooms each, with tile baths, furnaces and hardwood floors. They are built on lots 40x130 feet and are renting for $960 a year. The buildings are 4010-10A-12-12A and 4014-14A-16-16A McRee avenue. The other three are modern brick double flats, each containing three rooms with bath, furnaces and hardwood floors, and built on lots 40x130 feet.

All five of the buildings are to remain under the management of the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co.

PRIOR & HARTIG IN LARGER OFFICES AT 811 CHESTNUT ST.

Aggressive Realty Firm Finds Needed Change in Steadily Increasing Interests.

Prior & Hartig have removed to more roomy quarters, on the ground floor at 811 Chestnut street. The firm, which does a general realty and financial business, is one of the most aggressive on Chestnut street, and the growth of its interests has been such as to make necessary larger quarters.

The agency was formerly located at 816 Chestnut street.

NEW APARTMENT BUILDINGS FOR NORTH PARKVIEW

String of 42 Bungalows, Costing $250,000, for the Shaw Tract.

Announcements of plans for apartment buildings and for flats on an extensive scale were the features of the closing week of October in realty circles. These include a $60,000 operation launched yesterday at the northwest corner of Von Versen and Interdrive, by F. J. Cornwell & Son, which will embrace two buildings of six and five room apartments with sun porches and sun parlors. The site is in North Parkview addition and near the Delmar avenue line. With the advent into Parkview of the Cornwells, extensive operators in the West End, the growth of the addition doubtless will receive new impetus.

Bungalows to Cost $250,000.

Sam Hamburg and Sam Kopler have taken out permits for their big bungalow operation on Lafayette avenue, between Klem and Tower Grove avenues, in the Shaw tract. A string of 42 bungalows is to be built at a cost of $250,000. They will be the last word in bungalow construction. Already it is understood several of the bungalows have been sold from plans on exhibition at the office of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., 2400 North Broadway.

Messrs. Hamburg and Kopler have built bungalows in many of the leading sections of residential St. Louis, and it is a notable fact that more than half of them have been disposed of from plans before completion.

8 Dwellings to Cost $30,000.

William H. Leahy has begun the erection of eight one-story dwellings on the west side of Alcott avenue, south of Theodosia avenue. The cost of the improvements is estimated at $30,000.

Plans have been completed by the Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. for a block of flats on the west side of Ohio avenue, north of Crittenden. The cost is placed at $50,000. The site, which purchased by the Dittmeier company during the week, is 250x150 feet. The flats will contain four suites of three and four rooms, with Dutch dining rooms, and will be of ornamental construction.

The location is two blocks west of Jefferson avenue and adjacent to Benton Park.

BUILDING AND LOAN SOCIETY MATURES TWENTY-THIRD SERIES

Mound City Association Is Oldest in Missouri Under State Supervision.

The Mound City Building and Loan Association, the oldest building and loan association in Missouri, under State supervision, organized in 1883, matured its twenty-third series this month. This association has loaned $920,135 to its members and paid out in profits to date, $223,920.62.

The officers and directors are: S. J. Stewart, president; Hans Hackel, vice-president; James M. Rohan, secretary-treasurer; E. Brueneman, G. H. Donnewald, H. J. Walters and A. H. Donnewald.

FOUR WEST END HOUSES SOLD

Ben Altheimer Jr. Realty Co. Reports Transaction—Farm in Part Payment.

The Ben Altheimer Jr. Realty Co., room 409 Wainwright Building, reports the closing of an exchange of real estate between the Florida Land and Fruit Co. and Henry F. Bente. They sold for the Florida Land and Fruit Co. the four 10-room houses on a lot fronting 137 feet at the corner of Maryland avenue and Whittier street, at a consideration of $30,000.

Bente gave in as part payment a tract of land of 482 acres adjoining the town of St. James, Mo. The farm at St. James will be subdivided into five and ten acres for the purpose of raising chickens and vegetables.

Novelty Theater Is Sold.

The Novelty Theater, at Grand and Easton avenues, has been purchased by Harry Koplar. The theater, which was owned by the Crawford interests, has a seating capacity of 1750.

The Novelty will be linked with a chain of theaters, including the King's Theater, the Montgomery, the Mikado and several others of the high class now operated by Koplar.

TESSON PARK LOT SALE IS FINISHED; $62,885.95 FOR 45

Proceeds of Two Auctions Aggregate $142,385.95, Result of Intelligent Advertising Campaign.

SECTION FOR BUNGALOWS

Sites on Southern Street of Subdivision, Under Restriction, Offered at Private Sale.

Yesterday's auction at the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange closed out the remaining lots, aggregating 1780 front feet, on Forsythe boulevard, in Tesson Park, 45 of them being knocked down to that number of purchasers for an aggregate consideration of 62,885.95.

At the first sale the preceding Saturday, 1720 front feet were disposed of for a total of $79,500, the proceeds of the two auctions aggregating $142,385.95.

The auction was conducted by Williams & Bland, with A. R. Schollmeyer auctioneer. About 300 bidders were present, exclusive of spectators and real estate agents, the latter in many instances representing purchasers.

Names of Purchasers Withheld.

While the names of the purchasers were not made public, it was observed that Sam Hamburg Jr. and Tom Grace were conspicuous among the successful bidders. The southwest corner of Manhattan avenue and Forsythe boulevard, one of the most attractive sites in the park, was obtained by Hamburg. Grace also purchased two lots at the first sale. Both Hamburg and Grace have ambitious building plans.

The success of the sale was attributed to the intelligent advertising campaign directed by Williams & Bland, together with Schollmeyer's prime work in the auctioneer's box.

William Sacks, attorney for the Northmoor Realty Co., the owners of the tract, following the sale, announced that 6600 feet on Tesson boulevard, the south street of the subdivision, would immediately be offered at private sale, restricted to bungalows.

To Erect Dozen Bungalows.

With the purpose to establish the character of the upbuilding, the Northmoor Co., it was stated, will at once begin the erection on the Tesson boulevard of 12 bungalows at a uniform cost, exclusive of the ground, of $3500. Each bungalow will be one and one-half stories in height and will occupy a lot 30x150 feet.

The Forsyth boulevard lots were sold unrestricted, admitting of the erection of both flats and apartments.

The Northmoor Realty Co. is composed of A. C. Einstein, Fred Essen, D. C. Taylor, William Sacks and Alex Kessler.

Tesson Park is situated at the Southwest corner of Forsythe boulevard and Pennsylvania avenue and overlooks Washington University, Forest Park and the city.

Also the sale of 3142 Hickory street, lot 26x135 feet, for Mrs. Caroline Dolder, to Henry A. Barnett, for $5000.

$500,000 SPENT FOR FINE WEST-END HOMES THIS FALL

More Money Being Invested in Artistic Residences, It Is Said, Than for Several Years.

Approximately half a million dollars has been invested this fall for homes in the West End in sums ranging from $20,000 to $50,000, according to Henry R. Weisels, vice president of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. Most of these homes, Weisels says, have been acquired by families who formerly lived in more modest abodes, thus indicating a general loosening of purse strings in St. Louis.

"The demand for beautiful homes since the first of September has been unprecedented," Weisels added, in discussing the realty and building situation with the real estate editor of the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

"More artistic homes have been sold during the last 60 days than during any other equal period for the past five or six years," he continued. "Every agency making a specialty of the sale of fine homes has been kept busy presenting its wares. "During the past 20 years," he continued, "I do not believe we have had so many inquiries for fine homes as at the present.

"Obviously the prevailing demand is indicative of the general revival in business.

Demand Is Gratifying.

"The renewed demand has been gratifying to real estate agents and owners alike in view of the fact that until recently high-class homes in many instances have been a drug on the market. If the present record is maintained, however, comparatively few homes of the finer class will be available by the time winter sets in.

"There has also been remarkable activity in the purchase of lots in the West End, especially in the newer subdivisions, by persons with plans for pretentious homes.

Weisels declared that the outlook was never brighter for all kinds of property and that those who buy now will get in on the ground floor. "There is no question but that desirable residential vacant and improved business property will enjoy a steady enhancement from this time forward."

A feature of the closing week of October was the purchase by Alfred E. Einstein, general manager of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., of a residence at 5115 Lindell boulevard, for $50,000. The sale was made by the Mercantile Trust Co., together with Cornet & Zeibig.

Another feature of the week was the purchase by R. S. Hawes, vice president of the Third National Bank, a client of the Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co., of 27 Windemere place. The seller was the Kock Investment Co., of which P. D. Hammett is president.

Other notable sales of the month were as follows:

The residence at the northwest corner of Hortense and Euclid from Herbert Edmunds to Girard S. Parsons, a client of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. for $25,000; the Hasgell residence, at the southwest corner of Skinker Road and Westminster place, to W. R. Bush, a client of the Weisels-Gerhart Co., for $32,500; the Spink residence at 5235 Lindell boulevard to Edw. G. Rolwing, a client of the Mercantile Trust Co., for $50,000; the Kupferle residence, at 5315 Lindell boulevard, to W. F. Blanke, for $35,000; the Christopher residence at 36 Kingsbury place, to Louis P. Aloe, a client of the Weisels-Gerhart Co., for $37,500, and the Stanard residence at 4548 West Pine boulevard, to Geo. Petretermy, a client of Albert T. Terry.

These are only a scattered few of the homes of high class disposed of in October, and do not include many sales in Brentmoor, Forest Ridge, Hillcrest, Maryland Terrace, Ames place and other outlying high-class subdivisions.

Many Lots Sold.

There has also been sold an unusual number of lots for sites for fine homes, many of which are now completed, or are in process of construction. These include the new home of Samuel Butler, now completed, at 53 Kingsbury place, that of Nat Ewing, building at 46 Kingsbury place, and that of C. Curby, now under construction in Washington Terrace, just west of Union boulevard.

Sigmund Hasgell has just begun the erection of a handsome home at 23 Washington Terrace, while George T. Burdeau and Herbert M. Edmunds are erecting homes respectively at the corner of Hortense place and King's highway, and at the corner of Portland place and Union boulevard.

The salient feature of activity in the West End has been the demand for sites in Hillcrest and in Ames place, both of which are being built up with homes ranging in cost from $10,000 to $25,000.

COAL OPERATORS TO BUILD RAILROAD TO EAST ST. LOUIS

Narrow Gauge Line Will Run From Caseyville to Terminal Railroad Belt.

WILL ELIMINATE HANDLING

Cars Will Be Loaded Inside Mines and Delivered Direct—Financial Arrangements Made.

A coal-carrying railroad with some new features is being constructed between the Gundlach coal mines in Caseyville and the Terminal Railroad Belt in East St. Louis.

The Caseyville Railroad, as the line is known, will be operated by Joseph and Alois Gundlach of Belleville, for the purpose of delivering coal from their mines to this industrial district, and a number of features making for economy and speed for the delivery of coal will be inaugurated. The mine is situated at the bluffs, between French Village and Caseyville and is reached through an entrance at the base of the slope. A narrow gauge railroad is to be constructed from the slope to the Terminal Belt Line at Twenty-first street in East St. Louis.

The cars will be loaded in the mines and the coal hauled to the term without extra handling. It mean the mine cars will be moved over a row-gauge road to a terminal in St. Louis. The terminal will be tary tipple, so constructed as to r the coal from the mine cars to coal on the terminal tracks at practi no cost.

Will Eliminate Handling.

Figuratively, the top of the shaf the coal mine will be in the hear East St. Louis. There will be no t at the mine and no handling of coal hand other than the loading into mine cars. The coal will then be tributed either by rail to the various dustries or by wagon and autom trucks. It will result in the deliver coal from the mine direct to the sumer, thus eliminating all interm ate cost.

The rolling stock and equipment be acquired within a short time and road will be ready for business pro lly by the first of the year. The ent prise will be well under way about time the wagon approach of the f bridge is complete, which will make possible for St. Louis industries to ceive coal direct from the mines truck over the free bridge, without ing an extra transmississippi charg

Work Will Be Pushed.

Prominent manufacturers say that completion of the Gundlach scheme the delivery of coal direct from the min to the industry will revolutionize th industrial conditions of this district. The Caseyville coal is reported to be very high quality, and there is a plentiful supply.

The establishment of this direct line of delivery of coal will, it is said, materially reduce the price of coal in the city of St. Louis as well as East St. Louis and will strengthen the position of this district as an industrial center.

Information as to the amount of ey invested in the Gundlach line is available, but it is stated by A. H. the company's attorney, that all cial arrangements have been co mated and that the work will be p to completion.

NEWS AND FEATURES OF THE

FEEDING METHODS FOR EGG-LAYING IN COLD SEASON

Experienced Poultryman's Suggestions Have Value, but Do Not Meet Situation Entirely.

There is no one best way to feed poultry, whether old or young. Of course, that is true of any kind of livestock and of human beings as well. It would be absurd to say there is any one ration for human beings that is better than all others. But there are some methods of feeding and caring for poultry which have been proved to be good by experience.

More depends upon care, perhaps, than upon the exact amount of food fed or the precise kind of food. If you had the recipe for the ration of the most successful poultryman in the country you wouldn't get his results unless you exercised his skill and care in other respects.

here are frequent questions about thods of feeding for securing eggs, ecially in the late fall and winter. ch suggestions have frequently been ade in this department. An experinced poultryman gives in substance the llowing as his method:

In the morning, shortly after the hens ame down from the perches, they are ive a ration of whole grain, as much as they will scratch after eagerly. This will vary with different flocks and it will vary from time to time with the ame flock. Birds, like human beings, at more days than others. They will at more when it is cold than when it s warm. The experienced poultryman will learn how much his birds will eat. The grain is scattered over the entire floor space, which is covered with litter six or seven inches deep. The litter should be kept loose. If the hens do not scratch after the grain eagerly it is because they are being fed too much. Exercise is necessary for continued egg production. A supply of water is kept before the hens all the time. The drinking vessel should be rinsed out daily and fresh water supplied.

At noon this poultry breeder feeds a mash. He says he doesn't think it makes much difference whether it is wet or dry. The hens will consume approximately one-half as much by weight of mash as of grain. In winter, when the birds do not have free access to good range, they should be fed some sort of green succulent food at noon.

At night, about an hour before dark, the hens should be fed all the grain in the litter that they will eat. They should go to roost with full crops. It is better to have a little grain left than to have them to go to roost hungry. Regularity, says the breeder, is of as much importance as the amount and character of the food given.

The above suggestions are given, not because they meet the situation entirely, but because there are suggestions of some value in the experience of this poultryman.

Poultry Problems Solved

What is the cause of bloody droppings in a five-months-old Leghorn?—E. M. S., St. Louis.

Bloody droppings may be caused in various ways. The most common cause, however, is dysentery. This is serious to the individual bird and it may become infectious. The cause of dysentery is some kind of an infection of the intestines, due either to harmful bacteria or to some other specific cause. It may be due to indigestion caused by eating some poisonous food. The bird should be isolated. I recommend that eight drops of chlorodine be given on a small piece of bread. I recommend also the use of a laxative. Use a little castor oil twice a day for a few days.

Trap-Nest Recommended by U. S. Agriculture Department

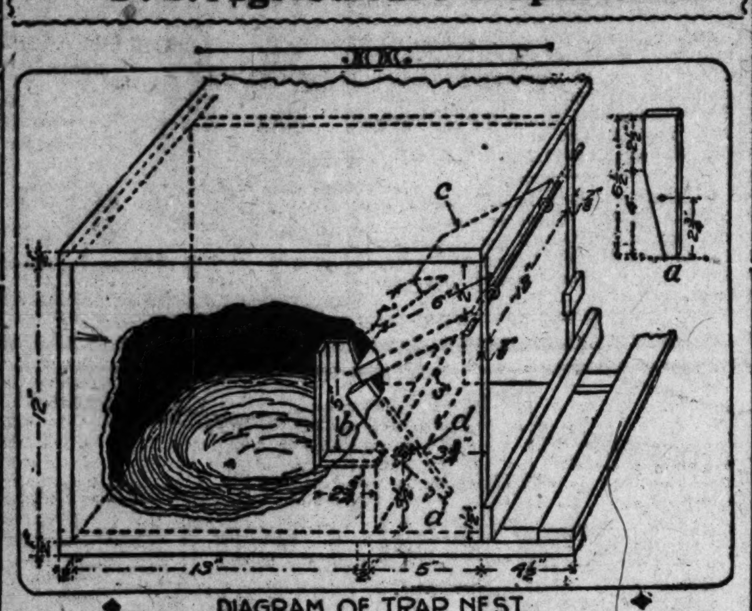

DIAGRAM OF TRAP NEST.

The plan of trap nest shown herewith is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. It may be placed under the dropping board or fastened to the wall of the poultry house. If the latter plan is followed some provision should be made to prevent birds roosting on it. Slats or wire may be placed above it in a slanting position to accomplish this result. In either case it is a good plan to put up the nests so that they may be easily removed. These nests may be made singly or with several compartments. Generally the nests are made in series of three each. Directions for making one of this size, as given by the Government experts, follow:

Cut four ⅞-inch boards for ends and partitions, 12 inches wide by 19 inches long, enough ½-inch boards 39½ inches long, laid lengthwise to cover the top, back and bottom, and one strip 39¼ inches long and 1½ inches wide for the front of the nests. Cut three pieces of ½-inch boards 12 inches long and 3 inches high to insert in the nest to hold the nesting material away from the door.

Nail the top, back and bottom to the ends and partitions (see fig. 2), insert the 3-inch strips in the nests, and make the guard (b), nailing it to the left side of the nest. Bore a hole in the catch (a) large enough so that the catch will move freely when screwed into position on the side. Place a washer on the screw between the catch and the side of the nest. Place a screw at the lower edge of the catch to stop it when set, so that the catch will just hold the door.

Make the doors (c) of ½-inch material, 12 inches by 6 inches, and cut a triangular notch in the center 4 inches wide. Put two screw eyes in the top of the doors and bore holes in the front of the nests 2 inches below the top (inside measurement), through which a 3-16-inch wire is run to support the doors.

Attach a narrow strip to the front of the nests for the hens to jump upon when entering the nests. Place a button or block of wood on the front of each partition to hold the door when the nest is closed.

If the nests are to be placed directly below the dropping board, a wire top should be used on the nest, except for a 3-inch strip of wood on the front edge of the top to stiffen the nest.

When the hen enters the nest her back raises the door (c) which releases the catch or trigger (a) and allows the door to shut. The catch should be set so that its edge just holds the door, which position is regulated by the screw or nail at the lower inside edge of the catch. A washer should be placed on the screw (d) between the catch and the side of the nest to prevent this catch from sticking. The guard (b) around the catch keeps the nesting material away from the catch. The length of the catch which supports the door and the triangular notch in the door may be varied slightly for very small or very large hens.

One nest to every four or five hens is advocated by the department specialists. Of course, the hens must be banded if accurate records are to be obtained in trapnesting. The nests should be visited several times daily, especially in hot weather, so that the hens will not be confined longer than necessary.

It means a good deal of extra work to displace the ordinary nests with trapnests, but as a means of weeding out poor layers and of selecting the best breeders for egg production trapnesting is the only practical procedure.

Now Is Time for Prevention of Roup.

Now is the time to deal with the roup question, before your birds get it. When they get a hard case of it cure is difficult; in fact, many authorities say that there isn't any cure. There isn't much danger of roup if they can get through the fall months without it. Cool nights and wet mornings are pretty likely to cause colds; more likely than the extreme cold of midwinter.

Roup is caused, for one thing, by crowded conditions, so all the old hens that are not wanted as next year's breeders and that you do not care to keep through the winter for laying should be disposed of. This is true also of cockerels. The price is going down and they may be worth as much now as they will be worth 60 days from now, when they are heavier.

Lice and mites should be cleaned up now because they weaken the condition of the fowls and make them subject to roup. W. E. Vablon of the Colorado Agricultural college recommends that quarters should be free from insect pests. The floor should be clean. New earth should be put in if the floor is of dirt and new roosts should be put in regularly. There should be room enough so that the birds can play and exercise while shut in during the stormy weather. Feed and water should be clean and of the best quality obtainable. The birds that are weaklings, whether young or old, should be disposed of. They catch cold easily and colds, when they reach the roup stage, are infectious. The runts should be killed.

Needful Cold Season Food for the Flock

During the summer birds on free range pick up bugs, worms and a variety of other insects which furnish some of the necessary elements from which bone, tissue, feathers and eggs are made. In the winter, when insect life has disappeared, or in the case of birds kept confined, these elements should be provided in some other way.

The best winter sources of these elements are beef scraps or meat meal, green cut bone and milk in its various forms. Many poultrymen find it profitable to keep a small bone mill for grinding up bones obtained at small cost from the butcher, as well as those from their own kitchen. Gristle, sinews or any meat adhering to the bones make them so much more valuable as feed for chickens, especially as egg producers.

Ground bone must be given with care or trouble may result. It should be fed in small quantities at regular intervals. After getting a flock used to the meal it may be fed in quantities of one pound daily to about 20 hens. Small amounts should be given for a few days to prevent loose bowels, from which more serious ailments may result. Another precaution is to see that the bone meal is always fresh and sweet. For this reason it should not be ground up in large quantities beforehand and should be kept in a cool place.

Mixing in these feeds as an ingredient of the dry mash is also practiced very extensively. As in the case of the bone meal, one should be careful to feed nothing but meat that is in good condition.

But milk is easiest to feed. It requires little trouble to prepare and put it before the flock and few precautions are necessary in giving it to the birds. Skim-milk may be poured in a trough or fountain and the birds allowed to drink of it as they desire. Milk that has turned sour, or buttermilk, should be fed with a little more care than sweet milk. Too much of either kind may cause bowel trouble, especially where the birds have not become used to them. If given in the right quantities either sour or buttermilk will act as a corrective of digestive disorders.

"Douglas Mixture" a Remedy, Also Tonic.

To make "Douglas Mixture," take of sulphate of iron or common copperas, 8 ounces; sulphuric acid, ½ fluid ounce; put into a bottle or jug, 1 gallon of water, into which put the sulphate of iron. As soon as the iron is dissolved add the acid, and when it is clear the "mixture" is ready for use. In hot weather, or when the flock is small, less may be prepared at once, but the above proportion should be observed.

This "mixture" or tonic should be given in the drinking water every other day—a gill for every 25 head is not too much, and where there is infection it must be used every day.

This preparation, simple as it is, is one of the best tonics for poultry known. It is alterative as well as tonic, and possesses, besides, antiseptic properties which make it a remedy as well as a tonic.

Milk Means Growth for Young Poultry

"We live and learn" in poultry raising as in everything else. This is suggested to me by a remark of a veteran poultry raiser who has a long and successful record of winning prizes in the leading poultry shows of the Central West. This man told me that, although he had used milk to some extent for many years as a part of the poultry ration, he had not until recently appreciated it at its full worth. He believes milk has no equal as a food for promoting growth of young stock and preparing it for the poultry show. He prefers to feed it sour or in the shape of buttermilk. Either is good, and I believe sweet skimmed milk is equally good.

Of course, it will not do to feed "whole" milk. It is too expensive, and though much richer than skimmed or buttermilk, is no better for pushing young stock.

Not only does milk make the birds grow; is also helps to put the plumage in fine condition, and to the fancier who is to show his birds this is very important.

The milk may be fed "straight" in liquid form, or it may be used to moisten a mash. I like to feed it straight and feed the mash in dry form.

In many places it is difficult to get the milk, or at least to buy it at a reasonable price. It is well to feed it at all stages of growth, but if it is expensive and you wish to feed it for a short time, say a month or six weeks, I should recommend feeding it to chicks that are half-grown. Right now is about the best time to feed it to most young stock.

The fancier or showman does not, of course, figure costs very closely. The utility poultry raiser, however, must figure carefully the question of cost of feed for his flock.

Advice to Beginners in Poultry Raising

Recently an inquiry was made the essence of which is as follows: "I have two city lots, 125 feet deep. I have never kept any poultry, but believe I would enjoy it. What could I hope to make with a flock of chickens on a piece of ground about 50 by 100 feet in size? Believing that I have enough enthusiasm to see the thing through, would you advise me to go into it?"

It is difficult to give a definite reply that will be of help, to an inquiry of this nature. But there is one piece of advice we can give to all such inquirers with the belief that it will be helpful, and that is: "Go to it, but start on a small scale." There are hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of city and suburban residents who would like to go into the poultry business but are wavering because they are afraid they might not be successful at it. Yet they never will be satisfied in this matter if they don't give the business a trial. So our advice is to make a start, if only for the purpose of finding out what you can do.

To such beginners the most important injunction is to go slow at first. Thousands of beginning poultry raisers have made dismal failures only because they let their enthusiasm run away with them and started on too large a scale. Investing heavily, sometimes all they have, their first years of work do not show the results they had figured out on paper. Perhaps the debit side of the ledger shows the larger figure. Disappointment and discouragement follow and then it usually is only a matter of time until they have nothing left to show for their investment.

Increasing Bulbs Require Replanting.

Bulbs increase in number in much the same way as potatoes, and for this reason they need to be dug up and replanted occasionally. In the case of tulips this will becoming necessary in about three years, and with other bulbs about five.

Bulbs planted in the sod on the lawn are very attractive. If this is done they should be hit and miss, an irregular group in one place, scattered plants here and there, just as one would find wild flowers. This is especially pretty for the small flowers. The tops will die down soon after blooming, and nothing more will be seen of them until the following spring. Tulips show to best advantage when they have a background of shrubbery. They also are used effectively in beds and borders.

Don't keep two or three different kinds of ducks. Choose one variety and breed for quality.

Don't try, by mixing it with their food, to force ducks to eat more grit than they want.

TRAGIC STORY OF FRENCH WOMAN'S LOVE AND TREASON

Herman Bernstein Tells How, Betrayed by Her Heart, She Tried to Betray Country.

PAID FOR IT WITH HER LIFE

Husband at Front, She and Austrian Sweetheart Are Shot, Together—She Dies Bravely.

BY HERMAN BERNSTEIN.
Author of "With Master Minds," Editor of "The Day."

PARIS, Oct. 30.—This is the story of a French young woman who was executed by the French military authorities in Bellegarde, the little Franco-Swiss frontier village.

This war has produced numerous instances of inhuman brutality, of heroism, of self-sacrifice and romance, but the circumstances surrounding the fate of this young woman will rank among the most tragic and pathetic "human documents" of the war. It is the story of a woman who died for love. To help her sweetheart she committed high treason and paid with her life for it.

Women have figured prominently as spies in every war. In this war their role also has been conspicuous. Some have betrayed their country for money; others have betrayed it for the love of adventure, and still others have betrayed it for the sake of love—following blindly the man who led them astray along the fascinating and dangerous path of crime. This young woman was a victim of love.

Her Fate Unknown to Friends.

Not a word has been written about her death. Not a sigh, not a tear, not a prayer from her friends and relatives. For they did not know what had become of her. The French newspapers did not record the end of this woman who paid with her life for her daring, mad desire to help her Austrian sweetheart, who sought to secure French military secrets.

Her name was Susana Raynal. She was the wife of Louis Raynal, a lieutenant in the artillery of the French army. She was 28 years old when she was put to death. The husband, 12 years her senior, was at the front when she was shot. Her sweetheart was shot with her. He broke down, quivering and crying hysterically while she kept bracing him up, repeating: "Have no fear! Have no fear!"

She begged the officers to have them shot together, not separately. She declined to be blindfolded, held her lover by the hand and kept murmuring: "Have no fear! Have no fear!"

There were no prayers. No priest was allowed to administer to them the last rites. Within one hour after they had been trapped by the military authorities at the frontier they were shot. The victim of love faced death with a strange spirit of bravado, with peculiar courage, while the man whimpered and cried and begged for mercy.

Diplomatist Tells the Story.

Several weeks ago I met in Paris a distinguished French diplomatist with whom I discussed many incidents of the war. Our conversation turned to the many varieties of spies and provocateurs and to the motives that prompted them to betray their country.

Then he told me the story of this young woman who met her end so bravely at the French-Swiss frontier. There were tears in his voice as he related the details. For he knew the woman and her husband.

"I was returning from London to Paris a few weeks ago," he said. "Just as we were reaching Boulogne on the boat crossing the Channel, while I was in line in the dining room of the boat where the passports were being examined by the military officers, I heard behind me a familiar voice whispering in German 'furchte doch nicht.' (Don't be afraid.)

"My Husband's Friend."

"I turned and saw the wife of my friend, a French Lieutenant, who was at the front. She showed embarrassment when she noticed me, but immediately advanced toward me and introduced to me a tall young man of rather anti-athletic appearance.

"'This is my husband's friend,' she said to me. 'He was kind enough to help me arrange my business affairs in London. Louis is at the front.'

"In the meantime, my turn came to present my passport. Our conversation was interrupted. I saw that she handed her French passport to the officer and the young man showed his documents. I noticed that he was pale and nervous.

"In the train we met again in the dining car. They seated themselves opposite me and from the way she acted I knew that she was in love with that man. He was tall, thin and repulsive. Her husband was brilliant, handsome and wealthy. I recalled her comfortable beautiful home in the center of Paris.

"During our conversation she made several remarks to the young man in German, apparently under the impression that I did not understand that language. Upon our arrival in Paris she asked me to visit her soon. She said she wanted me to advise her in a certain important matter; that she was alone now; that I could help her with letters of introduction for which she would be most grateful. She urged me to visit her the following evening. I promised to call on her and bade her farewell.

Seeks Diplomatist's Aid.

"On the following evening when I came to her house, her maid met me at the door and said that Madam was expecting me for dinner an hour later. I asked her to tell Mme. Raynal that I had another engagement for dinner. A few minutes later Mme. Raynal came out.

"As I mentioned before, she was a beautiful young woman of about 28. She was most charmingly dressed. She greeted me warmly and begged me to stay for dinner. I told her I had another important engagement. She implored me to stay. She said she was alone and that she wished to talk with me about a matter of great importance in which she desired to enlist my aid. I said that I would call on her some other evening. Then she told me she wished to visit friends in Switzerland, that she had some manuscripts of a literary character she wanted to take to them and that she wished me to give her letters of introduction to several people, among them the Minister of War. I promised to call on her the following evening.

"As I bade her good-night she kissed me and begged me to break my other engagement and take dinner with her. I repeated that it was impossible. Then I left her. As I walked down the stairs I noticed the tall young man I had met with her at Boulogne going up in the elevator to her apartment. That seemed more than strange to me.

"It seemed to me a prearranged affair," he went on after a pause. "The next morning I chanced to be lunching in a cafe where I occasionally met my friend, the head of the Secret Police Department. In the course of my conversation I told the peculiar story of the woman and the young man without mentioning her name.

Were Being Watched.

The Police Chief listened intently and then said:

"'I think I know the woman. We are watching her. We are also watching the man closely. He is an Austrian. They seem to be engaged in a serious political conspiracy.'

"He mentioned her name to me and asked me whether that was the woman I had in mind. I told him it was.

"I did not call on her the following evening. In fact I never saw her again.

"About two weeks later I met the head of the Secret Police Department in the same cafe. He said to me: 'Do you know what has happened to that woman—Susana Raynal?'

"'I haven't seen her since then,' I replied.

"'You will never see her again,' he said. 'She has been shot.'

"And then he told me how the police had shadowed her and her lover; how someone who had made her acquaintance recently gave her a letter of introduction to the Minister of War. She wanted to help the Austrian carry certain documents out of France and wished to get a special letter from the Minister of War permitting her to take what she called 'manuscripts' to her friends in Switzerland.

How They Were Trapped.

"She went to the ministry of war with her sweetheart. They were taken to a room where they met an officer who told her that he would be glad to arrange the matter for her. Then the police did what is usually done in such cases. The officer walked out of the room for a short time, leaving on the table near them a number of important looking documents. The man took some of these documents and, after the officer had returned and had given them the letter they asked for, they went away.

"On the following day they reached Bellegarde on the Franco-Swiss frontier. They were searched and the papers taken from the War Department were found on the woman. Within one hour both were shot. She met her death bravely. She held the man by the hand and tried to brace him up. He was crying helplessly and hysterically.

"I cannot forgive myself for having mentioned the incident to the police chief," concluded the French diplomatist. "Nor can I forgive myself for not having made an effort to see her again in order to warn her. Perhaps she might have been saved. The act of the police department was, after all, a piece of provocation."

A few days ago I received information that Lieut. Louis Raynal, the husband of the woman who was executed in Bellegarde, fell on the battlefield recently. He passed away without learning of the tragedy that had befallen his home.

He died in defense of his fatherland, which his wife, through her blind love for a spy, had endeavored to betray. Perhaps as he was dying of his wounds his last thoughts and prayers were for his home and for his wife.

Thrills A-Plenty at Three-Ring Society Circus in East St. Louis

Impersonations of Famous Actresses to Be a Feature.

MRS. CHAS. M. HORNER (AS "ROSA.")

MRS. J. L. HENRY

THE "society circus," which will be given Thursday and Friday nights by the Wednesday Club of East St. Louis, at the Broadway Theater, will have three rings. The first will be a Wild West performance, with make-believe hazards and thrills. The circus is different from the others in that the rings appear one at a time.

The second ring will represent a menagerie of performing beasts. All sizes of boys have been recruited and made to practice walking on all-fours to produce this act. The third will be impersonations of actresses, actors, singers and all kinds of theatrical performers.

Mrs. Charles M. Horner will appear as "Rosa," Miss Mildred Haynes will impersonate Lillian Russell. Miss Elsie Bratton will have the role of Anna Held and Miss Anna Halloran will represent Nora Bayes. There will be more than 200 persons in the cast.

Mrs. J. L. Henry, president of the Wednesday Club, conceived the idea. The proceeds will be placed in a fund to build a woman's clubhouse.

DOCTOR GAINS $15 A MONTH WHEN WIFE BRINGS SUIT

Had Been Paying $65 Monthly, Plaintiff Asks for More, Court Cuts It to $50.

To Mrs. Edna Arbuckle, wife of Dr. Millard F. Arbuckle, an East St. Louis specialist, who testified that her husband's income is at least $7000 a year, was awarded $50 a month separate maintenance in the East St. Louis City Court yesterday by Judge Flannigan. She testified that Dr. Arbuckle had contributed approximately $65 a month toward her support since they separated in July, but that it was not enough.

Dr. Arbuckle's attorney offered to pay any amount between $53 a month and $88 a month. Arbuckle computed that his average income is about $300 a month, outside of business expenses. Judge Flannigan ordered Arbuckle to turn over the furniture, valued at $700, to his wife, after he has paid a balance of $166 due on it. The wife's attorney entered an appeal immediately.

Dr. Arbuckle said that he had between $30 and $40 in the bank, and $3.80 in his pockets; that he owed $900 on his automobile, the balance on the furniture, $350 on a $700 lot, and had not paid his board bill for last month. All his testimony was directed toward reducing the amount of the maintenance. He did not oppose paying it, and gave no reason for separating from his wife. They lived at 407 North Eighteenth street.

Mrs. Arbucyle said on the witness stand that he refused, after their marriage in March, 1914, to pay some bills she contracted previously, and that she sold eggs to pay them. He retorted that the only bill he refused to pay was one for $280 for a piano.

Mrs. Arbuckle worked in his office previous to their marriage. She said she started on a salary of $4 a week, which later was increased to $9. She is 23 years old, and he is 31.

In rendering the decree Judge Flannigan said Arbuckle was a "man among men, but unfortunte among women."

TRAGIC STORY OF FRENCH WOMAN'S LOVE AND TREASON

Herman Bernstein Tells How, Betrayed by Her Heart, She Tried to Betray Country.

PAID FOR IT WITH HER LIFE

Husband at Front, She and Austrian Sweetheart Are Shot, Together—She Dies Bravely.

BY HERMAN BERNSTEIN.
Author of "With Master Minds," Editor of "The Day."

PARIS, Oct. 30.—This is the story of a French young woman who was executed by the French military authorities in Bellegarde, the little Franco-Swiss frontier village.

This war has produced numerous instances of inhuman brutality, of heroism, of self-sacrifice and romance, but the circumstances surrounding the fate of this young woman will rank among the most tragic and pathetic "human documents" of the war. It is the story of a woman who died for love. To help her sweetheart she committed high treason and paid with her life for it.

Women have figured prominently as spies in every war. In this war their role also has been conspicuous. Some have betrayed their country for money; others have betrayed it for the love of adventure, and still others have betrayed it for the sake of love—following blindly the man who led them astray along the fascinating and dangerous path of crime. This young woman was a victim of love.

Her Fate Unknown to Friends.

Not a word has been written about her death. Not a sigh, not a tear, not a prayer from her friends and relatives. For they did not know what had become of her. The French newspapers did not record the end of this woman who paid with her life for her daring, mad desire to help her Austrian sweetheart, who sought to secure French military secrets.

Her name was Susana Raynal. She was the wife of Louis Raynal, a lieutenant in the artillery of the French army. She was 28 years old when she was put to death. The husband, 12 years her senior, was at the front when she was shot. Her sweetheart was shot with her. He broke down, quivering and crying hysterically while she kept bracing him up, repeating: "Have no fear! Have no fear!"

She begged the officers to have them shot together, not separately. She declined to be blindfolded, held her lover by the hand and kept murmuring: "Have no fear! Have no fear!"

There were no prayers. No priest was allowed to administer to them the last rites. Within one hour after they had been trapped by the military authorities at the frontier they were shot. The victim of love faced death with a strange spirit of bravado, with peculiar courage, while the man whimpered and cried and begged for mercy.

Diplomatist Tells the Story.

Several weeks ago I met in Paris a distinguished French diplomatist with whom I discussed many incidents of the war. Our conversation turned to the many varieties of spies and provocateurs and to the motives that prompted them to betray their country.

Then he told me the story of this young woman who met her end so bravely at the French-Swiss frontier. There were tears in his voice as he related the details. For he knew the woman and her husband.

"I was returning from London to Paris a few weeks ago," he said. "Just as we were reaching Boulogne on the boat crossing the Channel, while I was in line in the dining room of the boat where the passports were being examined by the military officers, I heard behind me a familiar voice whispering in German 'furchte doch nicht.' (Don't be afraid.)

"My Husband's Friend."

"I turned and saw the wife of my friend, a French Lieutenant, who was at the front. She showed embarrassment when she noticed me, but immediately advanced toward me and introduced to me a tall young man of rather anti-athletic appearance.

"'This is my husband's friend,' she said to me. 'He was kind enough to help me arrange my business affairs in London. Louis is at the front.'

"In the meantime, my turn came to present my passport. Our conversation was interrupted. I saw that she handed her French passport to the officer and the young man showed his documents. I noticed that he was pale and nervous.

"In the train we met again in the dining car. They seated themselves opposite me and from the way she acted I knew that she was in love with that man. He was tall, thin and repulsive. Her husband was brilliant, handsome and wealthy. I recalled her comfortable beautiful home in the center of Paris.

"During our conversation she made several remarks to the young man in German, apparently under the impression that I did not understand that language. Upon our arrival in Paris she asked me to visit her soon. She said she wanted me to advise her in a certain important matter; that she was alone now; that I could help her with letters of introduction for which she would be most grateful. She urged me to visit her the following evening. I promised to call on her and bade her farewell.

Seeks Diplomatist's Aid.

"On the following evening when I came to her house, her maid met me at the door and said that Madam was expecting me for dinner an hour later. I asked her to tell Mme. Raynal that I had another engagement for dinner. A few minutes later Mme. Raynal came out.

"As I mentioned before, she was a beautiful young woman of about 28. She was most charmingly dressed. She greeted me warmly and begged me to stay for dinner. I told her I had another important engagement. She implored me to stay. She said she was alone and that she wished to talk with me about a matter of great importance in which she desired to enlist my aid. I said that I would call on her some other evening. Then she told me she wished to visit friends in Switzerland, that she had some manuscripts of a literary character she wanted to take to them and that she wished me to give her letters of introduction to several people, among them the Minister of War. I promised to call on her the following evening.

"As I bade her good-night she kissed me and begged me to break my other engagement and take dinner with her. I repeated that it was impossible. Then I left her. As I walked down the stairs I noticed the tall young man I had met with her at Boulogne going up in the elevator to her apartment. That seemed more than strange to me.

"It seemed to me a prearranged affair," he went on after a pause. "The next morning I chanced to be lunching in a cafe where I occasionally met my friend, the head of the Secret Police Department. In the course of my conversation I told the peculiar story of the woman and the young man without mentioning her name.

Were Being Watched.

The Police Chief listened intently and then said:

"'I think I know the woman. We are watching her. We are also watching the man closely. He is an Austrian. They seem to be engaged in a serious political conspiracy.'

"He mentioned her name to me and asked me whether that was the woman I had in mind. I told him it was.

"I did not call on her the following evening. In fact I never saw her again.

"About two weeks later I met the head of the Secret Police Department in the same cafe. He said to me: 'Do you know what has happened to that woman—Susana Raynal?'

"'I haven't seen her since then,' I replied.

"'You will never see her again,' he said. 'She has been shot.'

"And then he told me how the police had shadowed her and her lover; how someone who had made her acquaintance recently gave her a letter of introduction to the Minister of War. She wanted to help the Austrian carry certain documents out of France and wished to get a special letter from the Minister of War permitting her to take what she called 'manuscripts' to her friends in Switzerland.

How They Were Trapped.

"She went to the ministry of war with her sweetheart. They were taken to a room where they met an officer who told her that he would be glad to arrange the matter for her. Then the police did what is usually done in such cases. The officer walked out of the room for a short time, leaving on the table near them a number of important looking documents. The man took some of these documents and, after the officer had returned and had given them the letter they asked for, they went away.

"On the following day they reached Bellegarde on the Franco-Swiss frontier. They were searched and the papers taken from the War Department were found on the woman. Within one hour both were shot. She met her death bravely. She held the man by the hand and tried to brace him up. He was crying helplessly and hysterically.

"I cannot forgive myself for having mentioned the incident to the police chief," concluded the French diplomatist. "Nor can I forgive myself for not having made an effort to see her again in order to warn her. Perhaps she might have been saved. The act of the police department was, after all, a piece of provocation."

A few days ago I received information that Lieut. Louis Raynal, the husband of the woman who was executed in Bellegarde, fell on the battlefield recently. He passed away without learning of the tragedy that had befallen his home.

He died in defense of his fatherland, which his wife, through her blind love for a spy, had endeavored to betray. Perhaps as he was dying of his wounds his last thoughts and prayers were for his home and for his wife.

Thrills A-Plenty at Three-Ring Society Circus in East St. Louis

Impersonations of Famous Actresses to Be a Feature.

THE "society circus," which will be given Thursday and Friday nights by the Wednesday Club of East St. Louis, at the Broadway Theater, will have three rings. The first will be a Wild West performance, with make-believe hazards and thrills. The circus is different from the others in that the rings appear one at a time.

MRS. CHAS. M. HORNER AS "ROSA."

MRS. J. L. HENRY

The second ring will represent a menagerie of performing beasts. All sizes of boys have been recruited and made to practice walking on all-fours to produce this act. The third will be impersonations of actresses, actors, singers and all kinds of theatrical performers.

Mrs. Charles M. Horner will appear as "Rosa," Miss Mildred Haynes will impersonate Lillian Russell. Miss Elsie Bratton will have the role of Anna Held and Miss Anna Halloran will represent Nora Bayes. There will be more than 200 persons in the cast.

Mrs. J. L. Henry, president of the Wednesday Club, conceived the idea. The proceeds will be placed in a fund to build a woman's clubhouse.

DOCTOR GAINS $15 A MONTH WHEN WIFE BRINGS SUIT

Had Been Paying $65 Monthly, Plaintiff Asks for More, Court Cuts It to $50.

To Mrs. Edna Arbuckle, wife of Dr. Millard F. Arbuckle, an East St. Louis specialist, who testified that her husband's income is at least $7000 a year, was awarded $50 a month separate maintenance in the East St. Louis City Court yesterday by Judge Flannigan. She testified that Dr. Arbuckle had contributed approximately $65 a month toward her support since they separated in July, but that it was not enough.

Dr. Arbuckle's attorney offered to pay any amount between $53 a month and $88 a month. Arbuckle computed that his average income is about $300 a month, outside of business expenses. Judge Flannigan ordered Arbuckle to turn over the furniture, valued at $700, to his wife, after he has paid a balance of $166 due on it. The wife's attorney entered an appeal immediately.

Dr. Arbuckle said that he had between $30 and $40 in the bank, and $3.80 in his pockets; that he owed $900 on his automobile, the balance on the furniture, $350 on a $700 lot, and had not paid his board bill for last month. All his testimony was directed toward reducing the amount of the maintenance. He did not oppose paying it, and gave no reason for separating from his wife. They lived at 407 North Eighteenth street.

Mrs. Arbucyle said on the witness stand that he refused, after their marriage in March, 1914, to pay some bills she contracted previously, and that she sold eggs to pay them. He retorted that the only bill he refused to pay was one for $280 for a piano.

Mrs. Arbuckle worked in his office previous to their marriage. She said she started on a salary of $4 a week, which later was increased to $9. She is 23 years old, and he is 31.

In rendering the decree Judge Flannigan said Arbuckle was a "man among men, but unfortunte among women."

The Human Machine

JUST as truly as the Supreme Architect of the Universe is immeasurably greater than any of His works—from the limitless realm of rolling worlds to the tiniest blade of grass on this speck of earth—so is man, the "Noblest Work of God," infinitely greater than all of his creations and achievements.

The mechanical creations and adaptations by man have always been, and will ever continue to be, the passing wonders of each separate age, and in every succeeding epoch of the race, his Divine genius has persistently penetrated the secret chambers of nature, to bring forth and harness to the wheels of the world, hitherto unknown forces; and yet, greater than all mechanical perfection attained, man, himself, is the most marvelously wonderful machine of all ages.

Think of the power, speed, capacity, efficiency and smooth operation of the human brain. Consider its infinite potentialities—the limitless wealth within its vaults for Ambition to unlock—and to spend with the inspiring knowledge that the more we use, the more we have.

Is there anything in the world more harmonious in its action — more mechanically perfect in its power, range, service, beauty, than the human eye?

Can you think of anything that serves with such exquisite delica[illegible] harmony, co-operation a[illegible] adaptability, as the hu[illegible]r?

[illegible] whirr of the flying ma[illegible] the purring of the au[illegible]ile motor, the rhythm o[illegible] song of the limited exp[illegible] compare for one moment w[illegible] the music of that pulsing motor, the heart—driving the Human Machine for 70, 90, 100—yes, and more—years without a break?

Get in touch with the idea that MOTION is the Law of the Universe, the spheres revolving in their orbits, unceasingly and relentlessly, attest this law—that the Soul of Man—his Divine Motor—has always driven—will always drive, Humanity. That the Human Machine, in its turn must transmit the light and power to run the machinery of the world—then confidently signal the engineer, "FULL SPEED AHEAD!"

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, Robert Tiedemann, who passed this life two years ago. Sadly missed by us all.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Barbara Schafer, who departed this life two years ago, Oct. 29, 1913.

Gone, but not forgotten. Sadly missed by her children.

In Memoriam.

In sad but loving memory of my dear husband, Edward A. Fox, who passed away Oct. 29, 1914. Sadly missed by wife.

MARGARET FOX.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear darling wife and mother, Margarette Rose, who departed this life one year ago, Oct. 24, 1914. The world has not been the same since you have gone. God alone knows, mamma, how much we miss you. Sadly missed by

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of Charles Hanks, who died Oct. 31, 1913.

I often sit and think of you when all alone,
For memory is the only thing that grief can call its own.

Sadly missed by wife,

MRS. JULIA HANKS.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Margaret Mattern, who died Oct. 27, 1914.

Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear mother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our mother would be called away.
'Neath our eyes she faded quickly,
Growing day by day more frail,
Bearing patiently her sufferings
Without murmur, moan or wail.

Sadly missed by her daughter.

MRS. OTTO WALLER AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Eva Strohmeier, who departed this life Oct. 31, 1914.

One sad year has passed away
And time brings no relief.
Mother we miss you more and more,
With a sad and bitter grief.
You shall never be forgotten.
Never shall your memory fade,
Loving hearts will always linger,
'Round the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed by her daughters.

PUBLIC AUCTION

SALE OF UNALLOTTED LANDS AND SURFACE OF SEGREGATED
COAL AND ASPHALT LAND AREA BELONGING TO THE CHOCTAW AND CHICKASAW TRIBES, EASTERN OKLAHOMA
BY THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

There will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at different railroad points in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations in Eastern Oklahoma, from Jan. 3, 1916, to Jan. 31, 1916, inclusive, 31,400 acres of unallotted lands and 184,800 acres of the surface of the segregated coal and asphalt lands belonging to the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes of Indians, at not less than the appraised value. No person can purchase more than 160 acres of agricultural land, nor more than 640 acres of grazing land. Residence on land not required. Bids can be submitted in person or by mail, accompanied by a certified check or bank draft for 25 per cent of the amount of the bid. Terms of sale of surface of coal and asphalt lands 25 per cent cash, 25 per cent within one year, and balance within two years from date of sale; and terms of sale of unallotted lands 25 per cent in cash at time of sale and balance in three equal annual installments of 25 per cent each, payable in one, two and three years from date of sale; all deferred payments to draw 5 per cent interest per annum from date of sale. Only the surface of the segregated coal and asphalt land area will be sold, the coal and asphalt underlying being reserved, except where the descriptive circular states that the coal and asphalt underlying will be sold with the surface. The entire estate in the unallotted lands will be sold without reservation. Where houses or other valuable improvements, not including fencing and tillage, are located on the surface of the coal and asphalt lands, the same will be sold with the land at not less than the combined appraised value, improvements to be paid for in full at time of sale. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. For maps and full printed information, communicate with the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes, Muskogee, Ok. CATO SELLS, Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

THAT LOST ARTICLE MAY NOT BE FOUND TODAY

Or tomorrow or next week. In fact, a month or more may elapse before it turns up. A little persistency may be necessary. Often the article may be unfound; often fear of prosecution or hope of more satisfactory reward may delay the restoration. Then the belated awakening of the finder's conscience explains many delays. But persistency and Post-Dispatch wants will usually recover a lost article if an honest person finds it. The service of the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau is also enlisted in behalf of advertisers. (93)

A MIRACLE

We have a preparation that will absolutely keep the steam and frost from windows, mirrors and eyeglasses. You will say it is a miracle, for, besides preventing steam and frost from appearing on the windows, which alone makes it a world beater, it will keep silver from tarnishing, will clean and polish all metals, glass and porcelain ware without leaving dust, dirt or line. It will even whiten and clean white shoes.

GUARANTEED—IT SELLS.

This little article which works so many wonders is sold to agents cheap enough for them to realize 100 per cent profit; will make you $30 to $50 weekly. Our agents in and around Chicago are doing it; you can, too; it [illegible]

MUSICAL

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

THE Interstate Normal Training School for Music Teachers, announces that a number of teachers are prepared to accept pupils in various parts of the city, teaching the newest discoveries in the pedagogy of musical instruction.

The old 'etude and exercise system is penance and torture; slow and uncertain in results, and liable to injure the health seriously by mistreating muscles and nerves. This is avoided in the new system, based on art principles advocated by Liszt and the greatest of all piano teachers; Joseffy. The pupil enjoys his music and becomes, through habits of careful study, very proficient in comparatively short time, reducing greatly the ultimate cost. Results guaranteed.

A teacher in your locality will be recommended upon application. Give this system a trial of three months; you will be satisfied and amazed at its superiority over the old methods.

Send postal to Suite 26-27 Euclid Bldg., Euclid and McPherson avs., and receive valuable booklet, "What Parents Should Know."

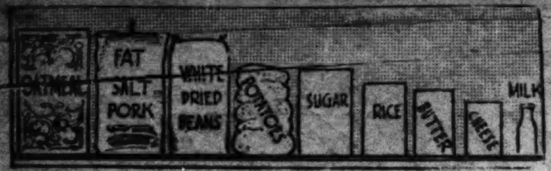
DRESSED FOR AN "ADAM AND EVE" LIFE IN THE MAINE WOODS

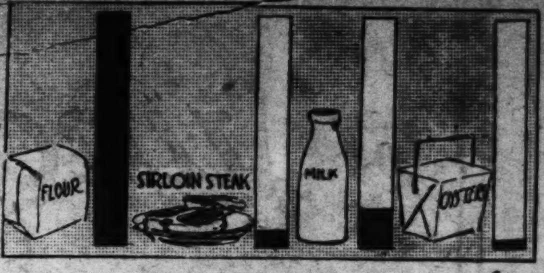
IN a garb of birchbark, and with no imp[illegible]nts save their hands, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Estes of Gray, Me., have struck deep into the Maine hinterland to make the experiment of wringing a living from the wilderness for two months. The adventurous story of their voluntary [illegible] is told on Page 3 of this issue.

Uncle Sam's Last Word on "What to Eat"



Comparative value of different articles of diet in the production of energy.

Ten cents invested in wheat flour will buy ever so much more nourishment than a similar investment in any other product—Eating frequently better than three meals a day—Salt pork superior to tenderloin beef ::



The solid, upright black line indicates the amount of nourishment one dime will buy when spent for four different foods.

THERE is almost nothing about which everybody is so enthusiastic as about food. To put it modestly, food is one of the handiest things one could possibly have around the house. People are not content with merely eating it. They like to talk about it, to write books about it, to make songs and orations about it and, most of all, to debate about it.

Nearly every individual has some particular dish or two which he will arise at midnight to defend against the claims of any gustatory rival. Nearly every man considers himself a bit of an epicure. Not a few are occasionally put into the dilemma which troubled the venerable old colored man, who, when asked whether he preferred chicken or watermelon, remarked reproachfully that it was a low-down trick to ask him to choose.

Now, at a time when all our minds are made up, severally, if not collectively, along comes the United States Government and informs us that most of us really don't know what we are talking about. Fancy that! And about food, too!

The Department of Agriculture has recently issued a bulletin on "Principles of Nutrition and Nutritive Value of Food," prepared by Dr. W. O. Atwater, special agent in charge of a nutrition investigation that has been going on for several years. Much of it appeared in bulletin form in 1906, but it has been revised and brought down to date. And the sum and substance of it is that the investigators have found that the American people have an enormous amount to learn about something of which they boasted they knew almost everything.

It shows that the average housewife is wasteful and extravagant in the kitchen and that most of us pay a high price for a choice cut of meat, when we can get a better and more valuable meat for much less money. "Unfortunately," writes Dr. Atwater, "it is too often the case that those who are most extravagant in this respect are the ones who can least afford it."

As a result of some careful tests, Dr. Atwater and his assistants have succeeded in devising a satisfactory method to determine the relative values of different foods and to determine how much one is getting for his money if he buys one article in preference to another.

He has found, for instance, that a dime's worth of wheat flour has more than 13 times the food value of a dime's worth of sirloin steak; nearly ten times the food value of a dime's worth of eggs; nearly six times the value of a dime's worth of the kind of milk one gets for 7 cents a quart, and 72 times the value of a dime's worth of oysters.

It would surprise many folk to be told that there is more nutritive value in a dime's worth of round steak than in a dime's worth of sirloin, and that a dime's worth of beef stew meat has more than three times the food value of a dime's worth of sirloin.

When it comes to saving money and getting value for the money one does spend, a little investment in cornmeal or in wheat flour will prove the greatest bargain one can get. Other articles rank as named in the following order: Oatmeal, fat salt pork, white dried beans, potatoes and sugar, rice, butter, cheese and milk, smoked ham and pork loin, mutton leg and round steak, beef shoulder, sirloin, salted codfish, eggs, fresh codfish and oysters.

The unit of measure for these comparisons is the calory. The calory is an arbitrary symbol based on the heat necessary to increase the temperature of a given amount of water by a given degree. As used in Dr. Atwater's tables, the calory represents a unit of the transformation of food into energy in the human body.

Dr. Atwater defines food as "that which, taken into the body, either builds tissue or yields energy." The elements which build tissue are called proteins. Those which are used as fuel to create energy are fats and carbohydrates. There are also some minerals, which play an important part in building up the bone structure.

The healthy body needs all of these elements. It must have a sufficient variety of food to yield them. These are the essentials, and it is merely a matter of personal selection to get them in the form in which they will most please the palate or suit the pocketbook.

In arriving at his values, Dr. Atwater and Prof. Rosa conducted a long series of experiments at Wesleyan University. They built an apparatus they called a respiration calorimeter. It was a copper-walled chamber, 4 feet long, 4 feet wide and 6 feet 4 inches high. It contained a folding bed, chair, table, appliances for muscular work and a telephone.

Carefully selected men were picked for the tests.

These men were put inside the chamber and kept there for many days. There were arrangements to pass food into them and to keep a constantly circulating stream of air. After it was breathed this air was carefully measured, weighed and tested to see what particles of waste matter it had received. All food was weighed and analyses were made of all waste matter. Records were made of the energy given off from the body as heat and muscular work. In this way it was possible to determine with great accuracy the effect different conditions of nourishment have on the human body.

Many women make the mistake of buying the most expensive cuts of meats when others, much cheaper, are more nutritious.

Here are some of the things the investigation disclosed:

Though there may be difference among abnormal persons, for the great majority of people in good health the ordinary food materials—meats, fish, eggs, milk, butter, cheese, sugar, flour, meal and potatoes and other vegetables—make a fitting diet; and the main question is to use them in the kinds and proportions fitted to the actual needs of the body.

The theory is advanced from time to time that one or two meals a day are preferable to the three commonly served in this country. The best physiological evidence implies that moderate quantities of food, taken at moderate intervals, are more easily and completely digested by ordinary people than larger quantities taken at long intervals.

An ounce of protein or fat from the tenderloin of beef is no more nutritious than that from a round or shoulder, but it costs considerably more.

Scientific research, interpreting the observations of practical life, indicates that a fourfold mistake in food economy is very commonly made. First, the costlier kinds of food are used when the less expensive are just as nutritious and can be made nearly or quite as palatable. Secondly, the diet is apt to be one-sided, in that foods are used which furnish relatively too much of the fuel ingredients and too little of the flesh-forming materials. Thirdly, excessive quantities of food are used, part of the excess is eaten and often to the detriment of health; part is thrown away in the table and kitchen wastes. Finally, serious errors in cooking are committed.

It is the poor man's money that is most injudiciously spent in the market and the poor man's food that is most badly cooked at home.

A common mistake in purchasing food is in buying the more expensive kinds when cheaper ones would serve the purpose just as well. This is often done under the impression that there is some peculiar virtue in the costlier materials and that economy in the diet is detrimental to dignity and welfare.

There is frequently a desire to economize, but a lack of knowledge of the best method of doing so. Many a housekeeper who sincerely tried to do the best for those to be provided for, but whose every cent must tell, buys eggs at 25 cents a dozen, or sirloin steak at 20 cents a pound, when, for the same amount of money, it would be possible to get twice as much nourishment from a cheaper cut of meat, which, with a little skill in preparation and cooking, could be made into a tasty dish such as persons in far easier circumstances would not hesitate to set upon their tables.

The difficulty is the ignorance of the simple principles of nutrition. That ignorance results in a great waste of money. The maxim "that the best is the cheapest," as popularly understood to apply to the higher-priced materials, is not true of food. The larger part of the price of the costlier foods is paid for appearance, flavor or rarity. While the dearer articles are often more pleasing to the palate, and are sometimes more easily cooked or possess a finer flavor, they are no more digestible or nutritious than the cheaper ones. People who can afford them may be justified in buying them, but for persons in good health and with limited means they are not economical, and often increase the cost of food out of all proportions to the nutrients furnished.

In the course of some dietary studies made in one of the poorer districts of Chicago it was found that a woman, whose husband was out of work and whose family was living on a few cents a day, bought lettuce, an article so innutritious that, at least when out of season and high in price, it is a luxury even for the rich, while she had to do without nutritious food. No one can object to the use of lettuce, or any other wholesome food, when the purse allows, but it is pitifully bad economy in such cases to buy foods which simply please the palate while the body goes without proper nourishment.

The plain, substantial, standard food materials, like the cheaper cuts of meat and fish, milk, flour, cornmeal, oatmeal, beans and potatoes, are as digestible and nutritious and as well fitted for the nourishment of people in good health as are any of the costlier materials.

The Heart of England at War in Three-Line Paragraphs

IN the great tragedy being enacted in England, what are the little human units doing? If you wait for the censor to lift the ban which might permit you to know, you will never find out, but the most perfect of machines sometimes slips a cog. Buried in the personal columns of the London newspapers are little paragraphs that have slipped past the censor. They are neglected, overlooked, but in them is revealed the heart of the British nation. Stories of noble sacrifice, hero admiration, the warrior spirit, and the eternal love of woman for the fighting men are revealed. Look at this one from the London Times:

> LADY, fiance killed, will gladly marry and give up life to care and happiness of man blinded or otherwise incapacitated by the war. Box Y-[illegible], The Times.

The women of England cannot fight, but they are doing their part in encouraging those who can. Wounded soldiers are idolized; Cupid as a love director is in the discard; the measure of a man's worth is his service to his country. Here are a few personals that illustrate the point, also from the London Times:

> WILL lonely colonial soldier (gentleman), at the front or otherwise, who wishes for correspondence, write to advertiser (lady). Box L-272, The Times.

> LADY, middle-aged, social position, would willingly correspond with lonely officers. Box L-1[illegible], The Times.

> WOULD a wounded officer, one who is lame and unable to get about much, like gay and sympathetic letters from lady living in the country? Box L-290, The Times.

"Gay and sympatheic letters"—the line itself is enough to cheer any worrying wounded officer. The following will show how readily the responses come:

> BOX B-701 has received over 100 letters and regrets being unable to answer them all.

In the little birth notice below is a volume of sentiment. Baby McLaughlin was born on Sept. 8, and his father was killed in action on May 18:

> McLAUGHLIN—On the 8th Sept., to the wife of the late Edmund C. McLaughlin, Lieut., Sixth City of London Rifles (killed in action, France, 18th May), a son.

The personal columns are literally crowded with appeals from mothers, wives and sweethearts who want to know how their dear ones died. They are self-explanatory:

> A MOTHER is anxious for news of the last hours of 9898 Lance-Corporal Thomas Pace, London Rifle Brigade, who died of wounds, Ypres, 84 Field Ambulance, Belgium, 4th May. S. P., 98, Holland-road, London, W.

> IF any of the survivors of the Transport Royal [illegible] can give any information attending the [illegible]tances of the loss of Major Cuthbert Brom[illegible] First Battalion, Lancashire Fusiliers, in the [illegible]king of that ship, his mother, L[illegible] Bromley, of Sutton Corner, Seaford, Sussex, will be deeply grateful.

In the personals for a single day we find young soldiers anxious to start for the front, but without equipment and anxious to buy revolvers and other weapons from disabled officers; one who is invalided and wants a dog for a pet; a third who is anxious to get to the front, but wants to find someone to care for his pet dogs before he goes, and many other human situations:

> CHAPLAIN at the front desires use of small car, also a gramophone and records for the men. Box L-298, The Times.

> WILL anyone sell cheaply Lieutenant going front, revolver, periscope, prismatic compass, flash light, mackintosh with detachable lining, mackintosh sheets? Box M-84, The Times.

> WILL any kind person give, or lend for the duration of the war, a piano for use of wounded soldiers at the Brook War Hospital, Woolwich? Tobacco, games and books are also greatly needed.

> WILL any disabled officer sell army revolver, compass, and binoculars, cheap to young officer? Box 285, Harrod's Advertising Agency, 32 Hans-Crescent, S. W.

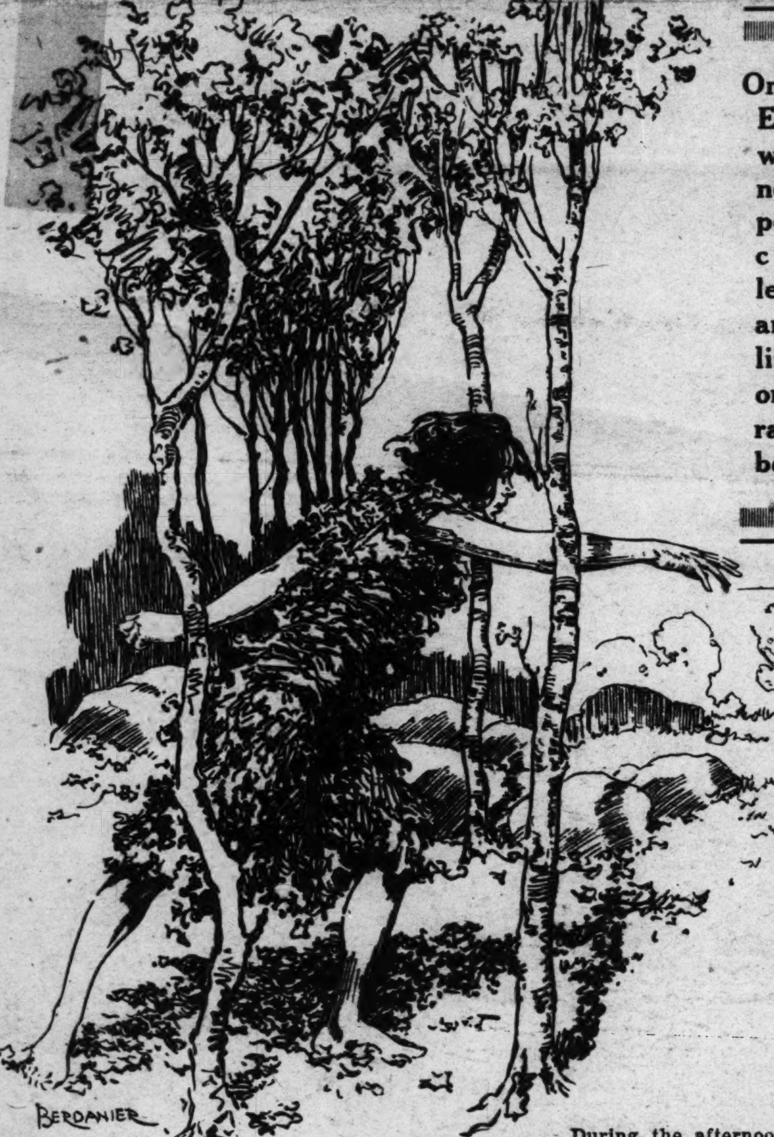
Adam and Eve of the Maine Woods

On adventure bent, Walter Estes and plucky young wife strike into wilderness without even a pocketknife or a match, clothe themselves in leaves and birchbark, and duplicate primitive life of long ago—Subsist on broiled porcupine and rabbit and ferns steamed between layers of moss



"She set herself for a throw, and a rock went whizzing from her hand."

Estes in his rude shelter after a week in the forest. He is dressed in birchbark thatched with pine fronds.

IN quest of adventure, Walter F. Estes, a naturalist, of Gray, Me., and his plucky wife have gone on a trip into the four-thousandth century before the Christian era. They are making the experiment of living for two months in the wilderness as the old Biblical legend tells us Adam and Eve lived—not during the idyllic period of the Garden of Eden, but in the time of struggle, toil and hardship that followed their expulsion from Paradise.

On Oct. 1 the modern couple turned their backs upon the Eden of comfort and ease built upon thousands of centuries of civilization, and struck into the forests north of Bingham. With the exception of light knickerbockers and shirts, they were as empty-handed as the parents of the human race when the flaming sword drove them forth into the world. They bore neither food, weapons nor implements, not even a pocketknife or a match. With only their hands and wits they undertook to clothe and feed and warm themselves and sustain their lives until Dec. 1. One month of the period has now elapsed, and their success in combatting the difficulties of primitive life has been so remarkable that the prospect of the second month, despite the onset of cold weather, presents no terrors.

After plunging for many miles into the forest, the first care of the adventurers was to discard their last relic of the civilized world—the clothes they had worn when leaving Bingham. Like Adam and Eve, they gathered leaves, and with stalks of grass as thread, wove them together in long strips. Using roots as belts, they draped the strips of leaves about their waists and shoulders. For their feet they made moccasins of birchbark.

But the garb of leaves was quickly torn to pieces in the rough going through the trees and shrubs, and they were compelled to devise a tougher kind of apparel. Using sharp stones as knives, they stripped large pieces of bark from birch trees. In the center they cut holes for their heads to pass, and laced up the side with grass, leaving armholes. Then they collected a quantity of pine foliage, and using grass for thread, covered the bark with it, thus making the garments warm. The birchbark moccasins proved so unsatisfactory that they determined to go barefoot.

The first night was one such as they hope will never be repeated. Estes was attempting to build a shelter, when a chill rain began falling. It was necessary to start a fire. Having no matches, they were forced to have resort to the method of savages, that of rubbing wood together until friction kindles a spark. After a long search, Estes found in a sheltered spot enough dry wood for his task.

Across a dry log he placed a stick of hardwood, and on top of this a smaller log. He then took hold of each end of the hardwood and began rubbing it rapidly back and forth. After 20 minutes of heartbreaking work, the friction began to char both the top and bottom logs. Then Estes began to labor in earnest—the eye could scarcely see the limb as it flew back and forth. Suddenly he stopped and reached for a handful of dry leaves ready close at hand, meanwhile blowing on a spark that had appeared on the bottom log. A leaf placed against the spark curled up and then burst into flame; soon there was a pile of blazing leaves. Twigs and then limbs were added, and the fire was built.

All this had taken so much time that building a shelter was not to be thought of that night, so Estes made his wife lie down and covered her over with boughs beside the fire, which he remained awake to replenish. Once he dropped asleep and rolled over into the coals. His shoulder was severely blistered, but he treated it with balsam gum taken from a tree, after the primitive method of healing.

During the afternoon Estes had killed a porcupine with a rock and caught some frogs in a pond with snares. Their first supper was broiled porcupine and frogs' legs, eaten without salt or pepper. The porcupine meat was tender enough, but had a strong smell and taste of musk. For vegetables, they steamed ferns between layers of damp moss, placed on the coals, and found the resulting viand more palatable, they declared, than dandelion greens or spinach. When their palates demanded salt, they found afterwards that they could obtain this condiment by licking rocks in the creek which had been covered during high water and still retained a saline taste.

The hardships of the first night were unable to daunt the spirit of Mrs. Estes, although it was a difficult position for a woman. It will be remembered that in the fall of 1913 Joseph Knowles, a Boston painter of wild life, entered the Maine forest to prove, by living there two months, that he could cut himself off from civilization and still satisfy his wants for food and raiment. However, what a man can accomplish with ease in the way of physical strain is likely to be far more telling upon more tenderly nurtured woman.

But Mrs. Estes is a trained athlete, as a visitor can bear witness who tramped into the woods to the camp about a week after they had settled there. As he approached, her green-clad figure arose from the ground and motioned him to stand still. She began to whistle a soft, compelling note, gliding forward a few steps. Following her eye, the visitor beheld a rabbit sitting up on its haunches and listening intently.

Walter F. Estes and Mrs. Estes in street attire, just before entering the woods.

Suddenly the woman set herself for a throw and a rock went whizzing from her hand. It is said that most women cannot throw straight, but Mrs. Estes was an exception. Her missile flew direct to its mark. The rabbit was struck head over heels, but recovered and tried to run. It could not, for one hind leg was broken. Estes came at his wife's call and administered the coup de grace with a stick of wood.

"Mighty glad we got that rabbit," said Estes. "I was afraid it would be porcupine again for supper."

The couple are not attempting to hide from the world and do not shun visitors, whom on the contrary they welcome as offering opportunity to prove that what they tell about their life in the wilds is true. But only a few persons have sought them out, for the fatigue of the long journey to their camp is something which only professional guides can contemplate with equanimity. It means a hike along forest trails and working one's way through thickets of shrubs, far not only from railways but from roads which a horse could travel.

On the second day they set themselves to work to build a shelter. Two spruce trees standing close together were chosen as uprights. A sapling was pulled up by the roots and lashed across the two trees with willow withes, the crosspole being about five feet from the ground. Other uprooted saplings were laid slanting from the crosspole on either side, so as to form a sort of gable. Layer after layer of spruce boughs was banked against the sides and one end of the structure, the other being left open. In front of the door a hole was dug for a fireplace. A final thatch of birchbark made the shelter rainproof. Logs were rolled near at hand to replenish the fire, as this cost too much labor to light to permit it to go out. Although the air is chill outside, within the shelter it is always warm and cozy.

As a fisherman, Estes has contrived traps with which he succeeds in supplying a daily catch of trout for breakfast. His snares are buckets made of birchbark laced together with grass and fastened between two rocks in the shallow bed of the creek flowing near the camp. Holes in the bottom let the current through. A lid of bark covers half of the opening, to which two large wings of bark form a runway. At intervals along the wings worms are attached with grass strings.

The trout, looking for a meal, follows the enticing line of worms until it gets inside the bucket. This is so tilted that just enough water flows over the half-lid to let the fish swim in. When the trout finds the bottom of the trap blocking its exit, it turns to escape the way it came. But to the inside of the semi-circular lid is attached a lip of bark. The fish, thrusting its nose against this lip of bark, pushes it up and, therefore, cannot get out. Estes has taken as many as 10 fine trout in one morning from six traps; and when they are cleaned, wrapped in wet moss and placed upon the coals, the result is a breakfast fit for a monarch.

Mrs. Estes had bobbed her hair before going into the forest, but found that her locks were still too long, as some of them persisted in falling in her eyes, much to her annoyance. She demanded of her husband that he cut off the offending hair. He had no knife or scissors, but in the emergency invented a kind of jungle barbering that was equal to the task. He selected a sharp-edged rock, and having his wife lean her head against a tree, held the hair with one hand against the wood while he chopped away at it with his stone tool. The hair came off, but not without many squeals from Mrs. Estes.

The onset of cold weather, which begins early in the Maine latitudes, warned Estes that he would be compelled to find warmer clothing than the birchbark dress which he and his wife wore. So he made and set deadfalls through the woods, in the hope of snaring a deer, the skin of which would provide furs for their bodies and cozy moccasins for their bare feet. But up to the last reports he had not killed one, and was thinking of transferring his camp to Moxie Mountain, where he thought he would find many deer.

Estes' hope is not only to support himself and his wife with their own hands in the woods, but to lay up a handsome bank account against his return to civilization on Dec. 1. As a naturalist, he lays claim to

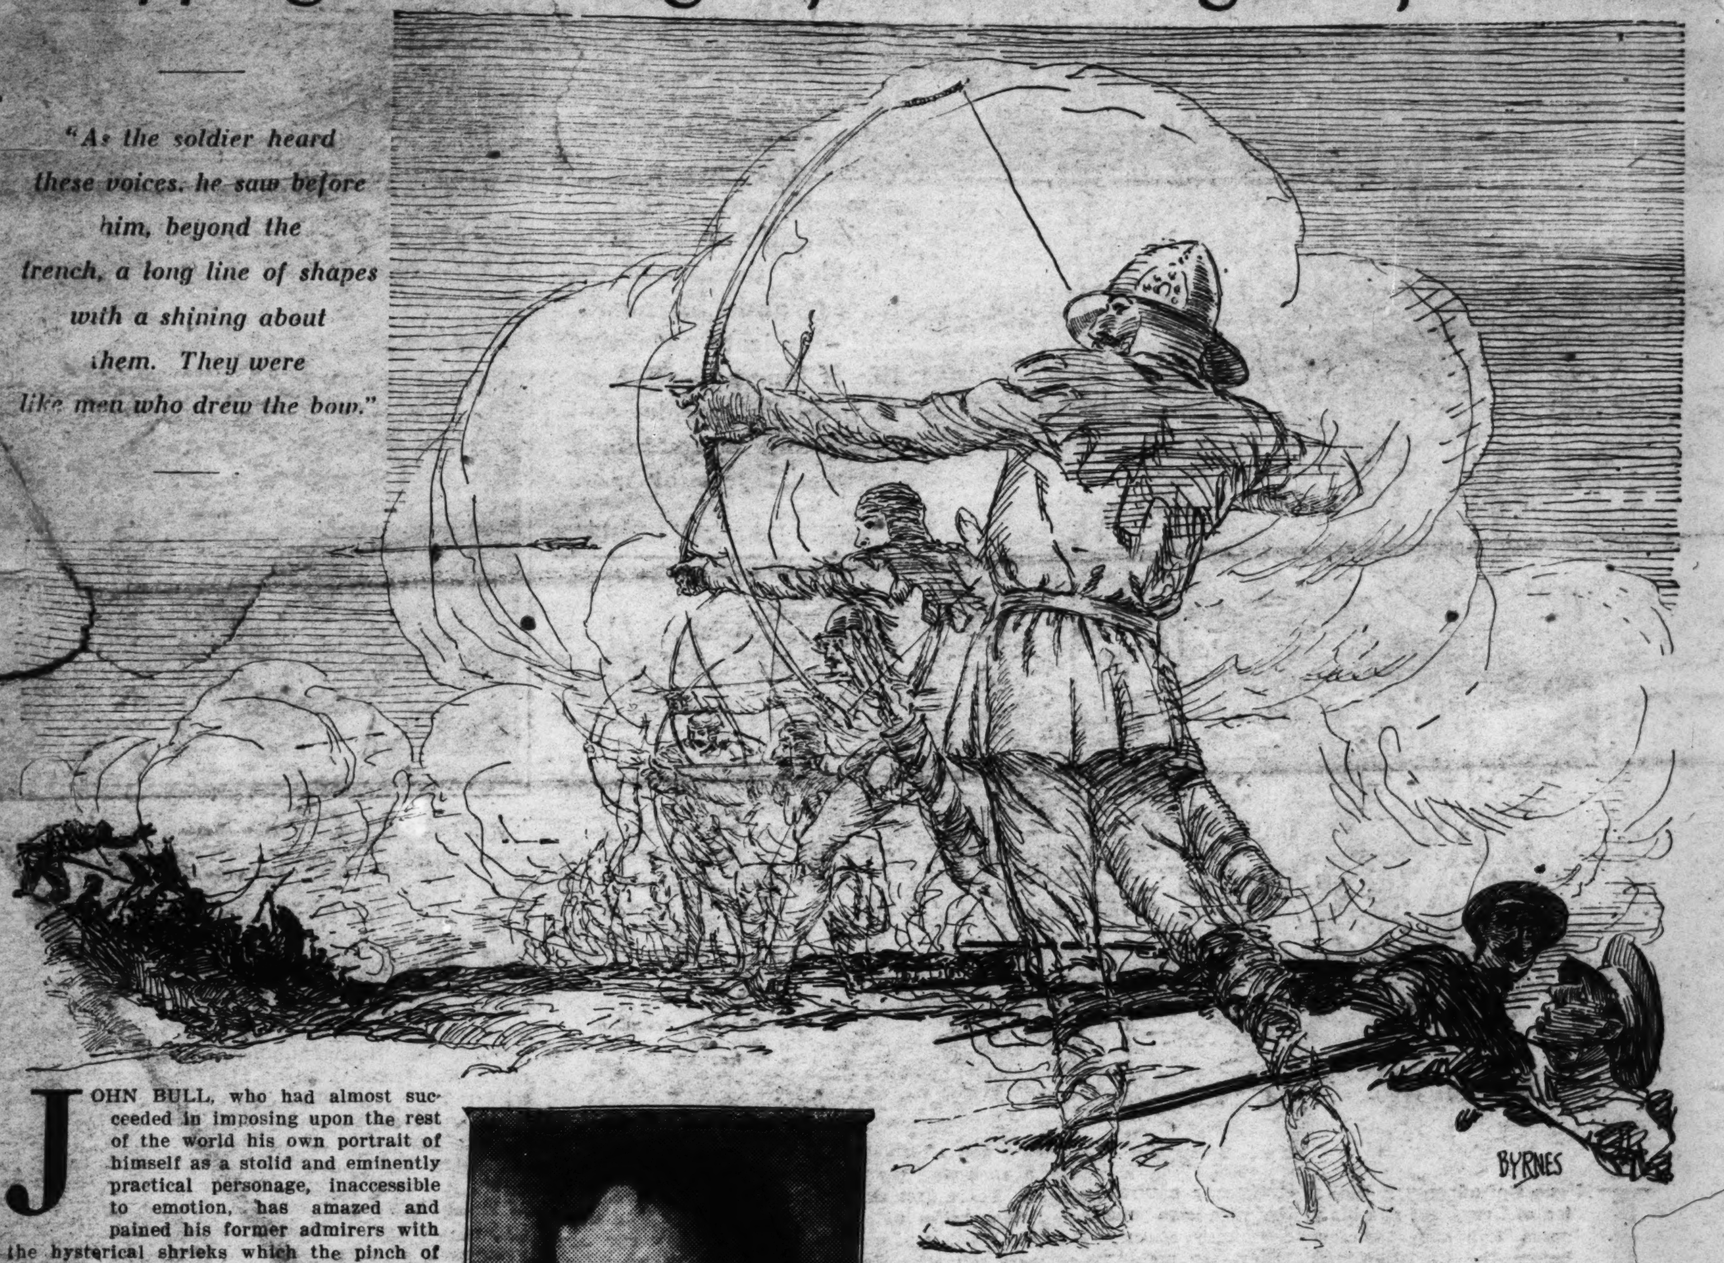
Clipping the Wings of "The Angels of Mons"

"As the soldier heard these voices, he saw before him, beyond the trench, a long line of shapes with a shining about them. They were like men who drew the bow."



Thousands of Britons believe troop of celestial apparitions saved English army from destruction on retreat to Paris, affidavits have been sworn to by alleged eye-witnesses, and clergy preach it was instance of divine intervention against the Germans—But Arthur Machen proves origin of legend was fiction story he wrote a year ago, with "Bowmen of Agincourt" instead of angels :: :: :: ::

ARTHUR MACHEN,
Poet and mystic, who fears he may become famous as creator of a "phony" myth.

JOHN BULL, who had almost succeeded in imposing upon the rest of the world his own portrait of himself as a stolid and eminently practical personage, inaccessible to emotion, has amazed and pained his former admirers with the hysterical shrieks which the pinch of war has wrung from the portly old gentleman. And nothing else has been quite so astounding as the piteous avidity with which he has gulped down what has now grown into the legend of "The Angels of Mons."

In the country of those redoubtable slayers of the dragon of superstition, Huxley and Spencer; in the nation considered above all others sceptical and matter-of-fact; in the era of electricity and science—thousands of Englishmen today believe with all the fury of medieval faith that when Tommy Atkins was in his last straits at Mons, on the great retreat to Paris last fall, he was saved from destruction by the apparition of St. George, patron of England, and the bowmen of Agincourt, whose clouds of arrows put the Germans to flight.

More than a hundred nurses in the French hospitals have made sworn affidavits that stories of the phantom reinforcements were told them by wounded British soldiers, who pretended to have witnessed the portent. Spiritualists and practitioners of the occult have hailed the "revelation" with peans of triumph. The bishops and clergy of the Anglican Church have in many cases indorsed the "miracle" as an act of divine intervention; and some have rebuked the scoffers for "seeking to deprive the nation of spiritual consolation in its darkest hours." Sermons innumerable have been preached upon the subject in the parish churches; and the newspapers, both lay and clerical, have teemed for weeks with the most credulous accounts of the blessed succor of St. George and his supernatural yeomanry.

The story in its most marvelous guise has even penetrated into so pretentious a journal on this side of the Atlantic as The North American Review, which prints an article called "Phantom Armies Seen in France," by the Hon. Mrs. St. John Mildmay. She begins by saying that "literature and history abound with impressive evidence of the intrusion of the phantom world into the affairs of men," and then relates the story as it came to her in a "graphic letter," presumably written from the front. Of this "letter," more anon.

"It occurred during the retreat of the 80,000 on that most awful day of that awful time," she quotes, "when ruin and disaster came so near that their shadow fell over London so far away, and without any certain news the hearts of men failed them and grew faint, as if the agony of their brothers on the battlefield had entered into their souls. Three hundred thousand Germans in arms with all their artillery swelled like a flood against the little English army, and not only was it a time of danger, not merely of defeat, but of utter annihilation. The courage of our gallant men did not fail them when the German guns thundered against that little force of 1000 or so who held the crucial position.

"The men joked about the shells and found funny names for them, and greeted them with music hall songs. The climax seemed to have been reached, but a seven-times heated hell of the enemy's onslaught fell upon them, rending brother from brother. At that very moment they saw from their trenches a tremendous host moving against these lines. Five hundred of the 1000 remained, and as far as they could see the German infantry was pressing on against them, column by column, a gray world of men, 10,000 of them, as it appeared afterwards.

"There was no hope at all. Some of them shook hands. One man improvised a new version of the battle song, 'Tipperary,' ending, 'and we shan't get there.' And they all went on firing steadily. The officers pointed out that such an opportunity for fancy shooting might never occur again; the Germans dropped line after line, while the few machine guns did their best. Everyone knew it was of no use. The dead gray bodies lay in companies and battalions, but others came on and on, swarming and advancing from beyond and beyond.

"'World without end, Amen,' said one of the British soldiers, with some irrelevance, as he took aim and fired. Then he remembered a vegetarian restaurant in London, where he had once or twice eaten queer dishes of cutlets made of lentils and nuts that pretended to be steaks. On all the plates in this restaurant a figure of St. George was printed in blue, with the motto, Adsit Anglis Sanctus Georgius. May St. George be a present help to England! The soldier happened to know Latin and other useless things, so now, as he fired at the gray advancing mass, 300 yards away, he uttered the pious vegetarian motto.

"He went on firing to the end, till at last Bill on his right had to clout him cheerfully on the head to make him stop, pointing out as he did so that the King's ammunition cost money and was not lightly to be wasted in drilling fancy patterns into dead Germans.

"For as the Latin scholar uttered his invocation he felt something between a shudder and an electric shock pass through his body. The roar of the battle died down in his ears to a gentle murmur, and instead of it, he says, he heard a great voice louder than a thunder peal, crying, 'Array! Array!' His heart grew hot as a burning coal, then it grew cold as ice within him, for it seemed to him a tumult of voices answered to this summons. He heard or seemed to hear thousands shouting:

> "St. George! St. George!
> "Ha! Messire, Ha! Sweet Saint! grant us good deliverance!
> "St. George for Merrie England!
> "Harow! Harow! Monseigneur St. George, succor us. Ha! St. George!
> "A long bow, and a strong bow, Knight of Heaven, aid us!

"As the soldier heard these voices, he saw before him, beyond the trench, a long line of shapes with a shining about them. They were like men who drew the bow, and with another shout their cloud of arrows flew singing and whirring through the air towards the German host. The other men in the trenches were firing all the while. They had no hope, but they aimed just as if they had been shooting at Bisley.

"Suddenly one of these lifted up his voice in plain English. 'Gawd help us!' he bellowed to the man next him, 'but we're blooming marvels. Look at those gray gentlemen! Look at them! They're not going down in dozens or hundreds—in thousands it is! Look, look! There's a regiment gone while I'm talking to ye!'

"'Shut it,' the other soldier bellowed, taking aim, 'what are ye talking about?' But he gulped with astonishment even while he spoke, for indeed the gray men were falling by the thousands. The English could hear the guttural scream of their revolvers as they shot, and line after line crashed to the earth. And all the while the Latin-bred soldier heard the cry: 'Harow! Harow! Monseigneur! Dear Saint! Quick to our aid! St. George help us!'

"The singing arrows darkened the air, the heathen hordes melted before them. 'More machine guns!' Bill yelled to Tom. 'Don't hear them!' Tom yelled back, 'but thank God, anyway, they have got it in the neck.'

"In fact, there were 10,000 dead German soldiers left before that salient of the British army, and consequently—no Sedan. In Germany, a country ruled by scientific principles, the great General Staff decided that the contemptible English must have employed turpenite shells, as no wounds were discernible on the bodies of the dead soldiers. But the man who knew what nuts tasted like when they called themselves steak, knew also that St. George had brought his Agincourt Bowmen to help the English."

This is indeed a preternatural and eloquent fable, such as some lively old monk of the Middle Ages might have composed to while away the tedium of his cell. But now uprises in bitter wrath one Arthur Machen, English mystic, poet and philosopher, with proof that this "letter" is taken word for word from a fiction story, a work of pure-imagination, which he wrote more than a year ago and which was published as fiction in the London Evening News of Sept. 29, 1914.

Machen, being the author of several profound books, such as "The House of Souls" and "The Hill of Dreams," is sourly sardonic over the scandalous success of the bit of fiction which he considers one of his most trivial works. For years he labored unrecognized in the field of philosophy and mysticism. But in an evil moment, he dashes off a fantasy, drawn entirely from his imagination, calls it "The Bowmen of Mons," and sees what happens.

The story is seized upon as fact by the English reader. It grows into a legend, and is sent all around the world as proof that the spiritual powers are fighting on England's side, and that her enemies are allied with the powers of darkness. Clergymen take it as a theme for patriotic sermons. Scores of British soldiers are money, such as

BOB, a two-year-old water spaniel belonging to August Halbruegge, an innkeeper on the Beschertown road, two miles north of St. Charles, Mo., could have a job any time in the United States Secret Service at $6 a day. A Secret Service man says so. For Bob is in his way a financial genius, and an unerring authority upon modern numismatics. If all human beings were gifted with Bob's talents, counterfeiters would have to go out of business. By means of a sort of sixth sense, the dog is able infallibly to distinguish bad money from good, and it makes no difference whether it is specie or currency.

Bob could get a job in the Secret Service through his unerring expertness as a detector of bad money.

Coins and bills are all the same to this accomplished animal, and he winnows good metal from bad and good currency from bad with equal nonchalance. If Bob were riding on street cars, the conductor could never succeed in slipping over in his change a Canadian quarter or dime. He rejects not only counterfeit money but foreign money as well. Only Uncle Sam's money passes current with him. No one can persuade him that an English shilling, or a German mark, or a Mexican peso is legal tender. He will pass up a Canadian £5 note and pounce gleefully upon an humble American dollar. Neither will this canine connoisseur accept a coin with a hole in it, or one that has been mutilated in any other way.

The only talent as yet beyond him is that of differentiating between a good gold coin and an imitation. But Halbruegge says this is because so little gold comes into his place that Bob hasn't had a fair chance to make a scientific study of it.

August C. Halbruegge, owner and trainer of the water spaniel with a genius for finance.

Trained as a hunting dog, Halbruegge being a keen sportsman and his place a rendezvous for members of hunting clubs in the vicinity, Bob learned early in life to fetch. This was the starting point of his development into an eligible for the Secret Service.

Halbruegge often entertained his customers by throwing money on the floor and ordering the dog to retrieve it. The guests themselves put the dog through similar tricks, sometimes throwing down brass telephone chips along with nickels, both being alike in size. Halbruegge said his dog's discriminatory powers first manifested themselves when he noticed that the animal would refuse to bring the chips to him but never failed to fetch the nickels. From this feat it was not many steps to his larger attainments.

"Now," said Halbruegge, "that dog has more sense than I have. I have taken in lots of bad money, but he never has."

A phrenologist would be impressed by these canine lineaments, indicating the sagacity and prudence of a banker.

"He [illegible] lolling and eyes laughing, [illegible] got 'em all, boss.'"

When a Post-Dispatch reporter, having provided himself with several counterfeit coins, went out to Halbruegge's tavern to put the dog through a test, Bob was in his nest under the bar. The mission was explained, several good coins were mixed with the bad and the mixture thrown on the floor in front of the bar.

The bad money consisted of two counterfeit silver dollars, a half dollar, two quarters and two dimes. In the mixture also was a good dime with a hole in it, and Canadian, German, Greek and Mexican coins. Halbruegge said, in a low, ordinary tone:

"Bob, there's money out there. Go get it."

There was a scraping of the dog's nails on the wood floor and he scrambled around the end of the bar. Catching sight of the coins on the floor, he raised himself on his hind legs, brought his fore feet down among the coins, and scattered them. Then he began picking them up in his teeth.

The first he let fall and picked up another. This, too, was dropped and a third taken up. It passed the test. The dog turned, trotted behind the bar, lifted his big, brown, intelligent eyes to his master's face and waited until he held out his hand, when the coin was dropped into it.

"More money out there yet; go get it," commanded Bob's owner, and the dog went back. The performance was repeated. Several bad coins were picked up, but not until he found a good one did the dog carry it to his master. He persevered until he had found them all; then, with tongue lolling out and "laughing," he looked up at Halbruegge as much as to say:

"Well, boss, I guess I've got 'em all."

He had. Every coin in the possession of the proprietor was perfectly good United States money that could be spent anywhere. Those on the floor wouldn't pass muster with anybody who would take a second look at them. Bob resumed his place under the bar.

A "phony" $20 note, a Canadian $5 bill and a United States paper dollar were produced, rolled into wads separately and tossed on the floor. Halbruegge repeated his command.

The dog scrambled out as before, dived into the money and worried it with his teeth. The first he chanced to pick up was the "phony" note. He dropped it in scorn, with a shake of his head. The next was [illegible] bill, but he would have none of it. Then he picked up the American dollar, hesitated an instant as if to make sure, and trotted back with it.

"Get my hat," was Halbruegge's next command.

The hat was hanging on a horn of a deer head attached to the wall above a door to the left of the ba To the left of the door was a low ice box. The d without an instant's hesitation, leaped upon the got upon his hind legs and reached for the hat with his mouth. It was a long stretch, but he finally brought it triumphantly down.

Hidden things present no obstacles to this animal. He was taken into a small cafe and soda parlor next to the buffet, the door closed on him, and a member of the party placed a half dollar at the side of a clock on the wall opposite the bar. The dog was brought back into the room and again told that there was "money out there." He explored the floor first, nosed around all the tables and chairs in the room and peered unde stove. He looked at the crowd, gave a little whine eagerness, and circled around the room several tim At last he jumped upon a chair under the clock, reach up with his forepaws and head and took the money down.

Money had been hidden from him on this clock before, which probably explains why he found it so readily, but the next feat was a new one and removed any suspicion of "trick" from the dog's exploits. A coin was placed under a brick against the rear door of the room. It took the dog a little longer to find this piece, but after he had looked in all the nooks and corners of the room he finally pawed the brick aside and picked the coin up.

At no time, during his detection of coins or any subsequent exhibition did the dog's master make a sign to the animal or speak a word except to say: "Go get it."

After Bob had gone through his paces he received his reward. A penny was thrown on the floor and Halbruegge said:

"There's yours, Bob. Take it in and spend it."

The dog got the penny in his teeth, dashed for the door of the soda parlor, bounced against it, and whined until it was opened. Then he bounded into the room, placed his forepaws on the counter, laid the penny down, and waited in this attitude until Halbruegge reached into a box, extracted a cracker and placed it in his mouth.

The ordinary tricks of dogs are mere child's play to this spaniel. He plays dead, rolls over and sits up at a word. Among the things Halbruegge has trained him to remember is to never go into the road which passes in front of the tavern. The highway is a favorite one for automobiles and Bob's brother, which, Halbruegge claims, was a smarter dog, had an encounter with an automobile out there one night, which resulted in the dog's becoming a total loss. Not even the master himself can coax Bob to cross that road.

Several instances of Bob being a real service to his master are related. A party of motorists stopped at the inn for refreshments one night. After they had had them they threw the money, 40 cents, into the road and went on. Halbruegge searched, but all he could find was a quarter and four pennies. He went back into his place, called his dog and said: "Bob, money out there; get it." The dog dashed out.

Presently Bob returned with a penny in his teeth, but the owner sent him back with the admonition "Mo out there." The second search resulted in the dog's returning proudly with a dime.

Bob, too, while not exactly taking the place of a alarm clock, is infallible in making one efficacious. H sleeps at night in the same room with his master, and if Halbruegge is slow in responding to the summons of the bell, it is but a short time until he suffers the di comfort of having the bedclothes pulled from him.

Bob's sole ambition in life seems to be to hunt duc with his master, sleep on his soft bed under the ba and exploit his tricks for the benefit of new-foun friends. But if the Secret Service did not appeal his canine tastes, he might win fortune and fame vaudeville. For in addition to the tricks of the ordi performing dogs, he has his gift of detecting felt money. Besides, between acts, he might be in the box office, warning the cashier if anyo to pay his way in with phony coins or bills.

ving now completed the task of telephoning to Murray Hill several thousand and something, I'm ready to join you at luncheon. I'm glad I telephoned. I won't have to spend the afternoon doing it now and, besides, I feel so triumphant. I got through this time without forgetting to get a nickel first. I usually go into one of those wooden overcoats and go through all the agonies of elbowing my way through half a dozen centrals into someone's ear several miles away, and then discover I haven't anything but a half dollar. Then I have to stop and begin all over again.

Telephoning is one of the prices you have to pay to live in a metropolis, Jim. I suppose it will always hurt me to pay a nickel for telephoning. Seems like paying for a lungful of air—and bad air at that. Coming as I do from the simple bosom of the nation, where talk over the wires is so cheap that you sometimes have to wait half an hour while two women are planning a church social over your line, I can't seem to resign myself to paying the price of a street car ride every time I breathe a few sentiments over the telephone.

Now the street cars never fail to dazzle me. They are a wonderful bargain. When we are too tired to walk in Homeburg, we have to pay at least 50 cents for a horse from the livery stable, unless some automobile is going our way. Nothing is more pleasant to me than to slip a nickel to a street-car conductor and ride 10 miles on it. But when we want to use a telephone, do we go through all this ceremony of dropping a nickel into a set of chimes? Not much. My bill at home at cents per telephone call would be more than my income. Why, many a time I've called up as many as people in the west part of town to know whether the red glow in the sky was the sunset or the rolling mills at Paynesville burning down! And almost every day I telephone McMuggins, the druggist, to collar a small boy and send up an Eltarvia cigar. If that call cost me 5 cents, I would be practically smoking 10-cent cigars, and all Homeburg would regard me with suspicion.

I suppose it will be a hundred years before we get over saying, "Great invention, isn't it?" every time we have finished a satisfactory session over the telephone. But I n't think you city people realize how much of an ention it is. Of course, the telephone is more im- tant in New York than it is in Homeburg. If you to go back to the old-fashioned stationary messenger boy to do your business here, a good share of the city would have to close out at a sacrifice.

You do things with your telephones which dazzle us entirely, like talking into parlor cars, calling up steamships, buying a railroad and saying airily, "Charge it," and tossing a few hectic words over to Pittsburg or Cincinnati at $5 per remark, as casually as I would stop in and ask Postmaster Flint why in thunder the Chicago papers were late again—and that is about as casual as anything I know of.

I'm willing to admit that your telephones are much more wonderful than ours, if only because of the amount of money they can get out of you without causing revolutions and indignation meetings. Why, they tell me that business firms here think nothing of paying $100 a year for a telephone! At home once, when we tried to raise the farmer lines from 50 cents to a dollar a month, we almost had to fortify the town. I take off my hat to a telephone which can collect $100 a year from its user without using thumbscrews. It must have more ways of working for you than I have ever dreamed of.

No, the telephone in Homeburg is a very ordinary thing, and we could get along without it quite nicely as far as exertion is concerned, it being only a mile from end to end of the town. But if we had to do without our telephone girls we'd turn the whole town into a lodge of sorrow and refuse to be comforted. I know of no grander invention than the country town telephone girl. She's not only our servant and master, but she's our watch dog, guardian, memorandum book, guide, philosopher and family friend.

When our telephone can't give us convenience enough, she supplies the lack. When brains at both ends are scarce, she dumps hers into the pot; and when the poor, overworked instrument falls down on any task, she takes up the job. She not only gives our telephone a voice, but she gives it feet and hands and something to think with.

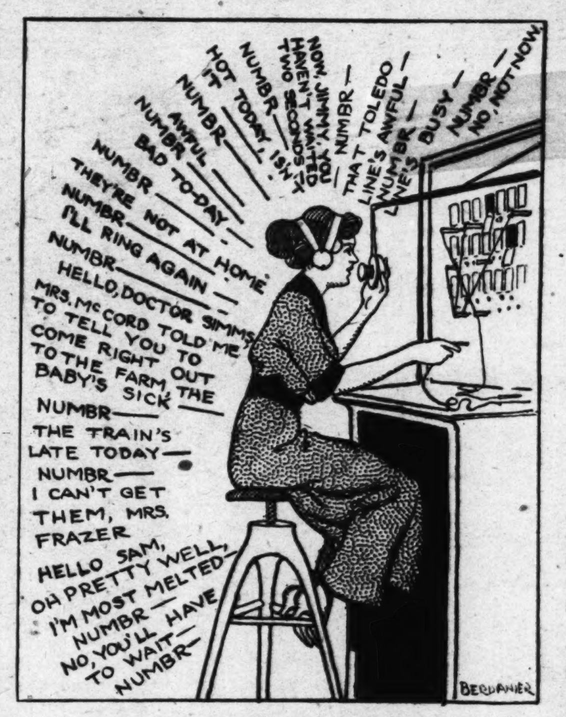
I got into a big telephone exchange once and watched it for over a minute before I was fired out. It was a very impressive sight—rows on rows of switchboards, hundreds of girls, thousands of little flashing lights, millions of clickety-clicks and not enough conversation to run a sewing circle up to refreshment time. The company was very proud of it, and I suppose it was good enough for a city—but, pshaw, it wouldn't do Homeburg for a day. If someone were to offer [illegible] entire exchange to us [illegible], we'd struggle [illegible] a few hours [illegible] rise up en [illegible] and [illegible] it off for [illegible]

Carrie Mason, our chief operator, throwing in whatever we had to, to boot.

Our exchange is in the back room of the bank building, upstairs. You could put the entire equipment in a dray. Our switchboard is about as big as an old-fashioned china closet and has three hundred drops. I suppose an up-to-date telephone manager has forgotten what "drops" are and you can't be expected to know. But out our way the telephone companies are co-operative, and as every subscriber owns a share, we all take a deep personal interest in the construction and operation of the plant, discussing the need of a new switchboard and the advantage of cabling the Main street lead, in technical terms.

Well, anyway, a drop is a little brass door which falls down with a clatter whenever the telephone which is hitched to that particular drop wants a connection. And Miss Carrie Mason, our chief operator, sits on a high stool with a receiver strapped over her rick of blond hair, jabbing brass plugs with longs cords attached into the right holes with unerring accuracy, and a reach which would give her a tremendous advantage in any boarding house in the land.

Sometimes she has one assistant, and in rush hours she has two. But on Sunday afternoons and other quiet times she holds down the whole job alone for hours at a time; and when I go up to her citadel and ask her to jam a toll call through 40 miles of barbed wire and miscellaneous junk to Taledo by sheer wrist and lung power, she entertains me as follows while I wait:



NO, NOT NOW
NUMBR—

With Carrie Mason on a Sunday afternoon.

"Yes, indeed, I'l' get your call through as soon as I can, but the connection's—Nmbr—awful—Nmbr—bad today—Nmbr—They're not at home, Mrs. Simmons; they went to Paynesville—Nmbr—I'll ring again—Nmbr—Hello, Doctor Simms, Mrs. McCord told me to tell you to come right out to the farm; the baby's sick—Nmbr—The train's late today, Mrs. Bane, you've got plenty of time—Nmbr—I can't get them, Mrs. Frazier. I'll call up next door and leave word for them to call you—Nmbr (To me: Hot today, isn't it? I tell 'em we ought to have an electric fan up here.)—Nmbr—(It would keep us better tempered.)—Nmbr—Oh, Mrs. Horn, will you tell Mrs. Flint when she comes home that Mrs. Frazier wants her to call her up?—Nmbr—Now, Jimmy, you haven't waited two seconds. I know you're anxious to talk to Phoeb, but she isn't home; she's at the cooking club—Nmbr—Cambridge, do see if you can't get through to Taledo. I've a party here that's in a hurry—Nmbr. (To me: That Taledo line's awful. It's grounded somewhere on that farmer's line west of Tacoma.)—Nmbr—Yes, Mr. Bell, I'll call you quick as he comes in his office; I can see his door from my window—Nmbr—No, Mrs. Bane, the doctor's just gone out to the McCord farm. If you hurry, you can stop him as he goes past. He left about five minutes ago—Nmbr—Gee, Paynesville, you gave me an awful ring in the ear then! No, you can't get through, the line's busy. Well, you'll have to wait. I can't take the line away from them—Nmbr—Oh! (very softly) Hello, Sam. Oh, pretty well. I'm most melted—wait a minute—Nmbr—Hello, Sam (long silence) Oh, get out! My ear's all full of taffy—wait a minute—Nmbr—Nmbr—No, Mr. Martin, there hasn't been anyone in his office all day. I think he's gone to Chicago—Hello, Sam—wait a minute, Sam—Nmbr—Nmbr—Hello, Sam—Say, I'm all alone and jumping sidewise. Call me up about 6 (very softly). G'by, Sam—Nmbr. Oh, Mrs. Lucey, is Mrs. Simms at your house? Tell her her husband will be home late to supper, he's gone out in the country—Hello. Hello. Hello. Taledo. Is your party ready? (To me: All right, here they are. You'll have to talk pretty loud.) Hello, Taledo. All ready—Nmbr."

That is a fair sample of Carrie. We couldn't keep house without her. And that's why I feel an awful pang of jealousy when I hear that lobster Sam talking to her. Maybe it's just the ordinary joshing which goes on over the toll lines in the off hours. But maybe it isn't. Wherever Sam is and whoever he is, he is a danger to Homeburg. Perhaps he is a lineman at Paynesville, and then again he may be a grocer in some crossroads town near by, with a toll telephone in the back of his store.

But if he talks to Carrie long enough and skillfully enough, he will come up to Homeburg, marry her and bear her away to his lair, far from our bereaved ears. We've lost several telephone girls that way, and when a telephone girl knows all of your habits and customs and those of your friends, and can tell just where to find you or to find whomever you want found, and has the business of the town down to the smallest details stowed away in her capable head, it messes things up dreadfully to have her leave us high and dry and go to housekeeping—which anyone can do.

Telephone girls are born, not made, in towns like Homeburg. We require so much more of them than city folks do. When my wife wants to know if hats are being worn at an afternoon reception, she calls up Carrie. Ten to one Carrie has caught a scrap of conversation over the line and knows. But if she hasn't, she will call up and find out.

When a doctor leaves his office to make a call he calls up Carrie, and she faithfully pursues him through town and country all day, if necessary. When we are preparing for a journey, we do not go down to the depot until we have called up Carrie and have found out if the train is on time, and if it isn't, we ask her to call us when it is discovered by the telegraph operator.

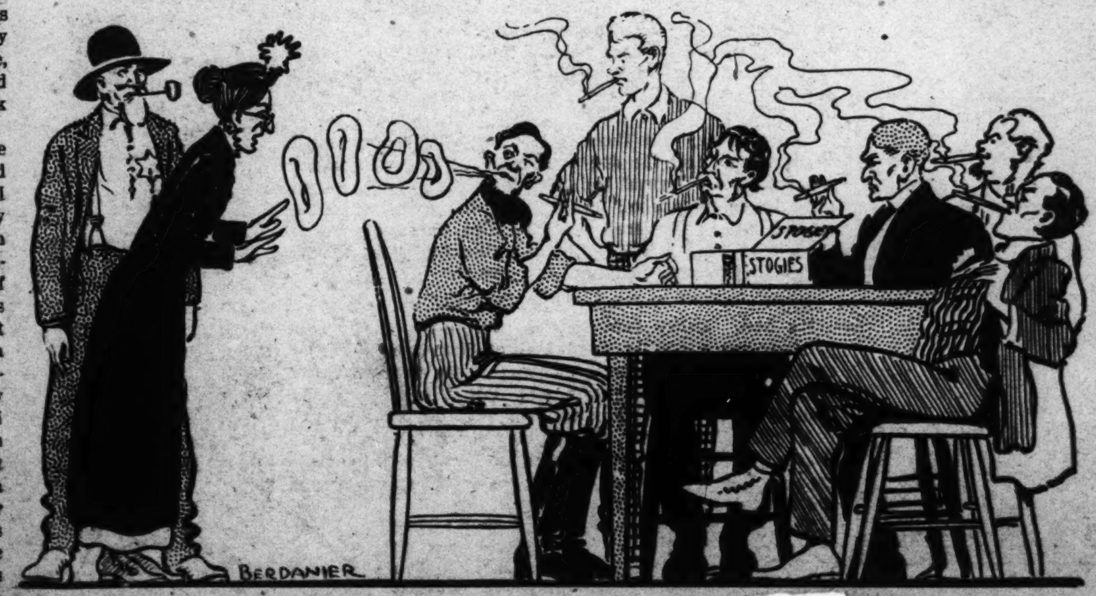
And when our babies wander away, we no longer run frantically up and down the street hunting for them. We ask Carrie to advertise for a lost child seven hands high, and wearing a four-hour-old face wash, and within five minutes she has called up 15 people in various parts of town and has discovered that said child is playing Indian in some back yard a few blocks away.

Carrie is also our confidante. I hate to think of the number of things Carrie knows. Prowling into our lines while we are talking, as she does, in search of connections to take down, she overhears enough gossip to turn Homeburg into a hotbed of anarchy if she were to loose it. But she doesn't. Carrie keeps all the secrets that a thousand other women can't.

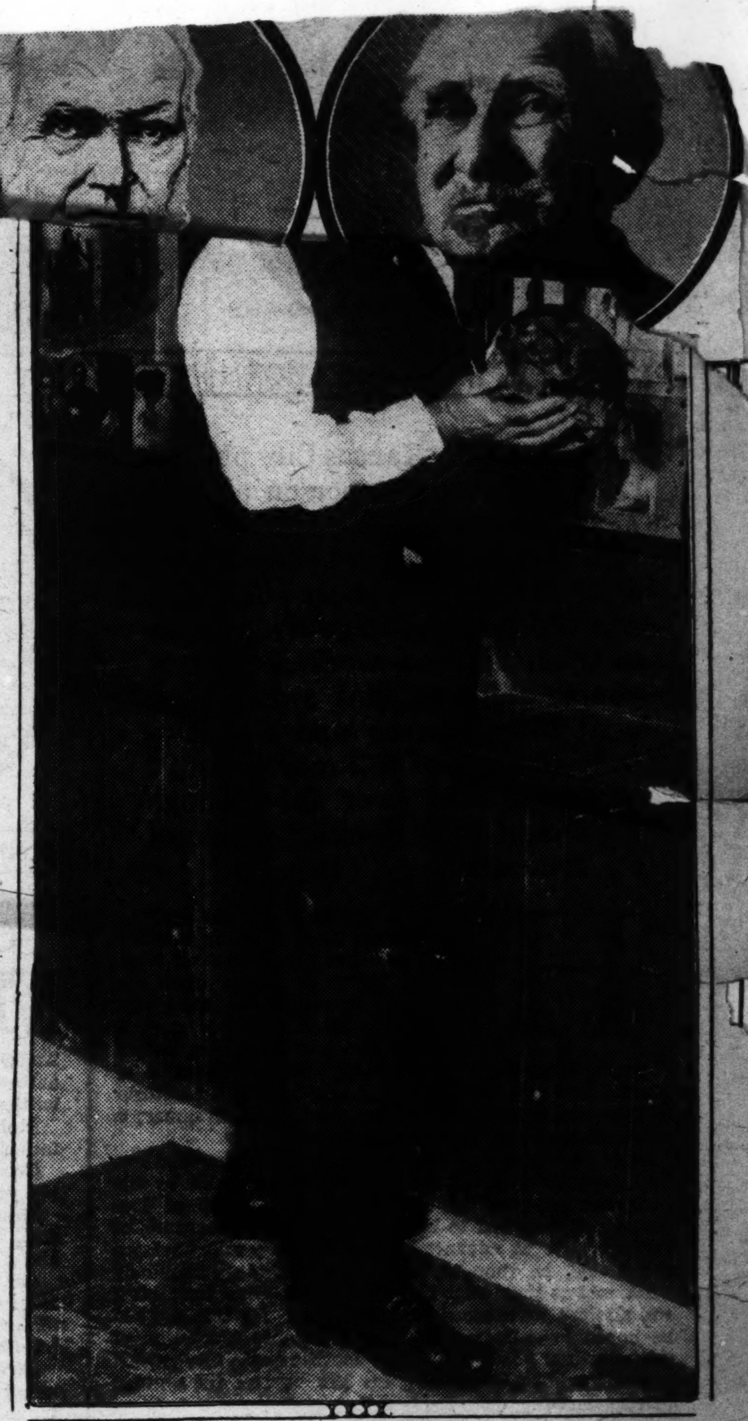
She knows what Mrs. Wimble Horn said to Mrs. Ackley over the line which made Mrs. Ackley so mad that the two haven't spoken for three years. She knows just who of our citizens telephone to Paynesville when Homeburg goes dry and order books, shoes, eggs, and hard-boiled shirts from the saloons up there, to be sent by express in a plain package.

She knows who calls up Lutie Briggs every night or two from Paynesville, and young Billy Madigan would give worlds for the information, reserving only enough for a musket or some other dueling weapon. She knows how hard it is for one of our supposedly prosperous families to get credit and how long they have to talk to the grocer before he will subside for another month.

There's very little that Carrie doesn't know. I shudder to think what would happen if Carrie should get miffed and begin to divulge. Once we had a telephone girl who did this. She was a pert young thing who had come to town with her family a short time before. It was a mistake to hire her — telephone girls should be watched and tested for discretion from babyhood up—but our directors did it, and because she showed a passion for literature and gum and very little for work, they fired her in three months. She left with reluctance, but she tal with enthusiasm;



A great light came to her.



W. J. Horn holding Edwin Booth's "poor Yorick" skull.

C sion or with one not rare; instances are not uncommo men and women devoting 50 and even three-score years to one task. But in St. Louis is a man with a record of 43 years in one position whose fund of memories, and of anecdotes is perhaps unsurpassed by that of any person who has equaled or even exceeded his record of service. He undoubtedly has as rare a collection of photographs of a certain kind as can be found anywhere.

He is William J. Horn of 3917 Cleveland avenue, who nearly 44 years ago became the "property man" of the Olympic Theater, succeeding his brother, who took the position three years before, when the historic playhouse was opened. Horn then was 21 years old, and now, at 64, still has charge of the "props"—a small, ruddy man, with gray hair and moustache, but with eye as kindly and bright and step as active as when he entered upon his near half-century of duty.

Actors and actresses, from the time of Booth and Clara Morris down to the present, have been his personal friends. To all of them—stars, first and second men and women, and lesser lights, down to the humblest member of the casts—he was and is known as "Billy" Horn. And when any of them plays at the Olympic, be he old-timer or newcomer, he asks for "Billy" Horn just as soon as he arrives at the theater.

Ranged around the walls of the "greenroom" at the Olympic (a greenroom is a large assembly hall under the stage, in which stage folk off duty may gather and chat) are more than 5000 pictures of actors and actresses which Horn has collected. They have overflowed the greenroom and many hang in halls and alcoves under the footlights.

Walter Sanford, manager of the Olympic, is authority for the statement that some of the players of the old days have visited the gallery and wept over what they saw there—pictures of themselves in younger and perhaps happier days, and likenesses of old friends long departed. But anybody to whom fame has brought a sense of his own importance would save his peace of mind by remaining away from the room. The pictures are arranged with no regard for rank. The most scintillating star of the stage is more than likely to find his photograph next to that of a most obscure person of the chorus. For these many years they have all been alike to "Billy" Horn. Most of the pictures are autographed, and this recalled to Horn a trait of the old-time players which has passed away.

"They would never write across the face of a photograph," he said. "If there was not room under the portrait they would turn the picture over and put the name on the back."

For this reason many rare autographs in the collection are not visible. Many of the actresses, at least, don't want them to be, for Horn relates with great glee how one woman who reached stardom and is still there, stopped before a portrait of herself, taken 25 years ago, and denied it was she. There are pictures just as old of other actresses prominent in the theatrical world today.

One of the prizes of the collection is a life-size, full-length portrait of John McCullough. It was formerly the property of William H. Thompson, a friend of the lamented actor. The painting hung in the Thompson home for many years, but recently was allowed a place in the Olympic Hall of Fame.

The great Hamlet—Edwin Booth—is there, next to his friend, Barrett. Then there are the two great comedians of others days—John T. Raymond and Joseph Jefferson. Horn refers to Jefferson as "the grandest old man of the stage." There is Richard Mansfield. Roland Reed is there, too, chiefly remembered among old St. Louis stage hands as the man who first put on a Wednesday matinee, thereby making himself somewhat unpopular with the men who were used to shifting scenery and "props" only once a day.

"I never seemed to feel that Joseph Jefferson was acting when he was out there," said Horn, pointing toward the stage. "He was just himself. Off the stage he was the same as on. But when Richard Mansfield came here, I used to wonder whether he ever laughed. I had decided he didn't, until one day I passed him out on Broadway when he was whistling and smiling about something.

"I am reasonably certain, though, that he never whistled or laughed while a play was being put on. I saw his dressing room assistant come up to him one day and hand him his gloves. Without a word Mansfield hurled them into the man's face. I found out afterward that he did it because his helper had neglected to turn the fingers out.

"When Cyrano was put on here once, I heard Mansfield, in the presence of a stage full of people, turn to one of the women in his company, after the curtain had fallen and snap out, 'Why don't you go back to the washtub? What made you think you could become an actress?'"

One of the warmest friends Horn ever made was Joseph Murphy, an old-time comedian, whose picture also is among those on the green room occurred on

On one of his visits to St. Louis, Murphy sent a trunk to a local shop for repairs. The trunk was delivered when a matinee was in progress by a typical Irishman of the old school, with fiery red hair and a fringe of red whiskers under his chin. The Irishman was told at the stage door that Murphy was busy, so he brought the trunk inside and waited.

Before the footlights, Murphy was putting on a scene on shipboard in which the character he was portraying became violently seasick. Minutes passed and Murphy reached the climax, when the act took him to the railing of the ship where he went through the contortions which all seasick persons are wont to perform at a ship's railing.

Just when Murphy was putting forth his best efforts and the laughter in the audience had reached its height, the trunk man, having become impatient, walked onto the stage, in full view of the spectators, and throwing the trunk to the floor, declared:

"Here's your thrunk, Mr. Murphy!"

Murphy was thunderstruck, but had presence of mind enough to swear at the Irishman, which only made matters worse, as the Celt was roiled and offered to fight the actor right there. The audience by this time had become aware that this was not a part of the performance and the roars of laughter that arose were more than Murphy ever could hoped to have aroused with his legitimate act. Two scene shifters pulled the old Irishman, still sputtering, back into the wings.

"After that, said Horn, "this old fellow was known all over town as 'Murphy.' The name stuck for the rest of his life."

Horn has but one picture of Clara Morris, and it has faded into almost nothing after 30 years or more on the wall of the greenroom. He remembers that in the old days Clara Morris bade fair to become unpopular with theatergoers because of outbreaks of temperament which often caused her audiences to wait 25 minutes between acts.

He has portraits of Mary Anderson, Fanny Davenport, Modjeska and many other old-time stars. One of the few stage women who have reached eminence whose portrait he has not obtained is that of Mrs. Fiske.

"I don't know why, either," he said, "because I knew Minnie Maddern when she was a little girl. I knew all the Maddern girls. When their mother played here she used to bring Minnie, who then was small, to the theater with her. She didn't believe in keeping children up, and along about 9 o'clock I used to take Minnie over to the old hotel that stood where the Times Building now is, so she could be put to bed."

The greenroom is by no means the most interesting part of the Olympic Theater. Horn led the way to two old "property" rooms, one up a flight of stairs from the stage, and the other above it, where are stored, with the accumulated dust of years, old "props" that have priceless sentimental value.

Reaching down into a drawer of an old cabinet, Horn brought forth a skull, blackened with age, which Booth often held in his hands at the graveside as he exclaimed, "Alas, poor Yorick, I knew him well." The phrase would not have been unbecoming from Horn, as he stood with the relic in his hand. In the same drawer was a powder box, a memento of Adelaide Nielsen. Against the wall, next to the cabinet, was a painting, a rustic scene, the handiwork of Joseph Jefferson, in some of his leisure moments on the Olympic stage, and presented by the actor to Horn.

On a shelf was an ancient white vase, with "Virginia" inscribed upon it. Many times has McCullough, the vase draped in crepe, carried it before St. Louis audiences while bemoaning the fate of his daughter in "Virginius." Horn pointed out old spears, battle axes, guns, swords and torches used by actors and actresses of bygone days. Some of the torches were ordinary broom-handles, with tincups nailed to one end, to hold a sponge saturated with alcohol and a little turpentine. Fire regulations forbid torches of that kind now.

One of the "props" was a bed, which Horn made himself, many years ago. Modjeska and Fanny Davenport, and many other famous ones, had "slept" in that bed. Horn's heart was nearly broken a few years ago when he discovered that part of the bed had been sawed up for kindling by a workman ignorant of associations.

The veteran property man has always taken great pride in the perfection of his stage settings. He refuses to admit that modern inventions have contributed to handsomer stage pictures than were arranged three or four decades ago. The chief progress, to his mind, has been that he has kept pace with new styles in furniture and hangings. Little has changed in the essentials, he thinks, except possi the merits of the actors actresses.

"There may be as man great actors now as ther used to be," he declared, "but they don't have the chance. The people won't attend the old plays and no great ones are being written."

Even prices are not much changed. One dollar for the best seats gained admission

Canvass made by Kansas City physician reveals that oldest person alive is Texas woman, 138 years of age, who was 80 years old when President Wilson was born—All who attained advanced age lived much in open air and worked hard in youth, ate abundant sweets, and used little tobacco and alcohol—Only one out of 672 more than 90 years old was ever fat—"Laugh much and don't worry," a rule of all centenarians :: :: ::

"How may I live to a ripe old age?" This is the most yearning question which man has put to himself since he first began to [illegible] upon the tragic cruelty with which death nips human life in the bud or cuts it down in the prime. Long before Ponce de Leon there were seekers after the fountain of youth. But now there comes a new kind of adventurer in this greatest of quests—a scientist, not a dreamer; a practical man and not a romanticist.

He is Dr. Virgil A. Davis of Kansas City, Mo., who has won fascinating and no doubt valuable results by his common-sense method of tracing the secret of longevity. It occurred to him that there are thousands of persons alive at advanced ages. What would be more reasonable, he thought, than to ask these persons by what means they kept the vital spark alive long after the allotted three-score years and ten? By this method he hoped to gain important data towards a solution of the question: Is there any scientific means by which man may hope to prolong his life beyond its average brief span?

He found that within 30 states of this country there were alive, at the time he collected his information during the last 12 months, 133 persons who were 100 or more years old, and 672 men and women more than 90 years old. Of these he interviewed 107 in person, and to the rest he sent a list of 200 questions, which they were asked to answer. He has tabulated the results, and this article is an advance resume of a book which he is preparing as an analysis of his researches.

The very oldest person whose age he could verify was Mrs. L. E. Killcrease of Pine Hill, Tex. She has attained the astounding age of 138 years, and has a daughter nearly 100 years old. Her age is only one year less than that of the American republic, and she was 83 years old when the Civil War began. When she was born, in 1777, Napoleon, at the age of 8, was learning French at the College of Autun. She was a young woman of 22 when Washington died; she was 32 when Lincoln was born; she was 35 at the outbreak of the War of 1812, and 68 at the time of the Mexican War. She was 80 years old when President Wilson, now a grandfather, was born. Thirteen years before her birth, St. Louis was settled as a trading post by Pierre Laclede, and when she was born this city was under the flag of Spain. Compared with her, the 133 persons who were alive when Waterloo was fought and who have lived to see Europe involved today in an Armageddon vaster than Napoleon's, are only youths and girls.

Concerning the motives of his researches, Dr. Davis says:

"I desired to learn what habits and conditions help most to make man well and vigorous and live long, and what ones cripple and destroy him too soon. I wanted to know just what influences make us healthy, energetic and optimistic, and help us to obtain the most comfort, service and happiness from our lives; and which ones prevent us from attaining these desired results.

"I wanted to learn the great values of life, the beneficent forces and the avoidable errors and dangers. Also, I wanted the largest possible amount of evidence and testimony from living people who have traveled far enough on the way of life to have an extensive knowledge from which to draw conclusions, and who have become calm and unbiased in their judgment. I threw out all preconceived notions of what I believed should be, and looked only to what I learned from the honest answers."

Curiosities of Old Age.

Mrs. L. E. Killcrease of Pine Hills, Tex., 138 years old, is believed to be the oldest person in the United States. Born in 1777, she is a year younger than the American republic. She was 83 years old at the outbreak of the Civil War, and was 32 when the battle of Waterloo was fought.

Robert Bates of Letcher County, Ky., became a father at the age of 99 years.

George Niper of Stanhope, N. J., attributes his 107 years to "plenty of rye bread and pork."

Mrs. Nancy Brooks, 115 years old, of Pratt City, Ala., never wore a corset, never took medicine, and always slept near an open window.

Col. James Mabe of Elizabethtown, Ky., still rides to the hounds at the age of 100.

Mrs. Theodora Morgan, 100 years old, of Streator, Ill., is an active worker for woman suffrage.

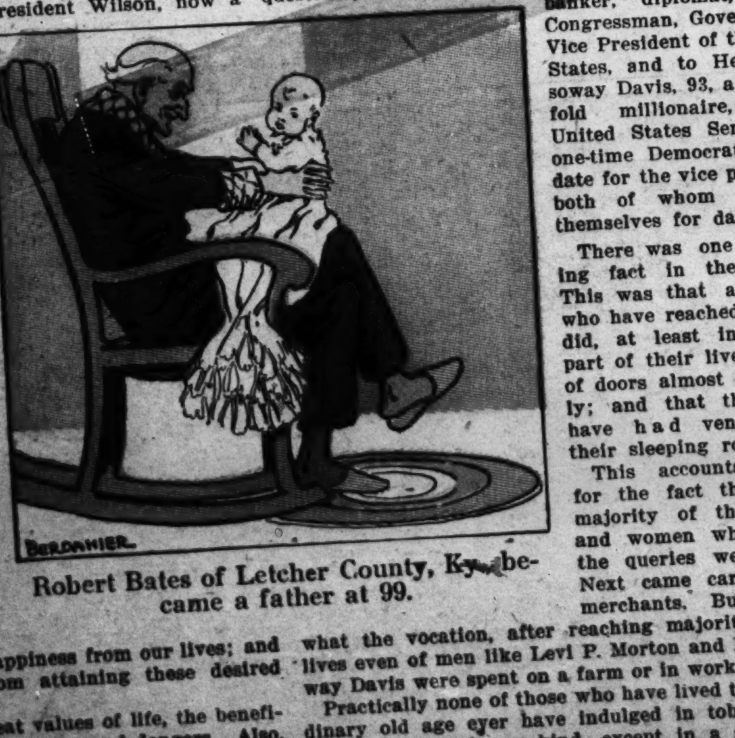
Mrs. Emily M. Osborne of New York, on her one-hundredth birthday, led her descendants in the tango.

Of 672 men and women more than 90 years old, only one is fat. Women of advanced age have, on an average, never weighed more than 125 pounds.

Of 672 persons more than 90 years old, 381 are men and 291 women. Of 133 persons more than 100 years old, 70 are women, all of whom have been married, and 63 are men.

Out of 30 states, Missouri has the largest number of persons more than 90 years old, the leading states ranking as follows: Missouri, 108; Illinois, 91; Kansas, 54; New York, 42, and Ohio, 32.

The old persons questioned were in all stages of life as to prosperity. The range was from Thomas Morris, 121 years old, of Westerville, Neb., who begged tobacco or food supplies as pay for his answers to Dr. Davis' questions, to Levi P. Morton, 91 years old, merchant, banker, diplomat, former Congressman, Governor and Vice President of the United States, and to Henry Gassoway Davis, 93, a hundredfold millionaire, former United States Senator and one-time Democratic candidate for the vice presidency, both of whom still gird themselves for daily work.



Robert Bates of Letcher County, Ky., became a father at 99.

There was one outstanding fact in the answers. This was that all persons who have reached great age did, at least in the first part of their lives, live out of doors almost continuously; and that they always have had ventilation in their sleeping rooms.

This accounts, perhaps, for the fact that a great majority of the old men and women who answered the queries were farmers. Next came carpenters and merchants. But no matter what the vocation, after reaching majority, the early lives even of men like Levi P. Morton and Henry Gassoway Davis were spent on a farm or in work akin to this.

Practically none of those who have lived to an extraordinary old age ever have indulged in tobacco, alcohol or stimulants of any kind, except in a small degree. There are only a small number of instances in which persons, after becoming old, indulge at all in any stimulants.

Old persons depend very little o [illegible] ve never done so.

Most of them are very fond of honey and have always indulged themselves in it, although sweets are supposed to be breeders of rheumatism.

Salt and pepper only in very small quantities have ever been used by the old. Some never use condiments of any kind.

Practically all are users in goodly quantities of milk, either sweet or buttermilk.

All have always been cheerful and great laughers. They have never worried.

All worked hard all their lives, including the millionaires.

Many children in a family seems to have been no drawback to reaching old age, although the average seems to be from three to five children.

The data show that a fat man or woman has as much chance of growing old as a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. It can be done, but there is only one such instance recorded. The women especially are small, averaging around 125 pounds all their lives.

They have been punctual sleepers without exception. The majority always went to bed between 8 and 9:30 o'clock and arose from 4 to 6 o'clock in the morning.

Dr. Davis gives the following conclusions from the data he obtained from his interviews:

Heredity is a big factor, but environment is more important. A bad start in life in the way of strength can be overcome by proper development.

A sickly child or adult, by adopting a regimen of temperance and optimism, can reach a great age.

Blonds have the best show in the old age marathon. Brunettes run a very poor second.

Farm raising is conducive to old age and city life is not.

Academic education has no influence upon longevity.

Marriage conduces strongly to old age.

Children who run through the gamut of juvenile diseases, such as measles, diphtheria and scarlet fever, have little chance of growing old.

None of the centenarians ever worried. Constipation had no place in their lives.

None ever overate. Practically all were moderate and careful eaters. Because of proper eating, practically none had heart trouble or high blood pressure and few had suffered from colds.

The majority slept with their heads near an open window every night in the year.

Not one of the centenarians ever took many drugs.

Few of the old age group ate meat (including bacon, chicken and fish) more than once a day.

All used a minimum of salt and pepper and other condiments.

Virtually without exception they had a weakness for honey. But they did not eat much candy. Fruits, dairy products, vegetables and honey were used mostly as edibles.

Coffee and tea seldom were used more than once a day. Many never indulged in either.

Comparatively few centenarians ever chewed or smoked tobacco or drank alcoholic liquors, and very few have been even moderate users of them.

All old persons drank much water, but practically none of them ever drank mineral water.

Baldness is the exception among the very old.

Practically all faced poverty and toil when children, and those who have been successful have kept up hard work. Some of them are working actively after 100.

All had system and regularity in their daily work. Few ever hurried.

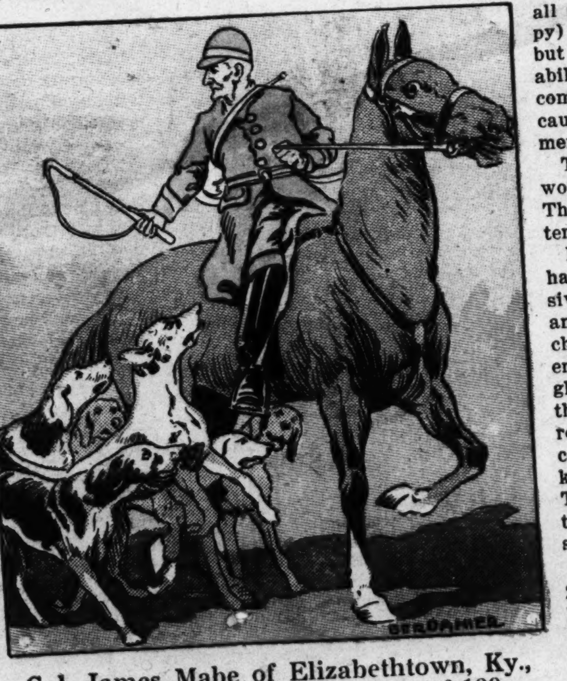
The things in which most of them had great interest were people, plants, trees, animals, machines, rocks, bird life, streams and landscapes—anything having to do with the great out-of-doors.

All had a variety of interests, and they have kept up their interest in these matters. They were not idle in work time, but there was no worry in their activity. All had their times of relaxation and recreation.

Those who have become centenarians have smiled and laughed much. To this there is no exception.

Ambition for pecuniary wealth is found in only a few of those who have grown old.

Great readers are the old people. Their greatest joy in old age (and practically all say they have been happy) is reading. Not money, but a retentive memory, ability to read, physical comfort and friends are causes for their contentment.



Col. James Mabe of Elizabethtown, Ky., rides to the hounds at the age of 100.

Their 10 best years of work were from 35 to 45. Their period of most contentment was from 45 to 50.

Most of the centenarians have read the Bible extensively, have been religious and have been frequent church goers. They have enjoyed life and would gladly live longer. But they express themselves as ready to go when the time comes. They have been kind and fond of children. They have been moderate talkers and have faced life serenely.

Mrs. Nancy M. Lyons of 2707 Chippewa street, St. Louis, celebrated her one-hundredth birthday at her home on March 4 of this year, with representatives of four generations of her descendants present. She has been blind for two years, but otherwise is in excellent health.

She was born in 1815, the year of Waterloo, at Kaskaskia, Ill., when this village was an Indian agency. Her father was an Indian and her mother a Frenchwoman. At the age of 18 she became the wife of Felix Dore, a steamboat engineer, who was killed in an explosion three years after her marriage. One son of this union, Felix Dore, survives at the age of 79. In 1841 she was married to Charles Lyons, who in 1849 died at Panama on the way to the California goldfields.

She left Kaskaskia in 1844, lived three years in Belleville, Ill., and then came to St. Louis, where she has lived since 1847. In 1848 she took a course in nursing at Cincinnati, and adopted the profession as a means of livelihood after the death of her second husband.

As a companion in wealthy St. Louis families she visited every capital in Europe, spent six years in China and Japan, made a trip to the Pyramids and other sights of Egypt and traversed most of the States of the Union. Her first employer was Mrs. Henry Hitchcock, who sent her to Germany to nurse her brother, George Collier, who died in Weisberg. She also nursed his widow, who died nine months later in Paris.

Mrs. Lyons' third trip abroad was with Mrs. Ethan Allen Hitchcock, whose husband was engaged as a tea merchant in China. Mrs. Lyons accompanied Mrs. Hitchcock and her husband all over the Orient and to the chief cities of Europe. On her fourth trip abroad she accompanied Dwight Collier to Egypt, where he spent more than two years in search of health.

Friends of Mrs. Lyons attribute her advanced years to the ever-changing variety which travel brought into her existence, and also to her expert knowledge, as a nurse, of the most scientific methods of living.

Levi P. Morton began life in Shoreham, Vt., the son of a poor minister. He is a descendant of George Morton, who came over in the Mayflower, and is one of eight children. He began work for a living at 15 years and has kept at it ever since. He married when 30 years old. He became a bankrupt during the Civil War. In his fortieth year he recovered and paid dollar for dollar.

Henry Gassoway Davis probably is worth $100,000,000, all of which he has made. He was born near Baltimore and began his career at 15 years as superintendent of a plantation. Later he was a brakeman, conductor and agent. Then came the projection of the West Virginia Central & Pittsburg Railway, of which he is president. He began his political career in 1865. He was United States Senator from 1871 to 1883. As candidate for Vice President he made the race with Alton B. Parker.

Col. Robert T. Van Horn of Kansas City, who is 92 years old, was a United States Congressman and a journalist, well known throughout the Southwest. He started the Kansas City Journal in the '50s

The oldest person with whom Dr. Davis obtained an interview was Mrs. Nancy Brock, 115 years old, of Pratt City, near Birmingham, Ala. She is a very small woman, never having weighed more than 120 pounds. She never had the usual youthful diseases. She never took medicine.

Her hearing began to fail at 90, her sight at 100 and her memory at 108. She was always energetic, but very deliberate. She never ate pie or cake and has drunk one cup of coffee a day for the last 20 years. She drinks milk, but never drank liquor and drinks water with her meals. She stopped walking at 100. Her life was spent on a farm. Her rule has always been: To bed early; up early. Her favorite reading is the Bible. She gives the following recipe for her own long life:

"I never lived in a sealed house. Plain food always was my portion. I never wore a corset. I never ate much meat. I always read the Bible and lived up to its teachings."

Many of the old persons have been parents of many children. Mrs. Malinda Warder, 614 North Wall street, Joplin, Mo., who is 93 years old, was the mother of 16 children. She was married at 16 and all were born before the mother was 40 years old. The children have all been healthy. She was raised on a farm. She weighed 118 at 20 and 175 at 80 years.

Joseph Parks, 91 years old, of Pineville, N. C., was the father of 23 children. Conrad Huffman, 103 years old, of Big Flat, Ark., was also the father of 23 children.

Robert Bates of Letcher County, Ky., was the father of a boy at the age of 99 years. William Miller, 101 years, of Joplin, married recently a woman 60 years old. It was his third marriage. He is a gardener.

Mrs. Electra Kennedy, 105 years old, of Healsburg, Cal., was anemic when young. Hers is a remarkable case. She weighed only 106 pounds at 20 years. She was always a hearty eater and had many of the children's Missouri Centenarians.

The following Missourians are given in Dr. Davis' lists as having attained or outlived five score years:

Henry Dorman, 115 years old, Liberal, Missouri.
Mrs. Elmyra Wagner, 113, Protein.
John Holleren, 108, Richards.
Daniel Potter, 105, Aldrich.
Luke O'Rourke, 104, Higginsville.
Jesse W. Hartley, 103, Marshfield.
Mrs. Amanda Nunley, 102, Madison.
William Norton, 102, Madison.
Mrs. Menora Johnson, 101, Carthage.
Mrs. Emma Linebell, 101, Marcelline.
Isaac Price, 101, Barnard.
William L. Miller, 101, Joplin.
Mrs. Elsie Blevins, 100, Eldorado Springs.
William H. Scott, 100, Dixon.
Mrs. Jessie Bell, 100, Marcelline.
Mrs. Betsy Patton, 100, McKittrick.
Mrs. Nancy M. Lyons, 100, 2707 Chippewa street, St. Louis.

In addition to Mrs. Lyons, Dr. Davis' records contain the names of these St. Louisans: Mrs. R. H. Tittman, 95 years old, 5024 Westminster place, and Mrs. Margaret N. Belt, 90, formerly of 6033 Bartmer avenue, now living in Kirkwood.

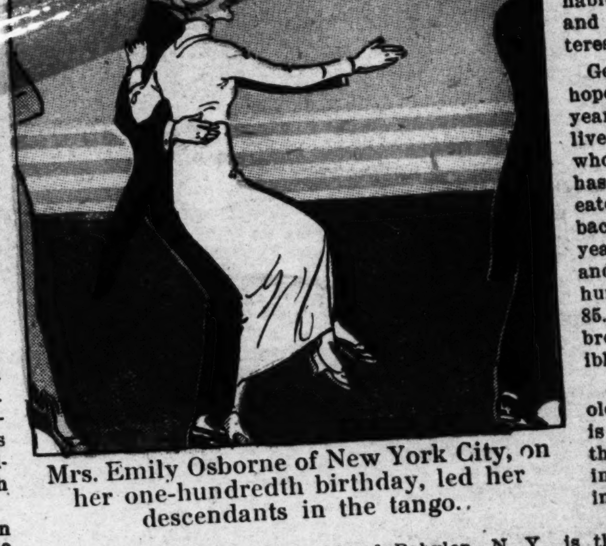
diseases. She had a high temper. She ate a great deal of sugar, candy and sweets. She ate much cake. She still walks. She did housework until 101 years old.



Mrs. Emily Osborne of New York City, on her one-hundredth birthday, led her descendants in the tango..

She says the reason she has lived so long is:

"I have always lived in the country and eaten what I liked; I have had regular habits and an active mind; and I have always been interested in current events."

George Niper Sr. of Stanhope, N. J., who is 107 years old, had a father who lived to be 103 and a mother who died at 97 years. He has always been a hearty eater, and has chewed tobacco since his twelfth year. He is a honey eater and milk drinker. He hunted foxes until he was 85. He says plenty of rye bread and pork are responsible for his longevity.

James Mabe, 100 years old, of Elizabethtown, Ky., is the oldest fox hunter in the United States. He still indulges in the sport, riding a horse to the hounds.

William Muncy, 96 years old, of Babylon, N. Y., is the oldest twin. His tw brother, Samuel, died last year.

Mrs. Theodora Morgan, 100 years old, of Streator, I was known as "French Mary" during the Civil War, which she was a nurse. She takes an active part in woman suffrage movement.

On her one hundredth birthday, Mrs. Emily M Osborne, New York City, led her descendants in tango. She is a descendant of Thomas Mayhew, Governor of Martha's Vineyard. She has lived in York since 1836.

Dr. James L. Wellington, 97 years, of Swansea is the oldest living Harvard alumnus. His pa reading.

Mrs. Rosamond Emery, 101 years old, of Portland said: "In all the years of my life, I have neve habit govern me. I have had no medicine wh food and two meals a day."

"Huckleberry" B. F. Finn, the original of Mark Twain's "Huck," still lives at the age of 90 in Eugene, Ore. He is a hunter and fiddler.

"I have lived to be 100 years old because of much outdoor exercise, association with nature, hard work and happiness," Mrs. Margaret Jane Jordan, Malden, Mass., says.

Dr. Davis [illegible] up with this advice to those who would reach old age as given by those who have:

"Face every situation without worry and hurry. Hurry means waste and useless strain.

"Eat moderately of a small variety of foods each meal; chew everything until it is a fine liquid; get all the taste out of every bit, and drink plenty of water between meals.

"Pepper and other condiments and stimulants are deceivers, and their chief result is to injure human bodies.

"Avoid all [illegible], tobacco or drink. Also avoid prolonged fatigue."

A BEAUTIFUL woman, subsequently identified as Mrs. Iris Mary Vernon, dies under extraordinary circumstances in the apartment of Henry Leroux, novelist, where she had taken refuge in flight from an unknown pursuer. Simultaneously the death of her husband, Horace Vernon, is announced and Mrs. Leroux, wife of the novelist, unaccountably disappears.

Detective-Inspector Dunbar, of Scotland Yard, has charge of the case, with its triple complications. Monsieur Gaston Max of the Paris police comes to London to help him. The two immediate objects of the detectives search are: (1) The Leroux butler, Soames, who fled on the night of the tragedy; and (2) a certain "Mr. King," whose identity is believed to be the key to the whole problem.

Soames, in hiding, has been sent, through the agency of a Greek named Gianapolis, to serve as an attendant in the luxurious underground opium den known as "the catacombs of Ho-Pin."

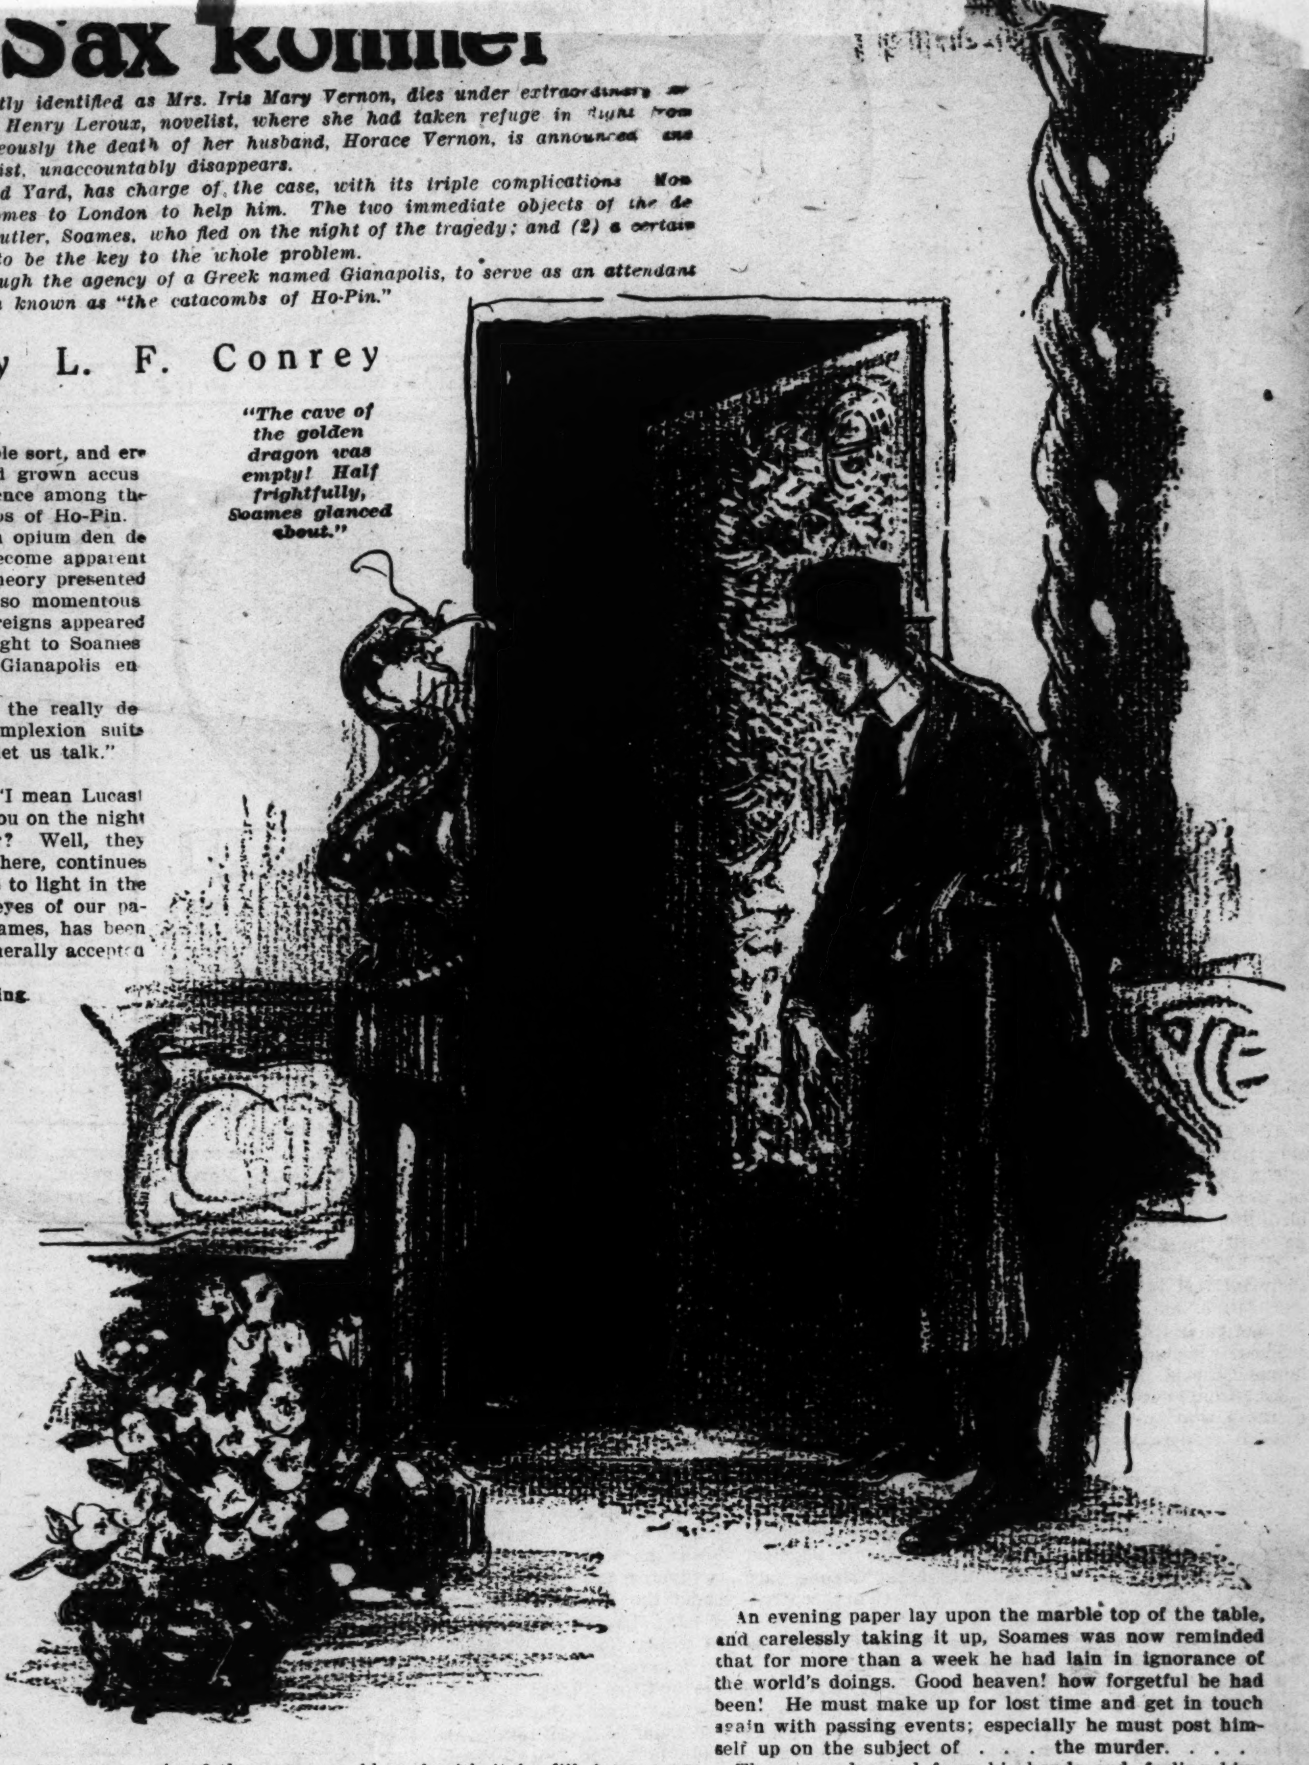
CHAPTER XII.

Kan-Suh Concessions.



"The cave of the golden dragon was empty! Half frightfully, Soames glanced about."

SOAMES' character was of a pliable sort, and ere many days had passed he had grown accustomed to this unnatural existence among the living corpses in the catacombs of Ho-Pin.

That he was a servant in an opium den de luxe did not for some time become apparent to him; then, when first the theory presented itself, he was staggered by a discovery so momentous.

At the end of the first week two sovereigns appeared upon the breakfast tray which Said brought to Soames room and, some little time later, Mr. Gianapolis entered.

"My dear Soames!" he cried, greeting the really delighted man. "How well your new complexion suits you! Sit down, Soames, sit down, and let us talk."

Soames placed a chair for Gianapolis.

"Now, Soames," continued Gianapolis, "I mean Lucas! My anticipations, which I mentioned to you on the night of—the accident . . . you remember? Well, they have been realized. Our establishment, here, continues to flourish as of yore. Nothing has come to light in the press calculated to prejudice us in the eyes of our patrons, and although your own name, Soames, has been freely mentioned on all sides, it is not generally accepted that you perpetrated the deed."

Soames discovered his hair to be bristling.

"That I," he began dryly, paused and swallowed—"that I perpetrated . . . Has it been"——

"It has been hinted at by one or two Fleet street theorists—yes, Soames! But the post mortem examination of—the victim, revealed the fact that she was addicted to drugs"—

"Opium?" asked Soames eagerly

Gianapolis smiled.

"What an observant mind you have, Soames! So you have perceived that these groves are sacred to our Lady of the Poppies? Well, in common with the lesser deities," he continued, "our Lady of the Poppies is exacting. After a protracted sojourn at her shrine, so keen are the delights which she opens up to her worshipers that a period of lassitude, of exhaustion, inevitably ensues. This precludes the proper worship of the goddess in the home, and necessitates—I say necessitates—the presence, in such a capital as London, of a suitable temple. You have the honor, Soames, to be a minor priest of that temple!"

Soames brushed his dyed hair with his fingers and endeavored to look intelligent.

"A branch establishment—merely a sacred caravanserai where votaries might repose ere re-entering the upper world," continued Gianapolis—"has unfortunately been raided by the police!"

With that word police, he seemed to come to earth gain.

"Our arrangements, I am happy to say, were such that ot one of the staff was found on the premises and no sible link existed between that establishment and this. t now let us talk about yourself. You may safely an evening off, I think"——

e scrutinized Soames attentively.

You will be discreet, as a matter of course, and I ld not recommend your visiting any of your former its. I make this proposal, of course, with the full tion of Mr. King."

knew you would be glad, Soames," declared the g Gianapolis. "Mr. King, very wisely," he whis- "has retained you on the premises hitherto, because some doubt, some little doubt, remained respecting the information which had come into the possession of the police."

They quitted the room by the door opening on the stone steps—the door by which Soames had first entered that evil Aladdin's cave. Gianapolis went ahead, and Soames, following him, presently emerged through a low doorway into a concrete-paved apartment.

"I keep my car here, Soames, for the sake of—convenience! And now, my dear Soames, when you go out this evening, Said will close this entrance after you. When you return, which, I understand, you must do at 10 o'clock, you will enter the garage by the side door yonder, which will not be locked, and you will press the electric button at the back of the petrol cans here—look! you can see it!—the inner door will then be opened for you. Step this way."

He passed between the car and the wall of the garage, opened the door at the left of the entrance gates, and, Soames following, came out into a narrow lane. For the first time in many days Soames scented the cleaner air of the upper world, and with it he filled his lungs gratefully.

Behind him was the garage, before him the high wall of a ard and, on his right, for a considerable distance, extended a similar wall; in the latter case evidently that of a wharf—for beyond it flowed the Thames.

Proceeding along beside this wall, the two came to the gates of a warehouse.

"Then this place," began Soames——

"Is a ginger warehouse, Soames! There is a very small office staff, but sufficiently large to cope with the limited business done—in the import and export of ginger! The firm is known as Kan-Suh Concessions and imports preserved Chinese ginger from its own plantations in that province of the Celestial empire. Oh, it's a going concern and perfectly respectable!"

Soames became conscious of a new security. He felt that he was now part and parcel of the Kan-Suh Concessions; that Kan-Suh Concessions and he were at one. He had yet to learn that his sense of security was premature, and that his added knowledge might be an added danger.

When Said brought his lunch into his room he delivered also a slip of paper bearing the brief message:

"Go out 6:30—return 10."

The night had set in grayly, and a drizzle of fine rain was falling. West India Dock road presented a prospect so uninviting that it must have damped the spirits of anyone but a cave dweller. Soames, buttoned up in a raincoat, trudged briskly along.

Soames at last felt himself to be a traveler on the high road to fortune; he had become almost reconciled to the loss of his bank balance, to the loss of his place in the upper world.

He trudged along through the rain, scarce noting where his steps were leading him, for all roads were alike tonight. His natural inclinations presently dictated a halt at a brilliantly lightly public house.

The place proved to be fairly crowded, principally with local tradesmen whose forefathers had toiled for Pharaoh; and conveying his glass of whisky to a marble-topped table in a corner comparatively secluded, Soames sat down for a consideration of past, present and future, [illegible]ental exercise.

An evening paper lay upon the marble top of the table, and carelessly taking it up, Soames was now reminded that for more than a week he had lain in ignorance of the world's doings. Good heaven! how forgetful he had been! He must make up for lost time and get in touch again with passing events; especially he must post himself up on the subject of . . . . the murder. . . .

The paper dropped from his hands and, feeling himself blanch beneath his artifical tan, Soames, in his old furtive manner, glanced around the saloon to learn if he were watched. Apparently no one was taking the slightest notice of him, and, with an unsteady hand, he raised his glass and drained its contents. There, at the bottom of the page before him was the cause of this sudden panic; a short paragraph conceived as follows:

"REPORTED ARREST OF SOAMES."

"It is reported that a man answering to the description of Soames, the butler wanted in connection with the Palace Mansions outrage, has been arrested in Birmingham. He was found sleeping in an outhouse belonging to Maj. Jennings of Olton and as he refused to give any account of himself, was handed over, by the gentleman's gardener, to the local police. His resemblance to the published photograph being observed, he was closely questioned, and although he denies being Luke Soames, he is being held for further inquiry."

Soames laid down the paper and, walking across to the bar, ordered a second glass of whisky. With this he returned to the table and began more calmly to reread the paragraph. From it he passed to the other news. He noted that little publicity was given to the Palace Mansions affair, from which he judged that public interest in the matter was already growing cold. A short summary appeared on the front page and this he eagerly devoured. It read as follows:

"PALACE MANSIONS MYSTERY."

"The police are following up an important clew to the murder of Mrs. Vernon, and it is significant in this connection that a man answering to the description of Soames was apprehended at Olton (Birmingham) late last night. (See page 6.) The police are very reticent in regard to the new information which they hold, but it is evident that at last they are confident of establishing a case. Mr. Henry Leroux, the famous novelist, in whose flat the mysterious outrage took place, is suffering from a nervous breakdown, but is reported to be progressing favorably by Dr. Cumberly, who is attending him. Dr. Cumberly, it will be remembered, was with Mr. Leroux, and Mr. John Exel, M. P., at the time that the murder was discovered. The executors of the late Mr. Horace Vernon are faced with extraordinary difficame from this establishment on the night of the crime, and that the proprietors of the nursing home fled immediately, leaving absolutely no clew behind them, complicates the mystery which Scotland Yard is engaged in unravling."

Soames searched the remainder of the paper scrupulously, but failed to find any further reference to the case.

He noted, as a curious circumstance, that throughout the report there was no reference to the absence of Mrs. Leroux; therefore—a primitive reasoner—he assumed that she was back again at Palace Mansions. He was mentally incapable of fitting Mrs. Leroux into the secret machine engineered by Mr. King through the visible agency of Ho-Pin.

It was all very confusing and entirely beyond Soames' mental capacity to unravel.

He treated himself to a third whisky, and sallied out into the rain. A brilliantly lighted music hall upon the opposite side of the road attracted his attention.

The program was not of sufficient interest wholly to distract his mind. His seat was at the extreme end of the back row, and, quite unintentionally, he began to listen to the conversation of two men, who, standing just inside the entrance door, were talking in subdued voices.

"There are thousands of Kings in London," said one." . . .

"That's the trouble," replied a second voice; "but you know Max's ideas on the subject? He has his own way of going to work; but my idea, Sowerby, is that if we can find the one Mr. Soames—and I am open to bet he hasn't left London—we shall find the right Mr. King."

Soames began to turn his head, inch by inch, until he saw the speakers.

The taller of the two, a man wearing a glistening brown overall and rain-drenched tweed cap, was the detective who had been in Leroux's study and who had ordered him to his room on the night of the murder!

"No good stopping any longer," came the whispered voice of the shorter detective; "I have had a good look around the house, and there is nobody here." . . .

Soames literally held his breath.

"We'll get along down to the Dock Gate," was the almost inaudable reply; "I am meeting Stringer there at 9 o'clock."

Walking softly, the Scotland Yard men passed out of the theater.

The night held yet another adventure in store for Soames. His encounter with the two Scotland Yard men had finally expelled all thoughts of pleasure from his mind. The upper world, the free world, was beset with pitfalls; he realized that for the present, at any rate, there could be no security for him, save in the catacombs of Ho-Pin. He came out of the music hall and stood for a moment just outside the foyer, glancing fearfully up and down the rain-swept street. Then, resuming the drenched raincoat which he had taken off in the theater, he set out to return to the garage adjoining the warehouse of Kan-Suh Concessions.

No light guided him to the garage door, and he was forced to seek for the handle by groping along the wall. Presently, his hand came in contact with it, he turned it—and the way was open before him.

Soames knocked deferentially. No response came to his knocking, and he ventured to push the door open.

The cave of the golden dragon was empty! Half frightfully, Soames glanced about the singular apartment.

There was no one there; but the door on the right—the door inlaid with ebony and green stone, which he had never yet seen open, was open now, widely opened. He glided across the floor, his wet boots creaking unmusically, and peeped through. He saw a matting-lined corrider identical with that known as Block A. The door of one apartment, that on the extreme left, was opened. Sickly fumes were wafted out to him, and these mingled with the incense-like odor which characterized the temple of the dragon.

A moment he stood so, then started back, appalled.

An outcry—the outcry of a woman, of a woman whose very soul is assailed—split the stillness. Not from the passageway before him, but from somewhere behind him—from the direction of Block A—it came.

"For God's sake—oh! for God's sake, have mercy! Let me go! . . . let me go!" Higher, shriller, more fearful and urgent, grew the voice—"Let me go!" . .

Soames staggered on to his own room and literally fell within—as across the cave of the golden dragon, behind him, someone—one whom he did not see but only heard, one who with all his soul he hoped had not seen him—passed rapidly.

They were dragging someone—someone who sighed, shudderingly, and whose sighs sank to moans, and sometimes rose to sobs—across the apartment of the dragon. In a faint, dying voice, the woman spoke again:

"Not Mr. King! . . . Not Mr. King! . . . Is there no God in heaven!. . . [illegible] me . . . spare" . . .

was rendered sound proof in some way, so that what took place in one would be inaudible to the occupant of the next, provided that both doors were closed.

Obviously there had been some mishap in the usually smooth conduct of Ho-Pin's catacombs.

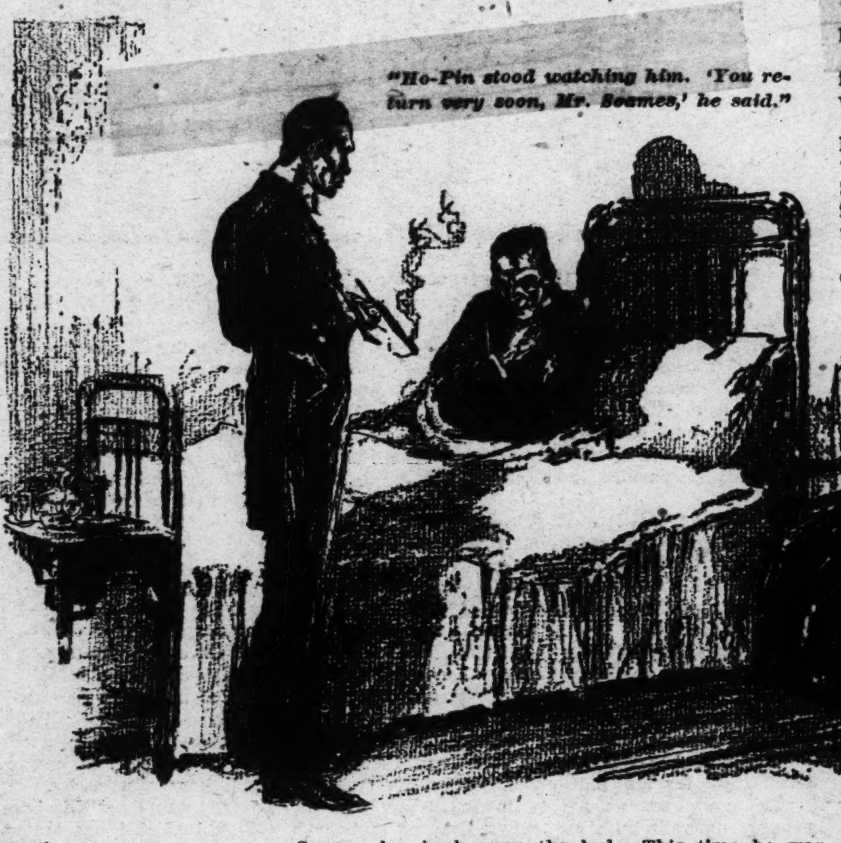
Dull moaning sounds reached Soames through the trap. A very dim light was dawning there, breaking the otherwise impenetrable darkness.

Soames felt that his capacity for fear was strained to its utmost; yet a new horror was in store for him; for, as he watched that gray patch, in it, as in a frame, a black silhouette appeared—the silhouette of a human head . . . a woman's head!

A whistle, an eerie, minor whistle, subscribed the ultimate touch of terror to the night. The silhouette disappeared and, shortly afterwards, the gray luminance. A faint click told of some shutter being fastened; complete silence reigned.

Soames groped his way to the bed and fell weakly upon it. A faint streak of light from the corridor outside shone under his door.

There was a very soft rasping of metal. Someone was opening the door!



"Ho-Pin stood watching him. 'You return very soon, Mr. Soames,' he said."

Soames lay back upon the bed. This time he was past further panic and come to a stage of sickly apathy. He lay, now, because he could not sit upright, because stark horror had robbed him of physical strength, and had drained the well of his emotions dry.

Gradually—so that the operation seemed to occupy an interminable time, the door opened, and in the opening a figure appeared.

The switch clicked and the room was flooded with electric light.

Ho-Pin stood watching him.

Soames—in his eyes that indescribable expression seen in the eyes of a bird placed in a cobra's den—met the Chinaman's gaze. This gaze was no different from that which habitually he directed upon the people of the catacombs. His yellow face was set in the same mirthless smile, and his eyebrows were raised interrogatively. For the space of 10 seconds he stood watching the man on the bed. Then:

"You wreturn vewry soon, Mr. Soames?" he said, softly.

Soames groaned like a dying man, whispering:

"I was . . . taken ill—very ill."

"So you wreturn befowre the time awranged for you?"

His metallic voice was sunk in a soothing hiss. He smiled steadily; he betrayed no emotion.

"Yes . . . sir," whispered Soames, his hair clammily adhering to his brow and beads of perspiration trickling slowly down his nose.

"And when you wreturn, you see and you hear—stwrange things, Mr. Soames?"

Soames, who was in imminent danger of becoming physically ill, gulped noisily.

"No, sir," he whispered—tremulously, "I've been—in here all the time."

Ho-Pin nodded, slowly and sympathetically, but never removed the glittering eyes from the face of the man on the bed.

"So you hear nothing, and see nothing?"

The words were spoken even more softly than he had spoken hitherto.

"Nothing," protested Soames. He suddenly began to tremble anew, and his trembling rattled the bed. "I have been—very ill indeed, sir."

Ho-Pin nodded again slowly, and with deep sympathy.

"Some medicine shall be sent to you, Mr. Soames," he said.

He turned and went out slowly, closing the door

CHAPTER XIII.

Abraham Levinsky Butts In.

AT about the time that this conversation w taking place in Ho-Pin's catacombs, D Inspector Dunbar and Detective-Ser erby were joined by a third re New Scotland Yard at the appointed gates. This was Stringer, the babes unborn. You can take me, Chinatown hasn't got a murder on its conscien present. Brr! it's a beastly night. Suppose we ha one?"

Dunbar nodded, and the three wet investigat walked back for some little distance in silence, pre ently emerging via a narrow, dark, uninviting alleyway into West India Dock road. A brilliantly lighted hostelry proved to be their objective, and there, in a quiet corner of the deserted billiard room, over their glasses, they discussed this mysterious case, which at first had looked so simple of solution if only because it offered so many unusual features, but which, the dee probed, merely revealed fresh complic

"The business of those Fry people, a rotten disappointment," said Dunbar, were merely paid by the late Mrs. Ver letters to a little newspaper shop in where an untraceable boy used to call for has just reported this evening. Perth structions, but it's a dead-end, I'm afraid."

"You know," said Sowerby, fishing a pie from the brown froth of a fine example by Guinness, "to my mind our hope's in Soames; and if we want to find Soames, to my mind we want to look, not east, but west."

"Hear, hear!" concorded Stringer, gloomily sipping hot rum.

"It seems to me," continued Sowerby, "that Limehouse is about the last place in the world a man like Soames would think of hiding in."

"It isn't where he'll be thinking of hiding," snapped Dunbar, turning his fierce eyes upon the last speaker. "You can't seem to get the idea out of your head, Sowerby, that Soames is an independent agent. He isn't an independent agent. He's only the servant; and through the servant we hope to find the master."

"But why in the East End?" came the plaintive voice of Stringer; "for only one reason, that I can see—because Max says that there's a Chinaman in the case."

"There's opium in the case, isn't there?" said Dunbar, "and where there's opium there is pretty frequently a Chinaman."

"But to my mind," persisted Sowerby, his eyebrows drawn together in a frown of concentration, "the place where Mrs. Vernon used to get the opium was the place we raided in Gillingham street."

"Nurse Proctor's!" cried Stringer, banging his fist down on the table. "Exactly my idea! There may have been a Chinaman concerned in the management of the Gillingham street stunt, or there may not, but I'll swear that was where the opium was supplied. In fact, I don't think that there's any doubt about it. Medical evidence (opinions differed a bit, certainly) went to show that she had been addicted to opium for some years. Other evidence—you got it yourself, Inspector—went to show that she came from Gillingham street on the night of the murder. Gillingham street crowd vanished like a beautiful dream before we had time to nab them! What more do you want? What are we up to, messing about in Limehouse and Wapping?"

Sowerby partook of a long drink and turned his eyes upon Dunbar, awaiting the Inspector's reply.

"You both have the wrong idea!" said Dunbar, deliberately; "you are all wrong! You seem to be under the impression that if we could lay our hands upon the missing staff of the so-called Nursing Home we should find the assassin to be one of the crowd. It doesn't follow at all. For a long time you, Sowerby," —he turned his tawny eyes upon the Sergeant—"had the idea that Soames was the murderer, and I'm not sure that you have got rid of it yet! You, Stringer, appear to think that Nurse Proctor is responsible. Upon my word, you are a hopeless pair! Suppose Soames had nothing whatever to do with the matter, but merely realized that he could not prove an alibi? Wouldn't you bolt? I put it to you."

Sowerby stared hard, and Stringer scratched his chin reflectively.

"The same reasoning applies to the Gillingham street people," continued Dunbar. "We haven't the slightest idea of their whereabouts because we don't even know who they were; but we do know something about Soames, and we're looking for him, not because we think he did the murder, but because we think he can tell who did."

"Which brings us back to the old point," interrup Stringer, softly beating his fist upon the table at word; "why are we looking for Soames in End?"

"Because," replied Dunbar, "we're work theory that Soames, though actually no the crime, was in the pay who juries often unable to discover dacity of these "pathological liars"

Often they are children of good families, unusually bright, whose utterly false charges a lawyer would scarcely challenge and a juror would hardly doubt

HOW many innocent men have been sent to prison through the testimony of young children will never be known, but a St. Louis attorney of wide practice recently said that if the aggregate could be compiled it would be staggering. The lawyer said this at random, but it is a serious question over which other lawyers have been pondering, and the beginning of a scientific study of it has been made.

Dr. William Healy, director of the Psychopathic Institute of Chicago, which is under the supervision of the Juvenile Court of Cook County, and Mary Tenney Healy have made a long and exhaustive study of the subject, using as their laboratory materials selected cases from the 2000 juvenile delinquencies which come before the Juvenile Court every year.

The results of their labor have just been published in book form under the title, "Pathological Lying, Accusation and Swindling" (Little, Brown & Co.), and is the first of a series of monograph supplements to the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, official organ of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology. It is so published because the editors of that journal believe there is urgent need for attorneys and Judges to inform themselves scientifically on the subject.

Part of the book's subject matter is by no means new. It has long been known that persons suffering from hysteria, epilepsy and other mental and bodily infirmities are wont to make false charges of the most repugnant character against innocent persons and even against themselves. Yet these are cases in which the infirmity of the witness often might be discovered by proper medical examination or might even reveal itself under the ordeal of cross-examination. There is another class of juvenile liars, infinitely more deadly.

Often they are children of good families, unusually bright, with good presence, a good flow of intelligible, coherent language, sometimes from excellent homes, with every outward appearance of being normal, healthy boys and girls, whose infamous tales a lawyer would scarcely challenge and a juror would hardly doubt. A man accused of an offense by one of these is half-convicted by the accusation itself.

The Healys call them "pathological liars," and give the definition, "pathological lying is falsification entirely disproportionate to any discernable end in view, engaged in by a person who, at the time of observation, cannot definitely be declared insane, feeble-minded or epileptic." They are altogether different from the normal liar, who is continually on guard for fear his prevarication will be discovered, for "the pathological liar has a cheerful, open, free, enthusiastic, charming appearance, because he believes in his stories and wishes their reality."

They give full and convincing details. They reflect their emotions in their face. Their countenances mirror whatever the lie is trying to convey, whether it is horror, repulsion, dramatic interest or a profound conviction of truth. They are not easily trapped by inconsistencies in narrative or in repetition. They deceive only parents, friends, lawyers, Judges, jurors, news-
r reporters, but they very often deceive themselves, t while they are in the throes of lying.

cent were girls and less than 1 per cent were boys. Foreign investigators have found the same thing. One of them declares he has found many more girl liars than boy liars and that in most instances boys lie only from motives of self-defense, while girls lie from auto-suggestion. As a consequence, the authors make the following declaration:

A general observation by practical students of conduct, namely that females tend to deviate from the truth more readily than males, is more than thoroughly borne out here."

As to pathological liars, the authors quote the analysi of the character of these juveniles made recently by Bernard Risch, a German investigator, who, describing them, said: "Their range of ideas is wide. Their range of interests is wider than would be expected from their grade of education. Their perceptions are better than the average. They are nimble witted. Their oral and written style is above the ordinary. They exhibit faultiness in the development of conceptions and judgments. Their judgment is sharp and clear only as far as their own person does not come into consideration."

One common characteristic of pathological liars is a great aptitude for language, as shown by conversational ability and even an ability to write compositions. They may engage in lying quite apart from an expression of delusions and during their lying no evidences of insanity may be recognized. As a general thing they begin extremely young and the trait grows in them, often lasting until after complete maturity or even throughout the entire lifetime.

"We may call attention," say the authors, "to the fact, which is of great social importance, namely that the person who is seemingly normal in all other respects may be a pathological liar. It might naturally be expected that the feeble-minded, who have feeble discernment of the relation of cause and effect, including the phenomena of conduct, would often lie without normal cause. As a matter of fact, there is surprisingly little of this among them, and one can find numerous mental defectives who are faithful tellers of the truth."

Some of the cases used to illustrate the book forcibly reveal the peril of the child liar, unless he is discovered before it is too late. One instance was that of a girl of 13, who, because of a fancied grievance, accused her mother and her stepfather of the murder of an epileptic infant. She told of how the baby was beaten with whips, of how a candle was put to its feet to blister it as a punishment and of how finally its life was destroyed.

Her tale caused a stir of horror throughout the entire community and the mother and stepfather were almost in danger of mob violence. Yet it turned out that the whole story was a fabrication. The child had died from its disease. What she declared were marks of a whip were an irruption from a skin ailment and the blistered feet were caused by hot bricks put into the baby's bed to warm it. This child liar began her career at the age of 8.

Another account is given of a girl of 13 who had obtained money from sympathetic persons through fanciful tales and finally made a serious accusation against a man whom she had never seen before. This poor chap was facing the penitentiary, with little hope, when it was discovered that her story was wholly manufactured. Her history showed that the girl had begun lying viciously at 6 or 7 years.

Another girl, Bessie, 9 1-2 years old, caused the arrest of her father and brother on an infamous charge. She told a circumstantial tale of how her mother was drinking to excess and how her three elder sister were living improper lives and how she alone fought to retain her purity in a contaminated house. Every bit of t was a lie, yet it brought about the arrest of the father
d brother, who had been already condemned as guilty the public opinion of their community. Her father her instances, all more or less variations are recited. In some cases, the habit tenderest childhood almost up to the thirties, a notable case being that of a woman of 28 who visited many cities, including St. Louis, telling many stories of abuse and neglect about worthy people, feigning illness to get into hospitals and showing a disregard for the truth that would have been sublime if it had not been so dangerous.

"It is very easy to see," say the authors, "that the tendency to pathological lying begins in the early formative years. Common-sense observation of general character building would tend to make us readily believe that if an individual got through the formative years of life with a normal hold on veracity, he would never become a pathological liar. We can see definite beginnings at certain critically formative periods, but our material shows that most cases demonstrate more gradually insidious beginnings. It is clear from the previous studies of older individuals that the nature of the beginnings was not learned because it was too late.

Tables are given to show that some of the beginnings may be traced to heredity, as in cases where parents have been epileptics and alcoholics. Far more are shown as due to unfortunate environment, through ignorance, poverty, neglect and marked defect in parental control. Habit has undoubtedly a great deal to do with it, and children can form this habit very early in life.

Pathological lying is usually accompanied by other childish offenses, such as running away from home, swindling, stealing, truancy. Once the habit of lying is formed, the cure is extremely difficult and the authors fear it is rarely eradicated except under the most favorable circumstances, such as change of environment, associates and methods of living.

"In discussing treatment," they say, "great emphasis should be placed upon the primary necessity for directly meeting the pathological liar upon the level of the moral failures and making it plain that these are known and understood. It is very certain that frequently this type of prevaricator has very little conception of the social antagonism which his habit arouses. There is faulty apperception as to how others feel towards the lying, and to what depths the practice of this habit leads.

ADAM AND EVE OF THE WOODS

familiarity with the properties of 3000 roots and herbs, and he puts in part of his time gathering these for the drug trade, as well as quantities of ferns for Bangor and Portland florists, with whom he has a contract to furnish 100 pounds a day. He also busies himself in his spare moments with making Christmas wreaths, for supplying several thousands of which he also has a contract.

As a messenger between themselves and the outside world, the couple have Lou Mann, an uncle of Mrs. Estes and a professional guide. Every few days he makes his way to their camp. If they are absent, they leave messages written with coals on birchbark, and he carries these back with the collection of ferns, roots and herbs.

Mrs. Estes is short and dark-haired, and of muscular build for a woman. Her husband is tall and slim, something over six feet in height, and wears a huge mop of red hair, about the reddest one has ever seen. He calls it his protection against deer-hunters, should any of these blunder near his retreat.

Estes declared that one of his reasons for hoping to kill a deer was to obtain a supply of bread. What has a deer to do with bread? the reader may ask. Estes explains that the blood will be saved in a bark bucket, mixed with pounded roots, molded into loaves, and baked on the coals.

The experiment, even as far as it has gone, might have proved fatal to persons less hardy than Estes and his wife. Not every man and woman, while garbed in leaves, could be soaked to the skin by a cold rain, such as fell on their first night, lie down with no covering but boughs, and escape without pneumonia. But the modern Adam and Eve say they never felt in better health in their lives.

last summer she went to California and, to the scandal of the musical highbrows, but to the and advertising profit of herself, undertook the role of "Carmen" in a cinema version of the piece in which she had triumphed on the operatic stage.

One might fancy that a luminary of Miss Farrar's magnitude would scarcely have an eye for the humble thespians revolving about her in the populous studios of Los Angeles. But she has always been a woman of sharp eyes and of tireless curiosity in other human beings. So, if the regular movie actors were thrilled at finding among themselves a cantatrice famous on two continents, she repaid their attention with interest, finding endless things of fascination in the new world she had entered—one so different from that familiar to her on the opera stage.

So it happened that one of her eager glances fell upon a tall and slender young girl, with an exquisite and expressive face and an abundance of natural curls, who was a recruit of only a few weeks in one of the movie companies stationed at Los Angeles. The diva made inquiries and found that the child was Miss Marjorie Daw, a 14-year-old high school girl, who lived in Los Angeles with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. House.

Young Miss Daw's work was, of course, confined to parts of the most minor character, and was as crude as one would expect from her youth and inexperience. But the opera star believed she had the ability to detect a diamond in the rough, and soon became convinced that she had found one. Here was a fresh and girlish face, a personality young and unspoiled, and plenty of what Miss Farrar was sure was latent talent. With proper training, she believed, the uncut diamond would become a polished and brilliant jewel in the diadem of movie stars.

The girl was unconscious that the eye of fate was upon her, or that a fairy godmother had taken her into guardianship, and went faithfully about the little, obscure parts assigned to her. But Miss Farrar was whispering the words of the child's destiny to one of those despots of the films—a managing director.

"Such talent as that," said the diva, "should not be wasted."

These eight words were sufficient to make the girl's fortune. The director, bowing with unusual pliability before the judgment of the most notable star he had ever filmed, instantly agreed to lift the unknown girl midnight, and, sure enough, there was a light in the back part. Costello burst open the door, and when they all rushed down on the scene of the crime, they found Clayt and half a dozen of us manfully smoking up a box of stogies which a slick traveling man had unloaded on him. Mrs. Saunders insisted that crime was about to be committed and got so excited that she repeated Clayt's exact words—in the middle of which a great light came to her, and she said she was going home.

"I think you had better," said Clayt, "and I'll tell you something more. You listen to other people's affairs more than is good for you."

But she hasn't since.

Of course you don't have these troubles. But whenever I see New York people harboring telephones in their homes which absolutely decline to be civil until you feed them five cents, I think of our Homeburg blessings and am content. Six dollars a year buys a telephone at home, and about the only families which haven't telephones are a few widows who live frugally on nothing a year, and old Mr. Stephens, who has $100,000 loaned out on mortgages and spends half an hour picking out the biggest eggs when he buys half a dozen.

There isn't a farm within 10 miles which isn't connected with the town, and while the desk 'phone is a novelty with us and we still have to grind away at a handle to get Central, we can put just as much conversation into the transmitter and take just as much out of the receiver as if we were connected with a million telephones. Our Homeburg 'phones are old fashioned; and the lines sound as if eleven million bees were holding indignation meetings on them, but they have made a big family out of three counties, and I guess they will take care of us all right—so long as Carrie holds out and we can keep that Sam fellow where he belongs.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 354 B, Marcellus Avenue, Manasquain, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—ADV.

Stringer, the argumentative.

"It is," snapped Dunbar. "We have only got one Chinatown worthy of the name in London, and that's not ten minutes' walk from here."

"Chinatown—yes," said Sowerby, his red face glistening with excitement; "but why look for Mr. King is Chinatown?"

"Because," replied Dunbar, lowering his voice, "Mr. King in all probability is a Chinaman."

"Who says so?" demanded Stringer.

"Max says so." . . .

"Max!"—again Stringer beat his fist upon the table. "Now we have got to it! We're working, then, not on our own theories, but on those of Max?"

Dunbar's sallow face flushed slightly, and his eyes seemed to grow brighter.

"Mr. Gaston Max obtained information in Paris," he said, "which he placed, unreservedly, at my disposal. We went into the matter thoroughly, with the result that our conclusions were identical. A certain Mr. King is at the bottom of this mystery and, in all probability, Mr. King is a Chinaman. Do I make myself clear?"

Sowerby and Stringer looked at one another perplexedly. Each man finished his drink in silence. Then:

"What took place in Paris?" began Sowerby.

There was an interruption. A stooping figure in a shabby, black frock coat, the figure of a man who wore a dilapidated bowler pressed down upon his ears, who had a greasy, Semitic countenance, with a scrubby, curling, sandy-colored beard, sparse as the vegetation of a desert, appeared at Sowerby's elbow.

He carried a brimming pewter pot. This he set down upon a corner of the table, depositing himself in a convenient chair and pulling out a very dirty looking letter from an inside pocket. He smoothed it carefully. He peered, little-eyed, from the frowning face of Dunbar to the surprised countenance of Sowerby, and smiled with native amiability at the dangerous-looking Stringer.

"Excuthe me," he said, and his propitiatory smile was expansive and dazzling, "excuthe me buttin' in like thith. It theemth rude, I know—it doth theem rude; but the fact of the matter ith I'm a tailor—that's my pithneth, a tailor. When I thay a tailor, I really mean a breecheth maker—tha'th what I mean, a breecheth maker. Now thethe timeth ith very har timeth for breecheth makerth."

Dunbar finished his whisky, and quietly replaced the glass upon the table, looking from Sowerby to Stringer with unmistakable significance. Stringer emptied his glass of rum and Sowerby disposed of his stout.

"I got thith letter lath night," continued the breeches maker, bending forward confidentially over the table. (The document looked at least twelve months old.) I got thith letter latht night with thethe three fiverth in it; and not havin' no friendth in London—I'm an American thitithen, by birth—Levinthky, my name ith—Abraham Levinthky—I'm a Noo Englander. Well, not havin' no friendth in London, and theein' you three gentlemen thittin' here, I took the liberty" . . .

Dunbar stood up, glared at Levinsky, and stalked out of the billiard room, followed by his equally indignant satellites. Having gained the outer door:

"Of all the blasted impudence!" he said, turning to Sowerby and Stringer; but there was a glint of merriment in the fierce eyes. "Can you beat that? Did you tumble to his game?"

Sowerby stared at Stringer and Stringer stared at Sowerby.

"Except," began the latter in a voice hushed with amazement, "that he's got the coolest cheek of any mortal being I ever met." . . .

Dunbar's grim face relaxed, and he laughed boyishly, his square shoulders shaking.

"He was leading up to the confidence trick!" he said, between laughs. "Damn it all, man, it was the old confidence trick! The idea of a confidence merchant spreading out his wares before three C. I. D. men!"

He was choking with laughter again; and now Sowerby and Stringer having looked at one another for a moment, the surprised pair joined him in his merriment. They turned up their collars and went out into the rain, still laughing.

"That man," said Sowerby, as they walked across to the stopping place of the electric trams, "is capable of calling on the Commissioner and asking him to 'find the lady!'"

Certainly, such impudence as that of Mr. Levinsky is rare even in East-End London, and it may be worth while to return to the corner of the billiard room and to study more closely this remarkable man.

He was sitting where the detectives had left him, and although their departure might have been supposed to have depressed him, actually it had had a contrary effect; he was chuckling with amusement, and, between his chuckles, addressing himself to the contents of the pewter with every mark of appreciation. Three gleaming golden teeth on the lower row, and one glittering canine, made a dazzling show every time that he smiled; he was a very greasy and a very mirthful Hebrew.

Finishing his tankard of ale he shuffled out into the street, the line of his bent shoulders running parallel with that of his hat brim. His hat appeared to be several sizes too large for his head, and his skull was only prevented from disappearing into the capacious crown by his ears, which, acting as brackets, supported the whole weight of the rain-sodden structure. He mounted a tram proceeding in the same direction as that which had borne off the Scotland Yard men. Quitting this at Bow road, he shuffled into the railway station, and from Bow road proceeded to Liverpool street. Emerging from the station at Liverpool street, he entered a motor bus bound westward.

His neighbors, inside, readily afforded him ample elbow room; and, smiling agreeably at everyone, including the conductor (who resented his good humor) nd a pretty girl in the corner seat (who found it emrrassing) he proceeded to Charing Cross. Descending om the 'bus, he passed out into Leicester Square and nged into the network of streets which complicates map of Soho. It will be of interest to follow him.

a narrow turning off Greek street, and within hail popular Bohemian restaurants, he paused before way sandwiched between a Continenal newsand a tiny French cafe; and, having fumbled in y raiment he presently produced a key, opened or, carefully closed it behind him, and mounted ark stair.

the top floor he entered a studio, boasting a skylight upon which the rain was drumming steadily and drearily. Lighting a gas burner in one corner of the place, which bore no evidence of being used for its legitimate purpose, he entered a little adjoining dressing room. Hot and cold water were laid on there, and a large zinc bath stood upon the floor. With the aid of an enamel bucket Mr. Abraham Levinsky filled the bath.

Leaving him to his ablutions, let us glance around the dressing room. Although there was no easel in the studio, and no indication of artistic activity, the dressing room was well stocked with costumes. Two huge dress baskets were piled in one corner, and their contents hung upon hooks around the three available walls. A dressing table, with a triplicate mirror and a suitably shaded light, presented a spectacle reminiscent less of a model's dressing room than of an actor's.

At the expiration of some twenty-five minutes the door of this dressing room opened; and although Abraham Levinsky had gone in, Abraham Levinsky did not come out!

Carefully flicking a particle of ash from a fold of his elegant, silk-lined cloak, a most distinguished looking gentleman stepped out onto the bleak and dirty studio. He wore, in addition to a graceful cloak, which was lined with silk of cardinal red, a soft black hat, rather wide brimmed and dented in a highly artistic manner, and irreproachable evening clothes; his linen was immaculate; and no valet in London could have surpassed the perfect knotting of his tie. His pearl studs were elegant and valuable; and a single eyeglass was swung about his neck by a thin, gold chain. The white gloves, which fitted perfectly, were new; and if the glossy boots were rather long in the toe-cap from an English point of view, the gold-headed malacca cane which the newcomer carried was quite de rigueur.

The strong, clean-shaven face calls for no description here; it was the face of M. Gaston Max.

M. Max, having locked the study door, and carefully tried it to make certain of its security, descended the stairs. He peeped out cautiously into the street ere setting foot upon the pavement; but no one was in sight at the moment and he emerged quickly, closing the door behind him, and taking shelter under the newsagent's awning. The rain continued its steady downpour, but M. Max stood there softly humming a little French melody until a taxicab crawled into view around the Greek street corner.

He whistled shrilly through his teeth—the whistle of a gamin; and the cabman, glancing up and perceiving him, pulled around into the turning and drew up by the awning.

M. Max entered the cab.

"To Frascati's," he directed.

The cabman backed out into Greek street and drove off. This was the hour when the theaters were beginning to eject their throngs and outside one of them, where a popular comedy had celebrated its 350th performance, the press of cabs and private cars was so great that M. Max found himself delayed within sight of the theater foyer.

Those patrons of the comedy who had omitted to order vehicles or who did not possess private conveyances, found themselves in a quandary tonight, and amongst those thus unfortunately situated, M. Max, watching the scene with interest, detected a lady whom he knew—none other than the delightful American whose conversation had enlivened his recent journey from Paris—Miss Denise Ryland. She was accompanied by a charming companion, who, although she was wrapped up in a warm theater cloak, seemed to be shivering disconsolately as she and her friend watched the interminable stream of vehicles filing up before the theater and cutting them off from obtaining a cab for themselves.

Mr. Max acted promptly.

"Drive into that side turning!" he directed the cabman, leaning out of the window. The cabman followed his directions, and M. Max, heedless of the inclement weather, descended from the cab, dodged actively between the head lamps of a big Mercedes and the taillight of a taxi, and stood bowing before the two ladies, his hat pressed to his bosom with one gloved hand, the other, ungloved, resting upon the gold knob of the malacca.

"Why!" cried Miss Ryland, "if it isn't . . . M. Gaston! My dear . . . M. Gaston! Come under the awning, or"—her head was wagging furiously—"you will be . . . simply drowned."

M. Max smilingly complied.

"This is M. Gaston," said Denise Ryland, turning to her companion, "the French gentleman . . . whom I met in the train from . . .

"I had hoped," said the Frenchman, bowing gallantly, "that this most happy reunion might not be allowed to pass uncelebrated. Tell me if I intrude upon other plans, because I am speaking selfishly; but I was on my way to a lonely supper, and apart from the great pleasur which your company would afford me, you would such very good Samaritans if you would join me."

Helen Cumberly, although she was succumbing rapidly to the singular fascination of M. Max, exhibited a certain hesitancy. She was no stranger to Bohemian customs, and if the distinguished Frenchman had been an old friend of her companion's, she should have accepted without demur; but she knew that the acquaintance had commenced in a Continental railway train, and her natural prudence instinctively took up a brief for the prosecution. But Denise Ryland had other views.

"My dear girl," she said, "you are not going to be so . . . crack-brained . . . as to stand here arguing and contracting . . . rheumatism, lu . . . and other absurd complaints . . . when know perfectly well that we had already arranged to . . . to supper!" She turned to the smiling Max. "This girl needs . . . dragging out of . . . her morbid self . . . M. Gaston! We'll accept . . . your cab, on the distinct . . . understanding that you are to accept our invitation . . . to supper."

M. Max bowed agreeably.

"By all means let my cab take us to your supper," he said, laughing.

So they set out, a merry trio, for the Cumberly domicile at Palace Mansions. Any distrust which Helen had experienced at first was replaced now by the esteem which every one of discrimination (criminals exclude formed of M. Max. She perceived in him a very exq ite gentleman, and before the acquaintance wa minutes old, counted him a friend. As for was obviously delighted at this sudden a renewal of the congenial acquaintance m cent trip from Paris.

New National Shrine for the Heroic Dead

THE new national Valhalla, the $750,000 memorial amphitheater in honor of America's heroic dead—soldiers and sailors, past, present and future—which is building in Arlington Cemetery on the hills of Virginia across the Potomac River from Washington, will be the most magnificent [illegible] of the kind in the world. The [illegible]rstone was laid with impressive [illegible]remonies on Oct. 13, and the roofless temple will be completed in the spring of 1917. It is planned to hold the dedication ceremonies on Memorial day of that year.

In his address at the laying of the cornerstone, Secretary Daniels said:

"This is a substantial symbol, expressive of the national appreciation of valor. It is recognition of the grand democracy of the dead. It marks the eternal cementing of the republic that the home of Lee is the burial place of the glorious company of Grant's invincible army, and of the equally brave soldiers who fought with Lee."

The temple will be constructed of pure white Vermont marble, and its snowy, gleaming columns will be in view from all vantage points in the national capital. The amphitheater will be an open-air auditorium, 260 feet wide from front to back and 236 feet from side to side. It will have 5000 white marble seats, arranged in semi-circular form, and rising in tiers from a stage running the long way of the auditorium. At the east front will stand a reception building, also built of white marble; this will contain a hall on the first floor, and on the second a museum for relics bespeaking the heroism of the nation's dead.

The architecture is thoroughly classic in style, and in the form of an elliptical colonnade. It will include a chapel, will have places for statues and tablets, and also is fitted with catacombs to receive the dust of any great American of the present or future who is adjudged worthy.

An act of Congress of March 3, 1913, authorized the construction of this memorial and appropriated $750,000 for the work.

The new amphitheater will supersede a small and wholly inadequate building constructed many years ago and capable of seating only a few hundred persons. The old structure is attractive, its shining white pillars being covered with green vines, but for many years there have been complaints because the large majority of those attending ceremonies at Arlington have been compelled to HUSH, COLONEL— DON'T WAKE HIM UP!

I'VE BEEN ROBBED OF $10,000!
GIVE US THE DETAILS, PLEASE!
H
I RECEIVED THE MONEY TOO LATE TO TAKE IT TO THE BANK, SO I PUT IT IN A BAG UNDER MY PILLOW.— THIS MORNING IT WAS GONE!
MOVIES 5¢
THERE'S THE GANG! THEY'RE BLOWING IN THE MONEY NOW! GRAB THEM BEFORE THEY SPEND IT ALL!
TUT, TUT, COLONEL— I NEVER ARREST ANYONE ON SUSPICION!
THE DOOR WAS STILL SECURELY LOCK LIKE THIS, THIS MORN
VERY MYSTERIOUS!
THE WINDOW, TOO, IS STILL LOCKED ON THE INSIDE!
I DEDUCE FROM THESE BREAD CRUMBS THAT YOU HAD BREAKFAST IN BED THIS MORNING!
NO, MR. HAWKSHAW. I WAS TOO AGITATED TO EAT ANY BREAKFAST THIS MORNING!
JUST AS I THOUGHT! HERE'S A KNIFE WITH BUTTER ON IT, AND SOME BREAD, RECENTLY CUT— SOMEONE HAS HAD A REPAST!
A VERY BAFFLING CASE!
THE BURGLAR MUST HAVE HELPED HIMSELF— THAT BREAD WAS UNCUT WHEN I WENT TO BED!
DOOR LOCKED!— WINDOW LOCKED!— NO OTHER ENTRANCE— CRUMBS! MIDNIGHT LUNCH!
DON'T DISTURB HIM SIR— HE'S THINKING!
BY THE WAY— DID YOU SLEEP SOUNDLY LAST NIGHT, SIR, OR DID YOU HAVE ANY DREAMS?
I HAD A VERY RESTLESS NIGHT. MY FATHER APPEARED TO ME IN A DREAM AND SAID, "JOHN, I'LL TAKE CARE OF THAT MONEY FOR YOU!"
AND THIS, I PRESUME, IS YOUR FATHER'S PORTRAIT— I CAN SEE THE RESEMBLANCE.
YES, AND THE OTHER ONE IS MY MOTHER.
AS YOU SEE, HE HAS DONE SO!
BUT WHO—?
YOU YOURSELF! WORRIED NO DOUBT ON ACCOUNT OF THE MONEY, WALKED IN YOUR SLEEP

The VEILED ROPHET'S BALL, 1915 — FIRST PHOTOGRAPH EVER TAKEN.

For thirty-eight years, in each October, hundreds of thousands of people have witnessed the rare beauty of the parade of the Veiled Prophet with its many and varied costly floats; all gorgeously illuminated, but only a comparatively limited number have seen the magnificent ball which has been the culmination of the great St. Louis outdoor spectacle. The first photograph ever made at any Veiled Prophet ball was taken this year and is reproduced above. It was a time exposure—not a flashlight.

Gil Anderson winner of Astor cup race. His time was 3.24.42. for 350 miles, or 102 miles an hour.

The New Way In Typewriting

A revolutionary new method, totally different from anything known heretofore, is doubling and trebling salaries of typists in all parts of the country. Already, hundreds formerly earning but $8 to $15 a week are drawing $25, $35 and even $50 weekly, and their work is easier than ever before. A wholly new idea. Greatest step since invention of typewriter itself—based on Gymnastic Finger Training.

Amazing Speed—Easy for All

Results felt from first day's use. Entire system quickly learned at home in spare time. No interference with regular work. Speed and accuracy are what business men want and they will pay worth-while salaries only to those who have them. This new system enables anyone to write blindfolded without a single mistake.

So certain are results that we offer the entire course on trial. Costs nothing unless you're fully satisfied.

Send for big illustrated 48-page book explaining system, telling all about the wonderful Gymnastic Finger Training and containing letters from hundreds of graduates whose salaries have already been increased $300, $500 and up to $2000 yearly.

Write for free book today—a postal will do—no obligation—we'll send it by return post. But don't delay, this announcement may not appear again.

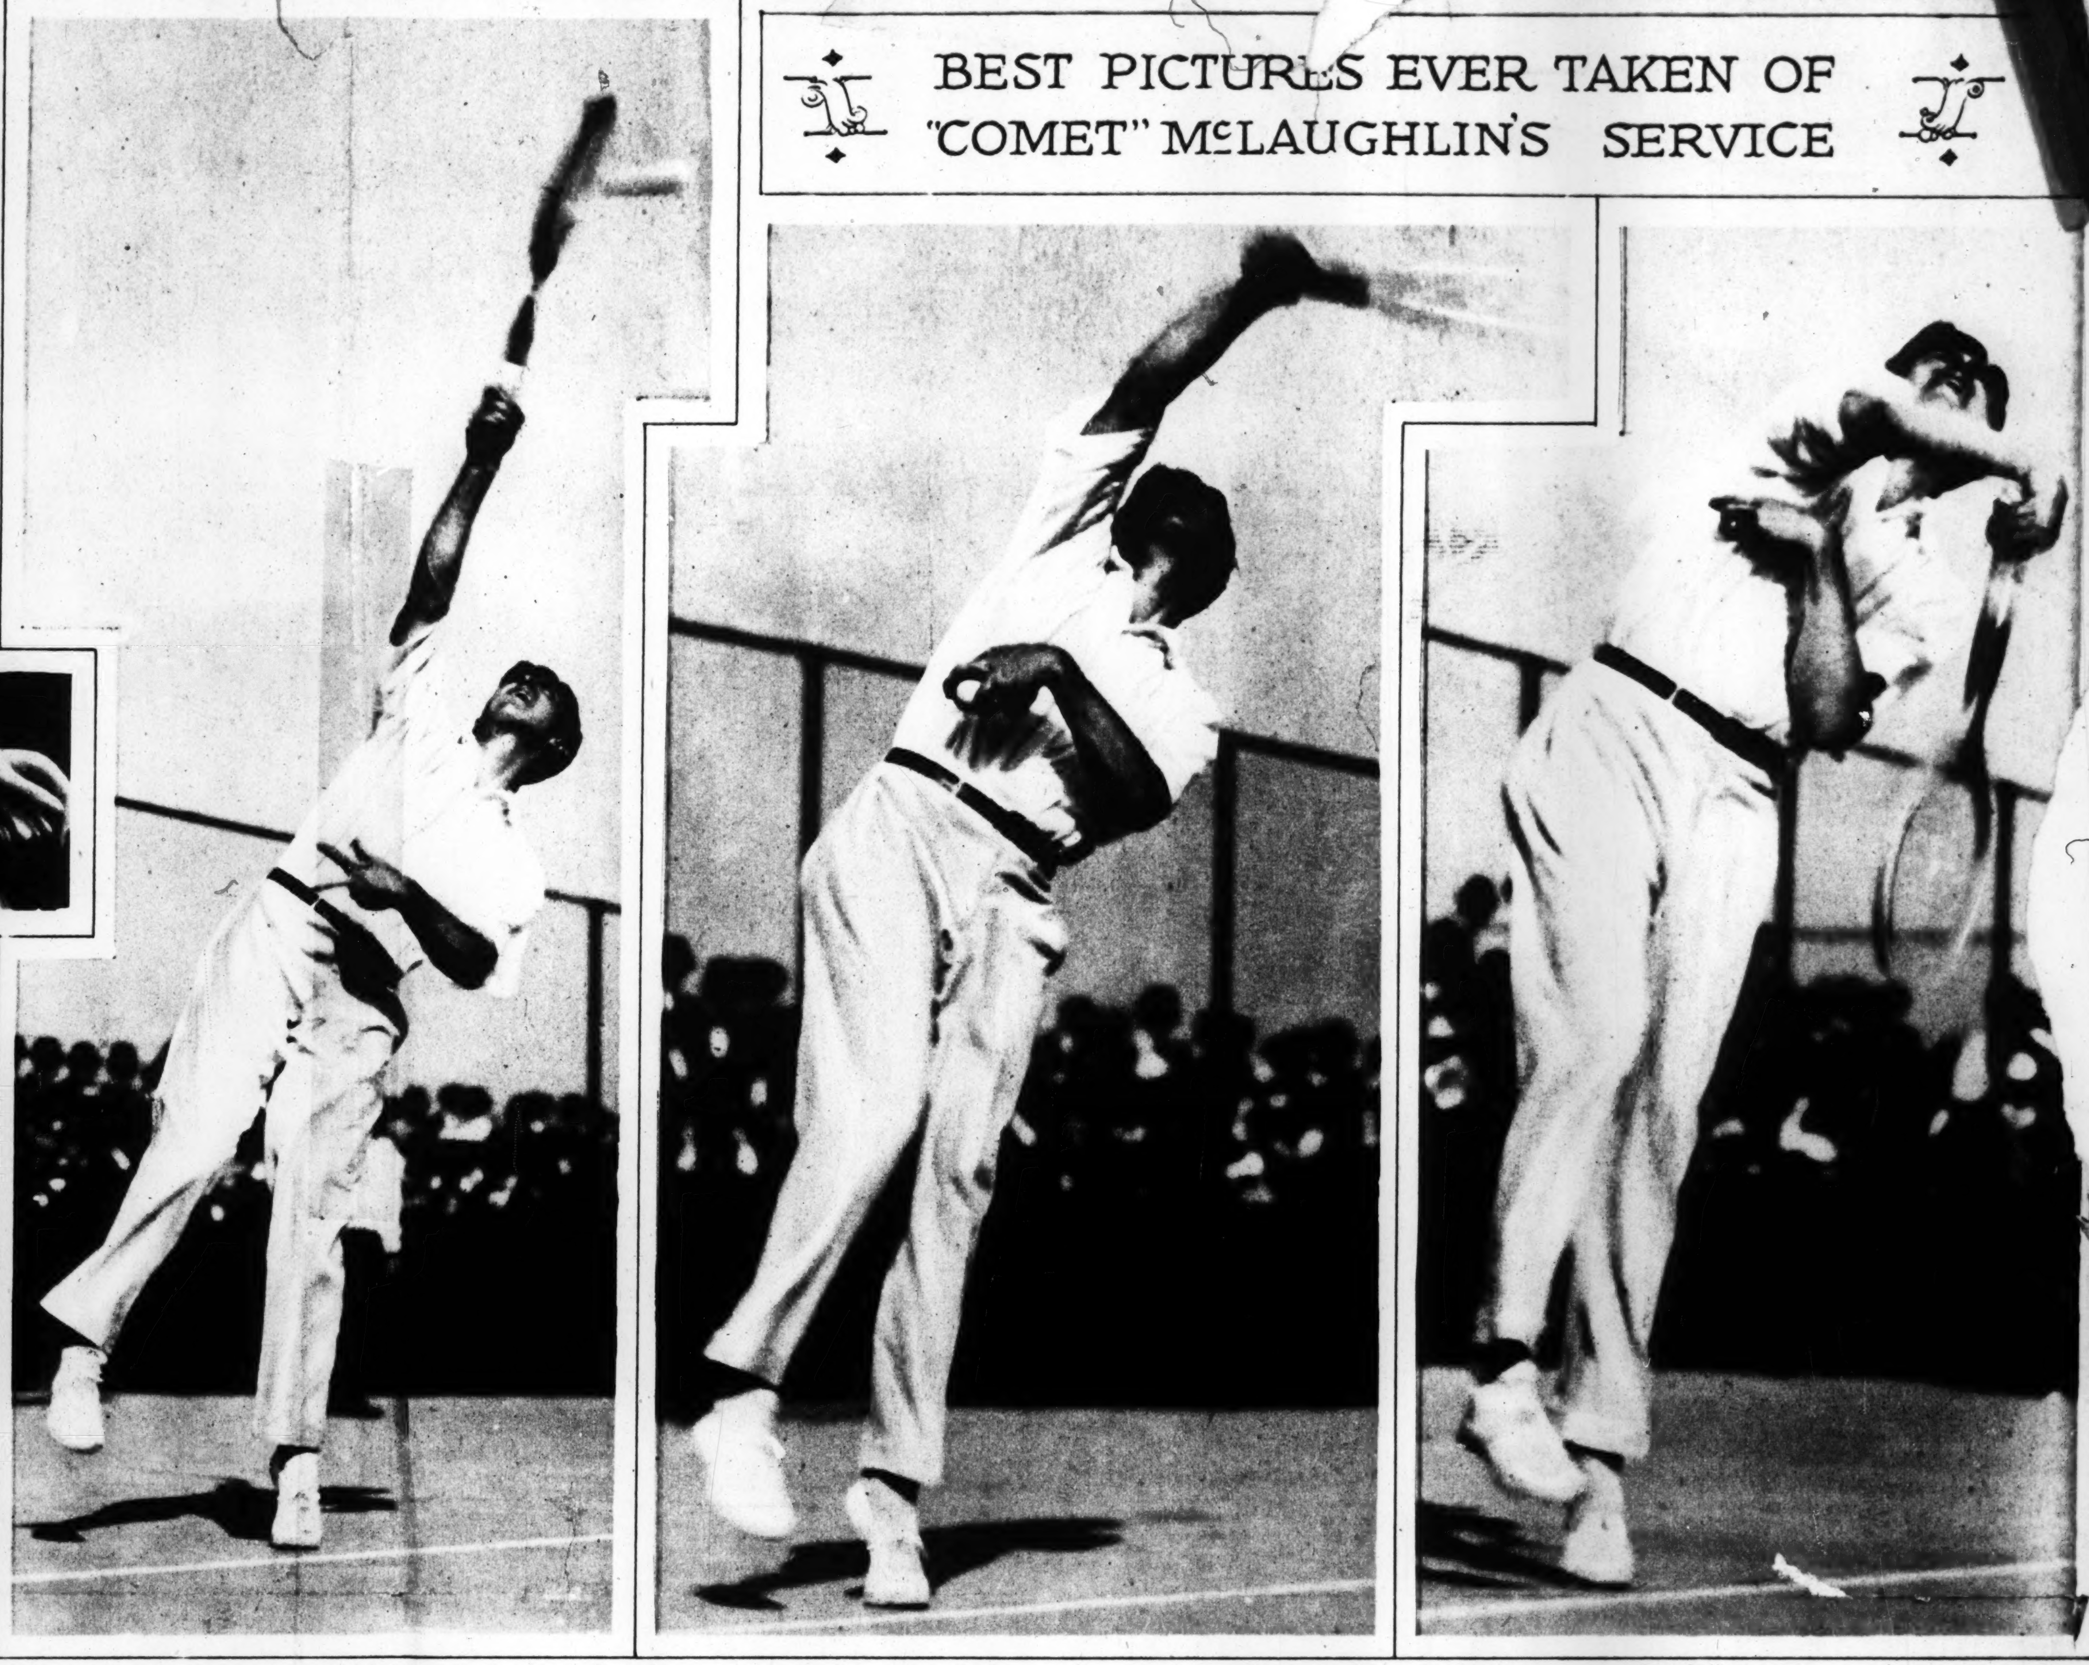
BEST PICTURES EVER TAKEN OF "COMET" McLAUGHLIN'S SERVICE



Although beaten for the national championship many experts still believe that the young Californian is the best all-around tennis player in the country. One source of his strength on the courts is a tremendously fast service ball. These pictures were taken at the exhibition game in St. Louis by W. C. Persons.
